Deputies Vote Decree Power To Daladier By 508 to 12

Three-Month Authority Granted by Second Huge Majority.

Even Socialists Vote Confidence

In Troubled Europe.

Second Big Majority.

By the Associated Press.

Paris (Wednesday), April 13.—The Chamber of Deputies by a vote of 508 to 12 today approved Premier Daladier's request for power to govern France by cabinet decree for three months.

The bill was presented to Parliament yesterday as an emergency measure to enable the new government to cope with troublesome financial and labor problems, and was approved shortly after midnight.

The vote was the second huge majority the chamber had given Daladier in 24 hours. The premier declined, however, to make it a question of confidence.

Confidence Vote, 576-5.

Last night the chamber gave the premier a 576--to-5 vote of confidence, while the Senate greeted his outline of policy with almost unanimous applause.

The measure gives the government authority "until the close of the present session of Parliament and not later than July 31" to deal with national defense, finances and rebuilding of the national economy by decree.

With 140,000 workers out on strike the premier told Parliament that the destiny of France was at stake.

Reds Ready to Work.

The first reaction to Daladier's declaration was the announcement by Jacques Duclos, secretary of the French Communist Party, that strikers in the nationalized aviation factories—numbering about 20,000—were ready to return to work. Duclos is a deputy.

Minister of Air Guy Lachambre said the strikers agreed to work 45 instead of 40 hours a week, with an increase in pay of 75 centimes (about 2 cents) instead of two francs (about 6 cents) per hour.

The workers' decision was made known, however, after Daladier stated flatly in the Chamber that the government would take steps to keep the armaments factories in

Chinese Claim Chufu Retaken; Foes Besieged

Birthplace of Confucius Regained; Japanese in Yihsien Menaced.

Shanghai (Wednesday), April 13. Chinese today said their armies in southern Shantung Province had retaken Chufu, birthplace of Confucius, after hand-to-hand fighting along its ancient walls.

Retreating Japanese were besieged in Yihsien, 25 miles northwest of Taierhchwang, Chinese claimed. Heavy fighting continued today after a night attack by Chinese from hills surrounding the town.

Position Difficult.

Foreign military observers believe the Japanese are in an extremely difficult position in south Shantung Province, where persistent Chinese counterattacks have put the Japanese on the defensive along the 150-mile battle front.

Reinforcements by the thousands were being rushed into the Shantung war zone by the Japanese in an effort to make possible the continuation of the Japanese campaign against Suchow and other strategic cities along the Lunghai Railway.

There was every indication that the Chinese, while hammering mercilessly at the Japanese all along the line, did not intend to meet the reinforced Japanese armies in the middle of Shantung Province.

They Choose Their Ground.

They plan, instead, to keep the conflict on their own chosen ground in the southern part of the province, where the Japanese will have to use extended supply lines.

Extensive fighting was reported near Tsinan and other cities through the central Shantung railway zone and renewed conflict flared along the Yellow River in Honan Province to the west.

Japanese officers admitted that Marshal Yen Hsi-shan, governor of Shansi Province, who last month was driven from the province, had reorganized his forces and re-entered Shansi to take the offensive against the Japanese.

Chinese reports said guerrilla units had recaptured Puhsien, on the Shansi side of the Yellow River, removing danger of a Japanese crossing there.

Dubinsky Absent as CIO Chiefs Select Him to Study Housing

Garment Workers' Head Given Appointment; Lewis Calls on Federal Government to Create Jobs for 13,000,000 Unemployed Persons.

In the midst of reports that his union was threatening to break with John L. Lewis, the Committee for Industrial Organization yesterday appointed David Dubinsky as chairman of its new housing committee.

Dubinsky, one of the founders of the C. I. O., is president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers, which, with its 235,000 members, is the third largest union under the Lewis banner.

Some regarded Dubinsky's appointment to a committee chairmanship as proof that reports of a break were false.

However, others looked upon it simply as an inducement to Dubinsky to continue his adherence.

Dubinsky Stays Away.

Dubinsky himself was absent from the meeting of the C. I. O. high command here, the second time he has remained away from an important gathering. In New York he denied reports that the International Ladies Garment Workers would go back to the American Federation of Labor if the C. I. O. tried to set up a separate federation.

At the same time, he pointed out that policies of his union are for-

Los Angeles, April 12 (AP).—Jackie Coogan asserted today that at the Santa Anita race track he sat in the dollar seats and made $2 bets, while his stepfather, Arthur L. Bernstein, sat in the clubhouse and made $100 bets.

He sued his mother and Bernstein yesterday for $4,000,000 he claims he made while a child film star.

Coogan, now 23 and married to Betty Grable, film actress, quoted his mother as saying, "It's all mine and Arthur's, and so far as we are concerned you will never get a cent."

Boston 'Sees Red' As Harvard Puts Radical on Staff

Boston, April 12 (AP).—After appointment of a former editor of a Communist weekly newspaper to the position of counselor at Harvard University, the Massachusetts Senate today extended the life of a special commission investigating communism and fascism in this State.

Harvard today named Granville Hicks, former Rensselaer and Smith College faculty member, one of six fellows to encourage among upper classmen the informal extra-cullicular study of American history.

The extension of the "isms" commission was voted until May 16. The term would have expired this month.

The Harvard Crimson, undergraduate daily, stated:

"Mr. Hicks will be first self-professed Communist to obtain any appointment to the faculty."

Mexico City, April 12 (AP).—It was learned authoritatively tonight that Mexico delivered a note to the British legation during the afternoon rejecting Great Britain's request that expropriated oil properties be returned. A British protest had charged the Mexican government was motivated by "political desire" in taking the properties.

5,000 See Financier Whitney Off to 'Big House' at Ossining

(Picture on Page 10.)

By the Associated Press.

Ossining, N. Y., April 12.—Richard Whitney, until lately a symbol of integrity and power in the world of finance, dropped his name today to become convict No. 94835 in Sing Sing Prison.

In a few quickly-moving hours, the former broker, who served as president of the New York Stock Exchange for five terms, had been rushed from the Old Tombs Prison in New York City, taken aboard a train for Ossining, thence to the big State prison, stripped, bathed, questioned and given a suit of gray shoddy.

Thus he began serving a 5-to-10 year sentence (three years and four months with time off for good behavior) for grand larceny imposed upon him yesterday for having misused $214,000 worth of securities entrusted to his care by the New York Yacht Club and members of his family.

Bankruptcy schedules were filed before a referee in New York City showing that the combined liabilities of Whitney and the firm he dominated exceeded the combined assets by more than $11,000,000. The firm's liabilities were put at $7,654,659, and included $554 in taxes due the old-age benefit fund and $1,196 due to employes. Its assets were shown as $1,161,345.

Whitney's personal liabilities were listed at $5,646,719 and his assets at $1,077,432.

Five prisoners accompanied him to Sing Sing, two of them hand-

Lucas Cutting Igoe Lead in Primary Race

Downstate Vote May Win Nomination for Horner Man.

Kelly-Nash Candidate Trails in Chicago Judicial Fight.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, April 12.—Michael L. Igoe, standard bearer of the Kelly-Nash forces, held a lead over Scott W. Lucas in the race for the Democratic senatorial nomination tonight, but his position was menaced by the Horner candidate's growing downstate plurality.

Igoe led by less than three to two in Chicago, stronghold of Mayor Kelly and National Committeeman P. A. Nash, while Lucas enjoyed a clear-cut 2-to-1 margin in the counties outside the metropolis.

With 4,496 of the State's 8,276 precincts reported in the Nation's first primay election, Igoe had 458,809 votes to 401,344 for Lucas.

In 884 downstate precincts Lucas led 70,697 to 29,436.

If the ratios were maintained, Lucas, spearhead of Gov. Horner's fight to "smash the Kelly-Nash machine," could overcome Igoe's lead.

In the other major contests of the factional fight for supremacy in the State's Democratic Party, the Governor's aspirants swung into the van.

165,000 Vote G. O. P.

In Cook County, Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, seeking renomination as county judge, an office controlling the election machinery, maintained a lead over his Kelly-Nash-indorsed rival, Circuit Judge John Prystalski. With 1,512 of the 4,377 precincts reported, the Horner-supported Jarecki had 185,143 to 181,218 for Prystalski.

Of a total estimated vote of 998,456 in Chicago, the Republican total was figured at only approximately 165,000.

Although Republican chieftains urged the party faithful to vote in the G. O. P. primary as a show of strength, it was indicated that many switched to the Democratic side temporarily to take a hand in the battle between the Kelly-Nash and Horner groups.

Man Slain in Fight.

Richard J. Lyons, who topped the regular Republican ticket as a candidate for the senatorial nomination, easily established a wide margin over nominal opponents. There was little contest for places on the Republican slate in the November election.

The total vote in Illinois was expected to approximate 2,000,000, against 2,134,203 in the 1934 primary and 2,674,713 in the 1936 primary.

Strike on Circus Keeps Elephants Out of the March

New York, April 12 (AP).—Circus aristocracy donned overalls in the midst of a strike tonight to help "The Greatest Show on Earth" go on.

A strike of 500 technicians and roustabouts 45 minutes before the scheduled beginning of the evening performance forced loyal troupers, a midget and even one of the operators of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus to double as property men.

$2,750,000,000 Sought For Relief and Upturn; Congress Quits May 15

Early Adjournment Is Tentative Plan as Program Shrinks.

Finances Remain Only Problem

Bitter Battle Awaits Any 'Pump-Priming Plan' in Senate.

By Robert C. Albright.

Congressional leaders were in tentative agreement yesterday on a May 15 adjournment date, as a legislative program whittled down by the reorganization bill defeat shrunk almost overnight to the urgent pocketbook issue of ordinary and relief finances.

Tent-folding plans proceeded despite the uncertainty injected by White House formulation of a $1,500,000,000 program for non-interest bearing loans to cities and political subdivisions.

Bitter Battle in Sight.

A bitter-end battle awaits that issue in the Senate, although observers believed it eventually could be pushed to passage. House leaders said they would have little difficulty approving PWA proposals in that chamber. To date, no serious controversy has developed in either House on $1,250,000,000 to $1,500,000,000 for emergency relief spending, to be recommended by the President later this week.

Such other Administration measures as the wage-hour bill and the regional planning measure appeared definitely headed for the discard, as Democratic chieftains concentrated on passing regular appropriation bills and ironing out conference differences in House and Senate tax bills.

Members facing re-election opposition in November were restless to get home and repair their political fences and there was no disposition among the leaders to forestall an early get-away.

Little Hope Held Out.

No attempt this session will be made to revive the recommitted Government reorganization bill and little hope was held out for agreement on legislative aids being urgently sought by sorely-pressed railroads.

Slim prospects held out by Administration chiefs for House passage of a wage-hour bill apparently were shattered by American Federation of Labor and House Labor Committee opposition to the new Ramspeck compromise.

Meantime leaders were struggling to hold House members in line against a threatened spending bolt to bolster the sharply curtailed Federal-aid highway appropriations.

The Agriculture Department supply bill reported yesterday carried only the President's budget recommendations—$63,000,000 for Federal-aid roads, $10,000,000 for feeder roads, and $20,000,000 for elimination of grade crossings, or a total of $93,000,000, against $167,500,000 appropriated last year.

Chairman Wilburn Cartwright, of the House Roads Committee, said an additional $101,500,000 was needed

D. C. Officials Turn Back to Privilege Tax

Renewal in Modified Form Weighed as King Calls for Solution.

By James D. Secrest.

Renewal of the business privilege tax, in modified form, for another year will be proposed to the Senate District Committee today by the District Commissioners as a solution to the District's fiscal dilemma, it was learned yesterday.

Summoned to an executive conference by Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, chairman of the committee, the District heads yesterday conferred with Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal and Auditor Daniel J. Donovan.

While Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen renewed his arguments for the sales tax, other District officials argued that it was hopeless to expect either the Senate or the House to accept the levy on consumers.

Faced with a deficit of close to $1,500,000, the Senate District Committee will be forced to decide what

Barbary Sheep Celebrate Two Blessed Events

Multiple births among hooved animals are extremely rare but the stork did double duty once before for Mr. and Mrs. Aoudad, more popularly known as Barbary sheep.

They are the goat-like creatures with long, curved horns which scamper up and down the man-made mountain opposite the new pachyderm house. The twins arrived, however, in the colony's living quarters in the hollow of the artificial Alp.

"In a few days they'll be testing their legs on the mountain," Director William M. Mann predicted.

Roosevelt Denies Garner Tiff —One of Them, Anyway, That Is

President Roosevelt denied yesterday that he and Vice President Garner had quarreled over the vast pump-priming plan that lies on the President's desk.

He said he knew nothing of the reported disagreement except what he had read in the newspapers, and declared that the story was made up out of whole cloth.

The President said he had asked Garner if the latter had seen a recent article describing Garner as telling the President that he should let the cattle (business) fatten on the grass for a while, call off the cowboys and quit milling the cattle around.

Garner, according to the President, said he had seen it and denied that he had anything to do with it. The President added that Garner had said he was not in the habit of going around to newspapers with denials.

The President did not remark, however, on the story most generally accepted in the Senate cloakroom, that Garner was irked when Mr. Roosevelt jestingly sniped at the inability of House Majority Leader Sam Rayburn, also a Texan, to deliver a favorable vote on the reorganization bill last week.

The President gave a sharp negative answer to the question, "Did the Vice President differ with you on pump-priming?"

The report that the Vice President had replied sharply to supposed criticism of Rayburn was widely printed in newspapers yesterday.

President Talks With Aides in Night White House Session.

Desterilization Of Gold Studied

$1,500,000,000 Aimed for Pump-Priming Public Works.

By Sidney Olson.

The President's first draft of his $1,250,000,000 relief message also now definitely contains a $1,500,000,000 public works "pump-priming" program, it was learned last night.

Five Cabinet members and the heads of the Administration's biggest lending (RFC) and spending (WPA) agencies conferred with the President for two and a half hours last night at a special session in the White House before reaching this agreement, it was indicated.

One of the Cabinet officers, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., remained half an hour longer with the President and the latter's press secretary, Stephen T. Early. This gave rise to the belief the President might act in his message to Congress tomorrow noon to desterilize $1,200,000,000 of the Government's vast inactive gold hoard. Such action, of inflationary character, would not reflect this sum in the public debt, and is favored by some high Administration officials.

May Change Content.

Early, in talking to reporters after the conference broke up at 11:20 p.m., indicated further drafts of the message might substantially change its content, as he said that other conferences on the message's content might be continued today.

All of those present were "locked up tight" on the substance of the discussions. Secretary of State Cordell Hull smilingly said:

"I'm awfully tempted to tell you what happened, but you'll have to see Steve Early."

Others were equally reticent. They included, besides Hull and Morgenthau, Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, Postmaster General James A. Farley, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, Chairman Jesse H. Jones, of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and Works Progress Administrator Harry L. Hopkins.

James Roosevelt, the President's son-secretary, also attended.

Their Counsel Sought.

It was understood Hull's presence did not mean that the message would have any international angle, any more than Wallace's attendance meant inclusion of the farm problem. Their general counsel on the Nation's most vital problem — the new depression—was sought by the President. One of the men present said that the President did more listening than talking, as each outlined his views of the seriousness and extent of the depression and of the possible means of meeting it.

The $1,250,000,000 for relief will be for the first seven months, June to January inclusive, of the 1938-1939 fiscal year, since Hopkins and the President agree than no one can intelligently forecast the unemployment needs for a longer period.

The method of disbursing the $1,500,000,000 PWA fund was the knottiest point tackled last night. Vice President Garner and other economy advocates have long insisted on reliance almost entirely on RFC loans. The spenders in Administration councils have insisted conversely on long-term loans to public bodies, running up to 50 years, without interest, but with a 2 per cent annual amortization requirement on principal.

Such a program, being the rough equivalent of an unamortized, non-interest-bearing loan for 25 years.

House Rejects Senate Tax Bill, Long Fight Seen

Conference Battle Due on 'Business Recovery' Amendments.

A protracted conference battle on basically different House and Senate tax bills was foreshadowed yesterday when the House refused to accept the Senate's "business recovery" amendments and appointed conferees.

Vice President Garner immediately appointed a Senate conference committee to meet with the House group, starting today, in an effort to iron out differences. One House conferee said the conference will "sit until doomsday" before House members will agree to complete repeal of the undivided profits tax.

Lamneck Plea Fails.

Representative Arthur P. Lamneck (Democrat) of Ohio, vainly appealed to the House to "accept the Senate bill without the crossing of a "T" or the dotting of an "I."

"We have an opportunity in this bill to do something that will restore confidence in business in this country," said Lamneck.

The Ohio Democrat was quickly challenged by Chairman Robert L. Doughton, of the House Ways and Means Committee, who said Lamneck "thinks we ought to blindly disregard the action of the House." He said 25 to 30 of the Senate amendments were never considered by the Finance Committee.

"I do not approach it that way," said Doughton. "To say that the House should accept these Senate amendments without even consideration by the committee is not my conception of the duty of Congress."

Repeal Central Zone.

Although the Senate made general modifications in the framework of the House bill, including substitution of flat corporation income and capital gains taxes for House graduated scales, the conference battle centers on Senate insistence on repeal of the profits tax principle.

House conferees may attempt to "trade' agreement on the Senate's 15 per cent capital gains tax plan for acceptance of their own proposal for a 16 to 20 per cent undivided profits tax.

But Senate conferees at the outset apparently were as set on their own 18 per cent corporate income tax plan, as were House conferees on their profits tax principle.

As the controversy flared on the House floor, Lamneck expressed hope that "when this bill goes to conference we will not have a long drawn out battle as to whether or not we are to retain the section pertaining to the undistributed profits tax."

"I believe the business interests of this country are absolutely opposed to the principle of the undistributed profits tax," said Lamneck, "not because it is going to levy a high tax on them, but they have the fear that we may use that principle and raise the rates and change the schedule, and they are simply afraid of it. I hope we shall make no determined effort to restore that section of the tax bill."

Differences Outlined.

In reply to questioning by Representative Carl E. Mapes (Republican), of Michigan, Lamneck said criticism of the Senate bill for imposing higher taxes on small corporations is unjustified, and that actually companies earning less than $2,300 would pay no tax under the Senate measure.

Mapes also asked Representative Fred Vinson (Democrat), of Kentucky, if the Senate bill "levies a higher tax on corporations whose earnings are less than $25,000 than the House bill."

"For corporations with income of less than $6,500," said Vinson, "the Senate bill has a lesser tax, while on between $6,500 and $25,000 of net income there is a larger tax. When you get to the $25,000 line the added tax under the Senate bill is $975. The corporate taxes, as I understand it, under the Senate bill will bring in some $89,000,000 more than the corporate taxes under the House bill."

Representative Cassius C. Dowell (Republican), of Iowa, asked Doughton if the House would be given a chance to vote on the Senate's Borah amendment, which removes the tax-exempt features from future issues of Federal securities.

"I could not tell about that," said Doughton. "There are 239 amendments, I understand, in all, of which 25 to 30 were accepted without consideration by the Finance Committee." He gave a similar answer to queries as to a separate vote on the Senate elimination of House-imposed excise taxes on imported pork.

Senate conferees named yesterday by Garner were Chairman Harrison and Senators King, of Utah; George, of Georgia, and Walsh, of Massachusetts, Democrats, and Capper, of Kansas, and Vandenberg, of Michigan, Republicans.

Speaker Bankhead appointed as House conferees Chairman Doughton, and Representatives Cullen, of New York; Vinson, of Kentucky; Cooper, of Tennesse, Democrats, and Treadway, of Massachusetts, and Crowthre, of New York, Republicans.

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD

Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts

The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, cokeze or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or chew poorly—your stomach pours out too much fluid. Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel sour, sick and upset all over.

Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes those little black tablets called Bell-ans for Indigestion to make the excess stomach fluids harmless, relieve distress in 5 minutes and put you back on your feet. Relief is so quick it is amazing and one 25c package proves it. Ask for Bell-ans for Indigestion.

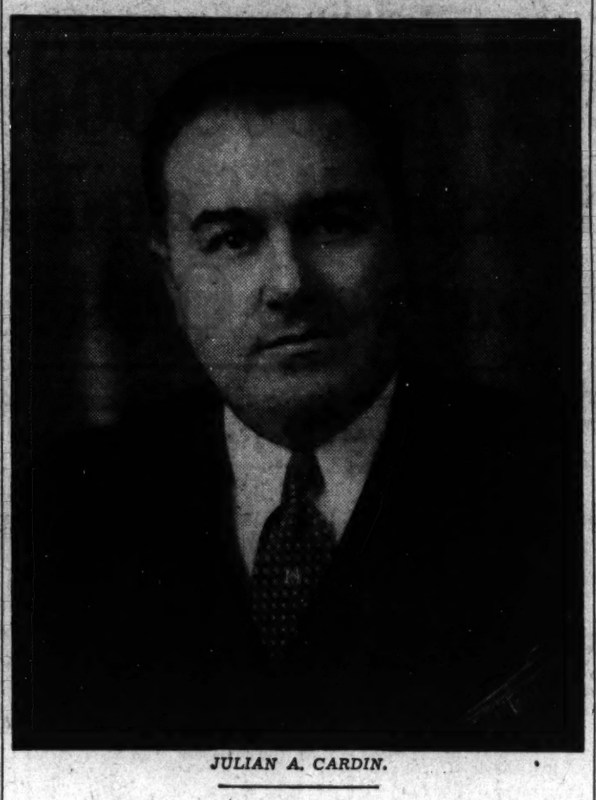
Julian O. Cardin, Bank Official, Heads Northeast Businessmen



JULIAN A. CARDIN.

Association Sponsored Trade Directory, Publishes Monthly News Bulletin and Reduced Number of Loading Platforms in Area.

By Christine Sadler

Ninety-four varieties of businesses, professions, industries and trades are represented in the Northeast Business Men's Association, which has a membership of 263 individuals and is often declared to be the most active business group in town.

Among accomplishments of the organization can be listed annual publication of a business directory for the Northeast, monthly news bulletin, reduced number of loading platforms—so as to make more room for public parking—a tastefully decorated "holiday lane" at Christmas time, annual excursions in which the whole community joins and many traffic and street improvements.

Suppers Follow Meetings.

"Our purpose is to improve business conditions in the Northeast section," states Julian O. Cardin, president of the group, "and we find that buffet suppers after our meetings are very beneficial. It's surprising how much can be learned over a sandwich."

Attendance at monthly meetings of the organization last year averaged 55, and among the special occasions arranged to promote closer co-operating was a big Fort Myer rodeo show.

At the last meeting a committee was appointed to study the question of a vote for the District. Cardin personally explains his position on the vote by declaring he believes Congress "wants to help the District, but is not close enough to its needs to know how."

Condemns Business Tax.

He considers the business privilege tax "emphatically unjust" and an income tax unsuited to the District's needs. "I do not believe our association would be against any form of taxation that it believed within reason," he says.

"Best results can be obtained if done in the spirit of co-operation, but slow advance is the outlook if government acts in a domineering manner," he declares.

"A District income tax," he continues, "can reach but about 50 per cent of the persons earning their incomes here. Of course, we would not have a deficit to begin with if Congress lived up to the financial agreement it entered into in a constitutional manner."

Cardin is a native of Wisconsin, but has been in the District for twenty years. He was with the Northeast Savings Bank until 1933, when that institution became the Northeast Branch of the Hamilton National Bank and Cardin became assistant manager of the branch.

Plays in Orchestra.

In addition to his positions in the bank and the business men's club, Cardin is a Mason, past patron of the Lafayette Lodge Chapter of the O. E. S., a trustee of the chapter, a delegate to the Federation of Business Men's Association, and a musician.

He plays the cornet in the bank's orchestra and is an expert on the harmonica, although he calls himself as an amateur.

Before becoming president of the association, he was its secretary and a committee worker. He hopes some day to see an auditorium stadium erected at the end of East Capitol street—and his association is working toward that end. He and Mrs. Cardin live at 615 Oneida place. They have no children.

Hull Answers LaGuardia Cry Of Lost Trade

Denies U. S. Is Giving Way in Latin Commerce to Dictatorships.

Secretary Hull yesterday cited the increasing progress in this hemisphere of the reciprocal trade agreement program as an answer to the demand Monday night by Mayor LaGuardia, of New York, that the Government subsidize American exports to Central and South America in order to maintain our markets there against the "dictator countries" of Europe.

LaGuardia, in a nationally-broadcast addresses, charged that the United States had all but lost those markets and urged a Federal agency to place orders for exports, "the manufacturers to be paid fair and reasonable prices, based on production costs, plus a fair profit," out of Federal funds.

He then suggested the sale of those products to Central and South American countries at prices "to meet the subsidized competition" from abroad.

Stresses Equality of Treatment.

Hull was asked at his press conference to comment on the speech. He at once launched into a re-statement of the fundamental objectives of the State Department's twin peace and trade-restoration policies, and stressed emphatically the principle of equality of treatment in all of the commercial and financial relationships between nations.

The Secretary declared the establishment of normal economic relations between nations, in order to make posible permanent peace relations, naturally applied to all countries, not merely the American republics.

He said this was the only sure road to stable world conditions, insisted that the general program is making steady headway, and predicted that progress in that direction would continue on a constantly advancing scale.

Deny Trade Losses.

LaGuardia's contention that the American markets in Central and South America have been almost lost to the "dictator countries" was flatly denied by spokesmen for the State and Commerce departments.

While few figures were available, most of them indicated that the United States was generally holding its own, while in some countries substantial gains have been made.

Figures were available, showing the total exports into most Central and South American countries; the total imports by those countries from all outside nations, and the percentage of American exports out of that total of imports.

Imports Rose.

In the last five years, 1933-37 inclusive, for the following countries—Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Venezuela, Uruguay, Peru, Ecuador, Mexico and Cuba—the percentage of United State imports by those countries, out of their total imports from all countries, rose steadily from 24.1 per cent in 1933 to 30:5 per cent in 1936. With totals from two countries missing for 1937, the percentage stood at 29.4, which was certain to be increased when final figures are available.

These figures, of course, do not include the possible sharp increases of Italian and German commerce. It was known definitely only that certain such increases have taken place. But late last autumn, on November 4, 1937, Dr. Alexander V. Dye, director, Bureau of Foreign-Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce, said:

"Latest trade statistics show that the United States has in recent months been gaining ground as against all competing nations in all of the leading markets of Latin America. In Brazil and Chile, for example, we have regained most of the ground lost in 1936, and in Argentina our share of the total imports increased despite the handicap of a 20 per cent surcharge on certain lines of goods."

There was no evidence in either the State or Commerce departments of any effort to minimize the threat to American commerce in the 20 American republics from the products of cheap labor, subsidized imports and trade carried on under abnormal barter arrangements. These are regarded seriously, it was said, as influences which must be considered by increased efforts to establish commercial and financial relations based on general fair play.

The Gallup Poll

Whitney Case Found to Be Influencing Public View of Wall Street Regulation.

By Dr. George Gallup.

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

George Gallup.

Although a Wall Street broker who was five times president of the Stock Exchange, has just been sentenced to prison for larceny, a Nation-wide survey finds that his case has strengthened the hand of the SEC so far as public opinion is concerned. The majority of voters who are familiar with the Whitney scandal think it calls for stricter Government regulations of Wall Street.

The survey, conducted by the American Institute of Public Opinion, reached a representative cross-section of voters in all income levels. They were asked two questions.

(1) "Have you heard about the Wall Street case of Richard Whitney?"

(2) "Do you think it calls for further regulation of Wall Street?"

The results showed that more than six out of ever ten voters (63 per cent) were familiar with the Whitney affair. On the question of further regulation of Wall Street, these persons voted as follows:

| Regulate Wall Street Further? | |
|---|---|
| Yes | 74% |
| No | 26 |

The survey also shows that even voters who are opposed to the New Deal think the Whitney case calls for stricter vigilance by the New Deal's policeman in Wall Street, the SEC. A large majority (62 per cent) of Republican voters expressed this belief.

Among Democrats the vote for further regulation was overwhelming—81 per cent.

The public's attitude toward the whole question of stock market regulation was first indicated by Institute studies last October. At that time a survey was conducted among persons who actually owned stocks and bonds and therefore had a special interest in the subject of regulating the exchanges. These persons were asked:

"Do you think Government regulation of stock exchanges has helped investors?"

| The vote was: | |
|---|---|
| Helped | 62% |

British Survey Proves Accurate in Election

The British Institute of Public Opinion, affiliate of the American Institute, successfully met an important test of accuracy last week in the English by-election in West Fulham.

A special survey conducted by the British Institute one week before the election indicated that the Labor candidate in West Fulham, Dr. Edith Summerskill, was leading by a margin of 51 per cent, as against 49 per cent for the Conservative (government) candidate, John Busby.

As the chief issue in the election was Prime Minister Chamberlain's foreign policy, Labor Party leaders are hailing the victory of their candidate as a sign that public opinion does not approve Chamberlain's plan to conciliate the Fascist powers.

Insofar as the election was a test of sentiment on the Chamberlain policies, the outcome confirms results of a survey taken throughout England last month by the British Institute. This study showed that 58 per cent of British voters were opposed to the Prime Minister's foreign policy.

White House Lawn Now Immaculate, Thanks to Garner

The once bedraggled White House lawn bears an unbroken carpet of green, thanks to the interest of Vice President Garner though, the official gardener says, the Vice President's prescription for spotty lawns didn't work.

About a year ago Garner heard complaints from Easter visitors about the lawn's appearance and told the President he would send some seed that grows lustily under similar circumstances at Uvalde, Tex.

He didn't send the seed, but, stimulated to experiment, the gardener tried out some grass called Italian rye, which did the trick. So the lawn will be unspotted for Monday's annual Easter egg rolling.

Schwab Refuses To Forego His Pay This Year

By the Associated Press.

Wilmington, Del., April 12.—Charles M. Schwab, 76-year-old chairman of Bethlehem Steel Corporation, today declined a request to refrain from taking any of his $200,000 a year salary if the company fails to declare common stock dividend for this quarter.

The request was made by Lewis D. Gilbert, New York, minority stockholder who last year asked that Schwab be placed on a pension.

Schwab, who had sat quietly through the long annual meeting today, in which there was a threat of fisticuffs between two small stockholders, broke his silence by making an appeal to Gilbert to withdraw his request.

Gilbert withdrew it as "a personal favor" to the steel magnate.

Action on the proposal to make changes in the management stock ownership plan, which would result in automatically terminating the plan by the end of next year, was postponed until a special meeting of the stockholders here April 21. Under the stock ownership plan officers and certain employes were permitted in 1930 to subscribe to common shares at $91.60 a share. No time limit was set for payment.

Th threat of a fist fight came in the discussion over the election of officers. J. Newcomb Blackman, New York, wanted to know why the corporation should elect directors who had only small holdings, which, he said, indicated to stockholders lack of confidence in the company.

L. B. Coshland, New York, and John Sauerman, New York, who holds some 5 per cent preferred stock, entered the discusion when Coshland asked Eugene G. Grace, president, to have Sauerman removed from the meeting because 5 per cent preferred stock had no voting power.

"Get a policeman to take him out!" shouted Coshland.

Gilbert said, "This is why I asked the chair to appoint a sergeant at arms."

Sauerman later apologized for his language.

Gilbert wanted the annual meeting held either in New York or Newark, N. J., in order to have a larger attendance of stockholders. When this was voted down by a voice vote he proposed that the directors hold all their board meetings in Wilmington. This also was voted down.

Defeat Roosevelt, Attorney Pleads

San Francisco, April 12 (AP).—John Francis Neylan blamed President Roosevelt and Congress today for getting the country into "the worst economic mess in all history," and implored voters to clean the Nation's political house.

Neylan, attorney for William Randolph Hearst interests, attacked the Administration in an address to the San Francisco Bond Club. He denounced the President's economic policies, said he received "grants of arbitrary and dictatorial power" from a "coward Congress" and appealed to citizens to "examine the record of every Congressman and Senator who comes up for re-election."

Norman Davis Named Leader Of Red Cross

President Picks 'Roving Envoy' for Post Grayson Held.

Succeeding Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, who died February 15, Davis accepted the post at a White House luncheon, which also was attended by Secretary Hull. A few hours later he was formally welcomed as chairman of the Red Cross by members of the central committee.

President Roosevelt declared that Davis, who has held the title of special ambassador, will continue to be available to the White House and State Department in an advisory capacity. An authoritative source indicated to The Post last night, however, that Davis' first duty was to the Red Cross.

Headquarters Here.

Davis' permanent headquarters will be in Washington. However, he will retain an apartment in New York as most of the eight children and 16 grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Davis reside there.

As special ambassador, Davis was paid for time actually spent in working, on the basis of an ambassador's salary of $17,500 per year. Salary of the chairman of the Red Cross comes from a special fund. Admiral Grayson accepted $4,500 annual salary to cover expenses. His predecessor, John Barton Payne, refused remuneration.

Born in Tennessee in 1878, Davis began his business career in Cuba in 1902, and became interested in banking, sugar and other enterprises.

Was McAdoo Aide.

It was not until 1917, when the United States entered the World War, that Davis entered Government service.

In that year, he became financial adviser to Treasury Secretary McAdoo, also a Tennessean, and in 1918, he was appointed special United States delegate to Spain and representative of the Treasury in London and Paris. He then was made financial commissioner of the United States to Europe, and helped negotiate post-war loans.

Recognizing his financial genius, the Supreme Economic Council of the Allies named him chairman of its financial section. President Wilson appointed him a member of the American delegation to the peace conference. He was a member of the reparations and financial commissions.

On his return to the United States, Davis was promoted to the Assistant Secretaryship of the Treasury, and then became Undersecretary of State, but retired when the Republican administration took office. From March, 1921, until 1927, Davis had little connection with Governmental affairs.

President Coolidge sent him to the 1927 international economic conference at Geneva. He became a member of the League of Nations financial commission and later helped organize the International Monetary and Economic Conference of 1932.

President Hoover named Davis delegate to the Disarmament Conference of 1932, and in the following year President Roosevelt appointed him chairman of the American delegation. He also headed the American delegation to the London Naval Conference of 1935-6. Davis is still chairman of the American delegation to the permanent international arms conference.

At his press conference yesterday President Roosevelt said he guessed Davis would continue in that capacity. Laughing, he added that the conference is dead.

Davis' consultations with foreign governments have been criticized in recent weeks by Republican members of Congress, some of whom have charged that he has promoted a secret alliance with Great Britain.

Uncle of King Farouk Arrives To Sing Praises of Washington

Prince Hussein Sabry Pasha, in This Country to Erect Pavilion at World's Fair, Amazed at Way We Handle Traffic.

Prince Hussein Sabry Pasha, uncle of King Farouk and Queen Farida of Egypt, stepped from a streamlined train at the Union Station yesterday, and found Washington very much to his liking.

His Highness, who is brother of the Queen Mother of Egypt, came from New York, where he is in charge of the erection of the Egyptian Pavilion at the World's Fair.

Moonlight on the Potomac and moonlight on the Nile are not vastly different, the Prince observed. It is more or less the state of mind, the point of view one takes, His Highness asserted.

The planning and architecture of American cities intrigued the Prince. He also found himself amazed by the competent manner in which Americans handle traffic.

"Your cities were planned by men who looked into the future," said the Prince yesterday, as he puffed a cigarette at the Egyptian Legation.

"New York and Washington will endure for decades without alteration because of such vision. Everywhere I find efficiency, and particularly in the way you handle the tens of thousands of automobiles. My native city of Alexandria, Egypt, is doing much the same thing. We would do well to pattern our handling of traffic after America."

The Prince refused to discuss international affairs, and the situation in the Mediterranean.

"After all," beamed the dapper, bemustached visitor, "I am a business man, not a politician."

However, for 14 years His Highness was mayor of Alexandria, and there he found the problems of municipal government similar to those in the New Yorld, which he is just discovering.

"I have been so impressed with the friendliness of Americans," he concluded last night, as his cigarette burned low.

"They receive in the Oriental manner. I have never felt homesick or alone during my visit here."

Unwilling Patient Sent to Hospital

Invocink a sanitary regulation passed in 1908, Police Judge Edward M. Curran yesterday ordered Bowers Bristol, colored, 41, of 1209 Sixth street northwest, taken to Gallinger until he could be taken to Glen Dale. Bristol was charged with "failing to observe sanitary rules to prevent spread of disease." District health authorities said he caused his wife and two small children to contract tuberculosis by sleeping in the same room with them and that he refused hospitalization.

Bids Announced On 3 Md. Projects

Baltimore, April 12 (AP).—Low bids on two southern Maryland projects and one in Montgomery County were received today by the State roads commission.

C. J. Angenfelder & Sons, of Rosedale, submitted an offer of $24,899 for half a mile of gravel surfacing and bridge construction along the Huntington-Prince Frederick road at Hunting Creek, in Calvert County.

Smith Bros., of Galesville, bid $41,356 for construction of a timber bulkhead along the Potomac River on St. Georges Island in Calvert County.

A grade revision at the intersection of Georgia and Sligo avenues in Silver Spring, Montgomery County, drew a low bid of $6,611 from Corson & Gruman Co., of Washington.

Woman Dies, 25th Victim, as 3 Death Drivers Are Freed

Mrs. Anna Huck, 54, 1321 Fairmont street northwest, died at Emergency Hospital yesterday, second traffic victim in two days. At about the same time, three persons were absolved of blame in previous fatalities.

Mrs. Huck was injured April 7 when she was knocked down at Twelfth and I streets northwest. Her death raised the traffic toll to 25 for 1938. Thirty-eight deaths were recorded at this time last year.

Police arrested John O. Asher, 34, 1314 Massachusetts avenue northwest, driver of the car which struck Mrs. Huck. Released under $500 bond, Asher now will have to appear at a coroner's inquest.

A coroner's jury yesterday exonerated John H. Noland, 19, 4713 Eighth street northwest, in connection with the death April 7 of Louise Crawford, colored, 70, 1020 Lamont street northwest.

Police Court Judge Edward M. Curran dismissed a charge of negligent homicide against Mrs. Florence Sindell, 5465 Nebraska avenue northwest, in the death of 14-year-old Kenneth L. Fenton, of 232 Channing street northwest, on February 6.

Lenton L. Sauls, 27, of 1605 Eames place northwest, was acquitted of negligent homicide by a Police Court jury, which decided he was not responsible for the death of 88-year-old James Price on February 10.

Grand Jury Ends Study of Landis Slaying

Suspected Killer's Mother Refuses to Produce 2 Rings Given Nurse.

Grand jury investigation of the slaying of blonde Blanche Landis, 22, on a lonely northeast street last month, was completed late yesterday as Mrs. Mjllie Jones, mother of the suspected slayer, James L. Landis, testified briefly.

Mrs. Jones had been summoned primarily, the United States attorney's office stated, to bring before the grand jury rings alleged to have been given a nurse by Landis. The nurse has explained she did not know the rookie fireman was married when he gave her a diamond ring and a wedding ring to match.

In refusing to produce the rings, if she has them, Mrs. Jones accepted the advice of Attorney Jean M. Boardman, who informed her the Government had not the authority to compel their production. The subpena calling for them is limited to the production of books, papers, and documents, Boardman stated, and does not permit forced production of chattels such as rings.

The grand jury is expected to report late today.

Mrs. Landis, estranged from her husband, died in Gallinger Hospital a few days after her badly beaten body had been discovered by a milkman. The husband admitted having gone to see his wife, but claimed she had fallen against the fender of his car and had injured her head, which was fractured in several places.

New York, April 12 (AP).—On the eve of their departure on a belated honeymoon, John Brennan, 29, a veteran of the Spanish civil war, and his wife Catherine, 28, were found dead of gas under circumstances which led police to believe they had died in a suicide pact.

Police said Brennan, in a note addressed to his mother, Mrs. Anna Brennan, wrote, "We are disgusted with life."

Confer

would amout to giving the borrowers a 45 to 50 per cent grant if a 3 per cent annual interest rate is assumed, which is about what the practice was during the first huge pump-priming program under Secretary Ickes' PWA.

Treasury Would Absorb It.

Such an interest charge in effect would be absorbed by the Treasury, appearing as a direct Governmental expenditure regardless of whether the principal disbursements were handled through a corporation or direct from the Treasury.

If the $1,500,000,000 works program is finally approved today by the President, issuance by a Government corporation of bonds guaranteed by the Treasury probably will be the method of financing used, it has been generally assumed in the last few days. By creating or using a Government corporation to sell Government-guaranteed securities, the Administration could route new works outlays around the budget, as money raised by sales of Home Loan Bank, Commodity Credit Corporation and RFC securities has never been included in the Government's recepts and expenditures total.

If the Treasury itself borrows the money—an alternative—the works outlays would lie within the budget and would tremendously increase the deficit for the year as well as the official public debt figure.

The desterilization alternative arises from the fact that when the $1,200,000,000 in sterilized gold was purchased, the transaction was made in Government securities which figure in the current debt.

Would Cut Public Debt.

If the gold were desterilized, gold certificates would be issued against it and the notes ratified, thus materially slashing the public debt and making room for even more Congressional spending.

While the speed with which the President works today and tonight will finally decide, it appeared fairly certain last night that the message would go to Congress at noon tomorrow and the President will explain his action to the public in a fireside chat tentatively scheduled for 10:30 p. m. tomorrow in a talk that may consume 45 minutes.

When Early was asked last night why no Congressional leaders were present at the final and probably conclusive discussion of the message, he said they had been fully consulted for several weeks and again at the Monday morning sessions in the White House.

Randle and Orr Schools Scored

Physical condition of the Randle Highlands and Orr schools was criticized by members of the Randle Highlands Citizens' Association meeting last night at 2407 Minnesot" avenue southeast.

The heating plant in the Randle School was called "more or less of a useless proposition." Although the plant was recently installed, one member said the school cannot be kept open in severe weather. Both schools were criticized for being in poor repair. In addition, members of the association hit the lack of entrances to the Orr School playground.

Automatic Promotions Vetoed by President

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt vetoed yesterday a bill which would have provided automatic promotions for approximately 7,500 field employes in the custom service.

Rayburn and Snell Lead House in Tributes to Bankhead on 64th Birthday.

The House rose in tribute to Speaker William B. Bankhead of Alabama who became 64 years old yesterday. Democratic Leader Sam Rayburn said he had served under many speakers but none had ever surpassed Bankhead in "fairness, a desire for service or ability." Minority Leader Bertrand Snell not to be outdone, said he felt "the present Speaker in every way has measured up to the high standards that former Speakers have reached."

BANKHEAD.

Bankhead responded modestly that he realized he would go down in parliamentary history as a rather obscure character, but observed that his birthday was sandwiched in between that of two great Americans. He pointed out that Chief Justice Hughes was 76 on Monday and that today is the birthday of Thomas Jefferson, called by Bankhead, "the greatest political philosopher of modern times."

The Speaker termed April a month of peace, flowers, perfume and amity. Then he added dryly that every great war in which the United States had engaged began in April and concluded, "in the month of April we had to bring up the reorganization bill."

"Twenty-five years ago, ladies talked about their blood pressure when they got together for a chat. Now they talk about their Wassermans," Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York City remarked yesterday to a House committee considering the Bulwinkle bill to control syphilis. He expressed gratification that the campaign against the disease was now out in the open.

LaGuardia said the Bulwinkle measure would distribute the cost of control fairly over the whole country. The bill would authorize a Federal expenditure of $271,000,000 over 13 years for controlling the disease.

Chairman Whittington (Democrat), Mississippi, of the House Flood Control Committee, said yesterday his committee would try to establish a "yardstick" to determine the ability of local governments to co-operate financially in national flood defense. He made his statement after witnesses from Colorado, Kansas, Arkansas and Oklahoma testified their States were unable to meet provisions of the existing act.

The House passed and sent to the Senate yesterday a $21,596,481 appropriation bill to meet expenses of Congress and other legislative establishments in the fiscal year beginning July 1. The bill included the usual allowance of 20 cents a mile for travel between the members' homes and Washington for this session, a total of $171,000. This is the same travel allowance Congress voted itself for the special session.

Establishment of a market news service for field crops and vegetables in Georgia, Florida and Alabama at a cost of $25,000 in the 1938-39 fiscal year was recommended yesterday by the House Appropriations Committee. The item was included in the annual Agriculture Department supply bill at the request of Representative Green (Democrat) of Florida.

Hearings on the Pettengill bill to repeal the long and short haul clause of the interstate commerce act were closed yesterday by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee. Representative Pierce (Democrat), Oregon, ended them with a renunciation of the bill as "nefarious legislation." The long and short haul clause now prohibits a railroad from charging a lower rate for a long haul than for a shorter haul over the same route.

Calloway Moans Loss of 2 Quarts

Cab Calloway's moaning yesterday was just a little lower than usual—and rightly so.

The thief carried the whisky from the flat in his new leather valise, Cab told police. He valued the property at $25.

Rites in Afternoon For Mrs. Reynolds

Services for Mrs. Alice Reynolds, 72, wife of Fred W. Reynolds, who owned and operated the old Washington Inn, will be held at 2 p. m. today at her residence, 628 Webster street northwest. Burial will be in Washington Memorial Park Cemetery.

Mrs. Reynolds died Monday. She was born in Darby, Pa., and had lived here since 1900. She leaves a daughter, Miss Jennie Reynolds, of Washington, and a brother, John Reynolds, of Clifton Heights, Pa.

form of taxation it will propose to complete the District revenue bill.

Chairman King has said he favors restoring the income tax, which the House flatly rejected Monday for the second time, but District officials are afraid such action may result in a deadlock on the revenue measure.

The Commissioners, in proposing a return to the business privilege tax, will have the support of organized Washington businessmen who, while condemning the levy early in the session, told the House sub-committee on fiscal affairs they would prefer a modified levy to an income tax after the latter was written into the bill.

Hearings Probable.

It is probable the Senate District Committee will hold public hearings before deciding the issue.

The Citizens' Committee on Fair Taxation, of which Mrs. John Boyle, jr., is chairman, issued a statement last night that it "will carry the fight for a progressive income tax to the Senate and back to the House."

"Unless constructive action is taken,' the committee said, "the failure to approve the income tax plan will automatically mean an increase in the real property rate up to $1.90, as against the basic $1.50 rate.

"And the temptation to stop the gap with some form of sales tax is at once both obvious and dangerous."

Palmisano Corrects Vote.

The committee charged that the income tax proposal was "not debated on its merits" in the House Monday.

"For more than two hours on Monday only about 50 members were on the floor to hear the debate. The roll call, however, found 198 voting against the plan.

"If there is one thing proved by the vote on the income tax, it is the desperate need of the people of the District of Columbia for their own elected local government."

Chairman Palmisano, of the House District Committee, late yesterday arose in the House to correct the record with regard to his vote on the Smith motion to kill the income tax title.

While recorded as voting aye on the motion, he said he had voted no with the revenue sub-committee.

to carry forward the Federal road program "without interruption" until the next session of Congress. Cartwright protested to Representative Clarence Cannon (Democrat), of Missouri, Agriculture Department bill manager. House road bloc members will join Cartwright in his fight to provide funds already authorized for 1938.

Troubles on the wage-hour front were rendered more acute yesterday by a House Labor Committee split on a compromise bill reported by the sub-committee captained by Representative Robert Ramspeck (Democrat), of Georgia.

Although Chairman Mary T. Norton said a majority of her committee favored reporting a bill of some kind at this session, members were divided many ways as to method, and the House Rules Committee stood as an adamant barrier to conclusive House action.

New Row Flares.

Mrs. Norton was embarked on an effort to draft still another version of the controversial legislation after a letter from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, precipitated a new committee controversy.

Green reiterated demands for specific mimimum wages and administration of the law by the Justice Department. Some committeemen sided with Green, but Ramspeck insisted his own measure, providing a "weighted average" bottom for wages and a 48-hour "top" for hours, met the federation president's original recommendations to the committee.

The committee received a letter from E. L. Oliver, of Labor's Nonpartisan League, headed by John L. Lewis, urging action on the Ramspeck bill. Oliver said the bill "seems to contain all essentials for effective regulation" of wages and hours.

Ramspeck said he felt there was little hope of committeemen reaching a satisfactory agreement unless Democratic members met separately in an effort to work out their own solution—a course followed by his sub-committee.

Other leaders acknowledged their pessimism. It appeared certain that whatever bill was recommended by the labor committeeman, the Rules Committee would still flash a red light on House consideration. The Rules Committee is the only route open to the House floor, since Mrs. Norton has declared against the petition method.

Curtailed Federal highway appropriations, threatening another Administration upset, are the sequel of a fight waged early this session by the President to cut down on road authorizations.

Instead of scaling down the program to the $125,000,000 per year recommended by the President, the House Roads Committee has favorably reported a new authorization bill for 1940 and 1941, which proposes a total of $484,000,000 for the two years. Chairman Cartwright is seeking House right-of-way for it.

Follows His Advice.

But yesterday the Appropriations Committee followed the President's advice on 1939 outlays, and allotted only $93,000,000 for the next fiscal year. Cartwright indicated he would not raise an issue on 1939 funds until next session, but he did insist that authorizations for 1938 be complied with in the pending agricultural measure.

He voiced his views in a letter to Cannon, who moved to delay consideration of the roads item until later this week.

Cartwright told Cannon the bill now before the House leaves unappropriated the following amounts authorized for the 1938 fiscal year: $62,000,000 for regular Federal aid, $10,000,000 for secondary roads and $20,000,000 for grade-crossing eliminations—an additional total of $92,000,000.

"In addition," he wrote Cannon, "$2,500,000 authorized for public land highways for 1939, and at least $7,000,000 of the 1939 authorizations for forest highways, or a total of $9,500,000 of the 1939 road authorizations, should be appropriated at this session of Congress.

Less Than Normal Amounts.

"If this $92,000,000 (additional) of the 1939 authorizations and the $9,500,000 of the 1939 authorizations are appropriated at this session, I believe the road program of the Federal Government can be carried on without interruption until the next session of Congress. This would require an addition of $101,500,000 to the $100,000,000 which I understand is already in the Agriculture Department appropriation bill, making a total of $201,500,000 for public roads. This is less than the normal authorizations for roads for the fiscal year.

This is, I believe, the minimum amount which should be appropriated for roads at this session, to keep faith with the States and fulfill the contractual obligations of the Federal Government."

Leaders admit they have a delicate situation on their hands in heading off this new drive for roads funds, once the spending dike is opened by the Administration's $1,500,000,000 emergency relief program. They must ask more money for relief, and at the same time less money for roads, which involves a form of job relief.

Aside from the relief program still to be formulated, the only "must" jobs remaining before adjournment break are the regular departmental appropriation bills. Chairman Edward T. Taylor of the House Appropriations Committee said these were in "good shape" and could be cleaned up by May 15.

A MESSAGE TO MOTHERS WHOSE CHILDREN ARE GOING THROUGH THE Vital years
Are you unknowingly neglecting your children's diet during those VITAL YEARS of nine to sixteen? Science states that children need more calcium during those years than at any other time of life. Because calcium helps to build strong bones and sound teeth.
Ordinary meals do not provide enough calcium for the growing child . . . but pure, fresh milk is rich in this bone-building material.
Don't let your children run the risk of soft bones and poor teeth! Give them a quart a day of our Sealtest-approved milk. This wholesome milk has the scientific supervision of the Sealtest System of Laboratory Protection. Order from our milkman, ask at your favorite store or telephone us.
THE "VITAL YEARS" 9 to 16 are the Vital Years in a child's life. That is when bones and teeth are doing the most developing. Keep your children drinking milk because milk is the richest single food in bone-building material.

Health Officers Back Uniform Cancer Attack

Pneumonia and Trichinosis Studied at Last Session of Parley Here.

Methods of combating cancer, pneumonia and trichinosis, three deadly ills that beset Americans, were outlined yesterday at the thirty-sixth annual conference of State and Territorial Health Officers, ending its three-day session here.

The conference approved a recommendation of a special committee appointed by Surgeon General Thomas Parran, jr., of the United States Public Health Service, that every State and Territorial health department work for establishment by law of a division of cancer control within such department. It recommended further that a definite agency be established within the National Cancer Institute to cooperate with State and Territorial health authorities in cancer activities.

Senior Surgeon Joseph Mountin, of the Public Health Service, explained plans of the service for a study of pneumonia through five clinics in sections of the country where this disease is most prevalent. He explained $20,000 is available for this purpose, including diagnosis, typing and treatments.

Pneumonia Attack Planned.

Trichinosis, a muscular ailment caused by eating undercooked pork, could be wiped out in five years, according to Dr. Maurice C. Hall, chief of the division of zoology of the National Institute of Health, by adoption of a program of control designed to keep infected pork scraps from garbage fed to hogs. Studies by the public health service, Dr. Hall said, revealed that 17 per cent of 2,400 human diaphragms examined contained the trichinosis parasite. This, he said, was true in examinations after accidental death as well as in other hospital cases not suspected of trichinosis.

The cancer control program indorsed by the conference included training physicians in early diagnosis and treatment of the disease and establishments of adequate State cancer clinics, treatment centers and free microscopic diagnostic services with the co-operation of the medical profession. A model State law would be drawn up by the National Cancer Institute, which also would work out plans for distribution of radium to the several States.

In the attack on pneumonia, Dr. Mountin said a four-point program worked out by a committee appointed by Dr. Parran will be undertaken by the Public Health Service.

State Aid Promised.

"The complete program," he said, "embraces basic laboratory research, epidemiological studies, consultation service and training of professional personnel. Laboratory researches are being developed in bacteriology, serology and chemotherapy Attention is purposely directed to the other three elements of the program, since they involve participation on the part of State and local health agencies."

He said pneumonia appears in various forms and its causes are equally varied, and that its death rate differs in different sections of the country. In general, he said, the three regions of high mortality are the Colorado plateau, the Atlantic seaboard and the Appalachian highlands.

The committee, Dr. Mountin said, recommended that each State health department set up a special unit in pneumonia control "if anything more than diagnostic laboratory service is contemplated." The physician in charge, the committee sugested, should have had experience with pneumonia and special knowledge of clinical medicine, as applied to the disease.

"The Public Health Service," he said, "now in a small way is prepared to work with the States on a program for the control of pneumonia mortality, and at the same time assemble data that may serve to answer questions of fundamental importance."

Man Who Called Police to Restore Order Fined $10

Oscar H. Smith's respect for the law got him in trouble Saturday night. He was having a little party at his home, 2003 Twelfth street northwest, and as the evening wore on his guests became noisy.

Anxious to maintain order, the colored man reported the situation to the police. A scout car responded, but the only person it took was Oscar.

In Police Court yesterday, Oscar pleaded guilty to an intoxication charge and was fined $10.

cuffed to him. Five thousand persons swarmed in and around Grand Central Station, but Whitney remained composed.

When the big gate closed behind him he was taken to the administration building, fingerprinted, photographed and questioned.

He turned over $11.85 in cash to be deposited to his credit. Then the bath, and his number was stamped on the shoddy trousers, the shirt of dark gray prison bedticking, the heavy shoes, white socks.

The cell to wich Whitney was assigned is 4½ feet wide, 7 feet long, 6½ feet high. Stone walls are on three sides, in front a solid iron door with a narrow grating at the top.

There are vermin in the cell block. Warden Lawes said, and when the river rises the whole block gets damp. There is no plumbing in the block.

"I put men in that cell block only because I have to," Warden Lawes said. "The block was condemned 25 years ago. Two years ago money was appropriated for its demolition and $750,000 was appropriated for a new cell block. This money was later turned over to the World's Fair."

For the next ten days Whitney will be interviewed by half a dozen men to determine what his future will be in the prison. He may be assigned to dig ditches or load and unload cars, and may be assigned to clerical work.

For the first two weeks he may have no visitors. After that close relatives may visit him, he may receive and send mail which will be censored, and may spend $3 a week. His pay in prison may vary from 5 cents to 30.

Warden Lawes suggested that with Whitney's background of Groton and Harvard he might eventually land a job in the prison school. Pay for that would be 15 cents a day.

When Whitney was questioned as his pedigree was taken he smiled once. That was when he was asked if he could read and write.

"To what do you attribute your criminal actions?" he was asked.

"I have no criminal intent," he answered.

By the Associated Press.

H. G. Wellington, a governor of the New York Stock Exchange, told the Securities Commission yesterday that a partner in J. P. Morgan and Company had suggested as early as 1931 that Richard Whitney needed "a brake", put on his speculations.

Wellington testified at the commission's inquiry into the failure March 8 of Whitney's brokerage firm.

Wellington related that the late Thomas Cochran, a Morgan partner, approached him in 1931 with the suggestion that Wellington and Whitney merge their firms.

Gerhard A. Gesell, SEC attorney, asked:

"Was Cochran concerned with Whitney's reckless handling of money?"

"No, sir, Mr. Cochran thought it would be well to get some other partners in as a brake on his speculations."

Wellington testified that in 1933 he lent the former Stock Exchange president $110,000 and that the loan, which was unsecured, was repeatedly extended beyond its initial term of one month.

"I think I began to wonder whether my friend, Mr. Whitney, was not imposing a little on my friendship," Wellington said.

He testified the loan was finally repaid April 15, 1937.

mulated by the general executive board or a general convention.

Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, yesterday called on the Federal Government to creat jobs for 13,000,000 unemployed and thereby start the creation of purchasing power.

Faction Favors Return.

It is known that a large faction in Dubinsky's union favors return to the A. F. of L. Dubinsky recently blamed John L. Lewis for the breakdown in negotiations for an agreement between the C. I. O. and the A. F. of L.

The C. I. O. housing committee of which Dubinsby was named chairman was one of four created by the C. I. O. to study major problems confronting the Nation. The others and their chairmen are legislative, Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America; social security, Charles P. Howard, president of the A. F. L.'s International Typographical Union, and unemployment, James B. Cirey, president of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers.

Two C. I. O. vice chairmen were elected, Hillman and Philip Murray, chairman of the steel workers organizing committee.

The burly labor leader spoke before leaders of 39 C. I. O. unions at the headquarters of the United Mine Workers.

"The C. I. O. and the unemployed do not want leaf-raking jobs," he said. "They want houses, slum clearance, schools, hospitals, flood control, education and sound recreation.

"Unemployment has become the most serious problem in our national life. A realistic remedy must be applied and applied now. Wishful thinking needs to be replaced by well planned action. Jobs in private industry cannot be created merely by sitting and wishing there would be jobs.

"Such jobs can be created under the leadership of the Federal Government, if it will start the creation of purchasing power. It is time that the Government face the facts of unemployment. Hand-to-mouth measures are not enough.

"A well-planned, long-time program needs to be envisioned, a program by which our Nation will be enriched in times of depression when the Government must provide jobs."

Talking to newspapermen after his speech, Lewis said that the number of C. I. O. unions had increased from 32 to 39, and that all of them had preserved their wage scales "despite concerted attempts to lower American standards.

At yesterday's meeting, Joseph Curran, head of the National Maritime Union, made a bitter attack on the United States Maritime Commission, accusing it of carrying on "a union-breaking campaign that outstrips the campaign carried on by the industrialists."

He said that Chairman Emory S. Land had told him the commission was "taking no dictation from any union," that it had "deliberately chosen to ignore the Wagner act."

Curran said the National Labor Relations Board probably would bring a test case soon to determine if the Wagner act applies to ships owned by the Government and leased to private operators, as, for example, the steamship Algic. He said the commission has refused to permit collective bargaining elections aboard these vessels.

The Storm Clears.

The District Medical Society does not admit that the letter addressed by its president to the Group Health Association, contains a new offer. In the light of recent events that view is not likely to be accepted by the G. H. A. But whether a concession or not, the letter gives welcome sign that the storm overshadowing local health questions may soon clear.

Virtually repeating its assurances recently expressed to the Washington Committee for Co-operative Medical Service, the medical society informs the G. H. A. that it stands ready to co-operate with any "lay group" in devising a plan to provide medical care for persons of low income. It stipulates only that the plan be legal, ethical and sound economically. There seems to be considerable ground for hope that the G. H. A. will not consider these reservations a bar to co-operation.

Indeed, the only principal difference now separating the doctors and the health co-operative would seem to be the matter of income restrictions. G. H. A. members range from low to high paid Federal employes; the medical society believes this inclination toward the elimination of substantial fees for which doctors may compete will injure the profession.

Reconciliation on this point may lie in some variation of the "Brattleboro Plan" which a committee of local doctors, in company with liberal medical groups throughout the country, has been studying for some time. However, solution of this detail as well as of the entire problem of medical costs can come only through honest co-operation of physicians and laymen. Washington's physicians have publicly declared their willingness to work toward this end. It now lies with sponsors of the group health movement to put aside all bitterness, largely engendered by misunderstanding, and meet them at least half way.

A Great Voice Stilled.

Feodor Challapin was by common consent the greatest basso of our times. He had a voice of protean proportions, unmatched for its range, power, flexibility and what, for want of a better word, must be described as sheer gusto. For into his singing Challapin threw all the force of his virile tempestuous personality.

But Challapin was much more than a singer. He could also lay claim to being one of the most consummate actors. That is why he managed so successfully to overcome the stereotyped artificialities of opera and give the roles he sang a living quality which is all too often lacking in the musical drama.

This quality was particularly evident in his great Mephistopheles and Figaro by which, perhaps, he will best be remembered. To the many thousands in every part of the world who had the privilege and delight of witnessing and hearing his performances in opera and on the concert stage it will be a matter of genuine regret that his great voice has now been forever stilled.

Deserved Rebuke.

Senator McKellar met a fitting defeat in his attempt to return first, second and third class postmasterships to what Senator Norris called the "political pie counter." Unsatisfied by that good work, however, the Senate also passed a bill which would definitely remove these positions from the grasp of spoilsmen. It is true that the measure in question provides only for eight-year appointments, but that is a desirable protection against "freezing into office" about 14,000 or more postmasters, most of whom owe their positions to political pull.

The Ramspeck bill which has already passed the House provides that incumbent postmasters by passing a non-competitive examination may receive the benefits of civil service tenure. As amended and passed by the Senate, the present incumbents would not have to submit to examination to retain their positions, but neither would they be given a life tenure.

The action taken, followed by a vote to consider Senator Hatch's long-pending bill banning the participation of any Federal employe in a political convention as delegate or alternate, is significant evidence that the Senate is really aroused to the need for eradicating the spoils system.

Charges made during the debate that a vote against the reorganization bill indicated opposition to extension of the civil service system were indignantly denied by several Senators who professed sympathy with efforts to safeguard the Government's personnel system.

The very fact that the Ramspeck bill was amended carefully with a view to making it acceptable to that body indicates that the Senate is not indulging in a mere gesture. A majority is earnestly trying to establish the merit system for postmasters on a permanent basis which would remove the uncertainities of relying upon an executive order such as the one now in force.

Our City Council.

Washington owes a debt of gratitude to the courageous members of the House District Committee who led the fight for the local tax bill. Representatives Nichols and Dirksen presented the issue clearly and convincingly. The bill which they sponsored had been carefully prepared during three months of work. If it had been considered on its merits, their efforts would undoubtedly have been successful.

The committee wrote its bill on the basis of what would be best for Washington. Additional revenue must be found. After canvassing all possible sources, it was decided that a moderate income tax would distribute the added burden of municipal expenses the most equitably.

The business privilege tax had been discredited both on grounds of inequity and inadequacy. Sales taxes were properly put aside because of the heavy proportionate burden they put on the poor. Property taxes are already too high. The intangible property tax is both unsound in principle and discriminatory against the people honest enough to pay it. Conscientious legislators studying this situation naturally concluded that the income tax is the most reasonable approach to Washington's revenue problem.

When the issue came to a vote, however, the majority ignored these realistic considerations. Objections to the bill had been satisfactorily answered. Its proponents had clearly won the debate. But the attendance had been poor. As the roll call began a majority of Representatives knowing little about the background of the bill rushed in to defeat its most vital section.

The House was acting as city council for Washington. As such it should have considered the bill on its merits as a local revenue measure. Instead, the opposition arguments were virtually all devoted to the effect this bill might have on certain constituents of Congressmen. Representatives Smith and Lewis led the fight as spokesmen for Government employes living in nearby Virginia and Maryland who would have been required to pay the tax. Presumably this was the most damaging objection, although it had been clearly pointed out that the tax was patterned after similar levies in Virginia, Maryland and various other States.

Last year the House defeated the proposed income tax for Washington because it would have applied to Congressmen's salaries. As a result, those salaries were exempted under the present bill. That very concession, however, gave rise to complaints of an invidious distinction between members of Congress and their constituents who happen to be employed by the Government in Washington. Apparently no rational tax bill for the District can be drawn without encountering political opposition that has no real bearing upon the local revenue problem.

The vote would have reflected less seriously upon the judgment of the House if it had offered other sound revenue proposals to take the place of the income tax. As matters stand, it has merely shunted responsibility for District revenue legislation upon the Senate. Unless that body decides to reinstate the income levy, in the face of House opposition, it will probably find it necessary to propose either a larger Federal contribution or a sales tax.

As Representative Nichols pointed out, the refusal of the House to meet its responsibility as a city council for the District raises a much larger problem than the lack of revenue. He said:

> This convinces me that there has got to be some change in the method of governing the District of Columbia. Congress today proved that it is influenced by its prejudices rather than any deliberate judgment as to what is best for the District in passing on local legislation.

That keen observation will stand as a formidable challenge to Congress until Washington is granted a real government of its own. Conscientious legislators can scarcely be expected to give their time to District bills year after year if the most vital of these are to be torn to pieces for reasons not even remotely connected with the local welfare. Mr. Nichols will earn the gratitude of a helpless community if he will devote himself to this larger task of strengthening the District government as diligently as he worked for the tax bill.

A Right Not To Be Flouted.

The United States Supreme Court has set aside the conviction of a Negro found guilty of murder in Kentucky because the "systematic and arbitrary exclusion" of Negroes from jury lists in that State constitutes a denial of constitutional rights. Under those circumstances the court concluded that the defendant had not been given a fair trial.

This decision is on all fours with the one handed down by the court some years ago in the case of one of the Scottsboro defendants. The response in that case, so far as the Alabama authorities were concerned, was immediate and praiseworthy. Gov. Graves declared that in Alabama the decision would be accepted and upheld "in letter and in spirit." It has been. Some other States which had practiced exclusion of Negroes from juries also took the cue.

Apparently Kentucky was remiss in its duty in this particular. That State continued indefensible racial discriminations. But the intent of the Supreme Court to crack down on such practices which do violence to democratic principles and constitutional rights is now unmistakable. Once again the highest tribunal of the land is living up to its tradition as a bulwark of American liberties.

If States still excluding Negroes from jury service expect to have their law enforcement efforts upheld in the Federal courts, they had better get into step with this liberal interpretation.

For Railroad Recovery.

Last October when the I. C. C. granted limited increases in freight rates on certain basic commodities, the tone of the decision encouraged the hope that applications for further increases would meet with a favorable reception. Yet when the roads later applied for a 15 per cent general advance, the commission disappointed their expectations by authorizing only limited, inadequate increases much below the amounts asked for.

Now the roads have met with another disappointment in the report submitted by the Splawn committee, which has little to offer in the way of positive recommendations for dealing with the immediate railway crisis.

Moreover, the President in transmitting the report to Congress refrained from passing judgment on its recommendations, leaving Congress to struggle with the problem as best it may.

The report itself, while much more helpful and informative than the summaries indicate, deals chiefly with long-range rehabilitation proposals. Thus it suggests the creation of a Federal transportation authority to study plans for eliminating waste and aiding consolidation. It also urges amendments to the interstate commerce act to broaden the powers of the I. C. C. with respect to the pooling of earnings and approval of unification plans.

As Henry Bruere, of the general advisory group for railroads, points out, however, these long-range plans are not adapted to the needs of the present emergency. Neither, for that matter, is the short-range recommendation that Government loans for the purchase of railroad equipment be provided and that the RFC be empowered to make advances without certification by the I. C. C. that borrowing roads can meet fixed charges. The roads whose credit is good do not need assistance of this kind. Other carriers already struggling with the problem of how to meet fixed charges would only be further weakened financially by increasing their indebtedness.

With Class I roads showing an operating deficit last February for the first time since 1921, it is obvious that they are in immediate need of more revenue if additional bankruptcies are to be avoided. Increased earnings from business revival are something to be hoped for, but immediate relief must come from further freight rate increases—which are unlikely in view of the attitude of the I. C. C.—or from reductions in expenditures.

The scaling of fixed charges is a time-consuming process. Moreover, the Splawn report states that these charges "constitute a comparatively modest return on only a part of the legitimate investment in railroad property." Reduction of fixed charges, although much to be desired because of the difficulties which they create in times of depression, are "not a cure for basic railroad ills."

The roads are, therefore, virtually compelled to look to a reduction of operating expenses for the immediate financial relief that is so imperative. In 1937 their total operating expenses amounted to slightly more than $3,000,000,000, while wage and salary disbursements, mostly chargeable to operating expenses, reached nearly $2,000,000,000. The Splawn report notes that the advances of last year added about $130,000,000 to the wage bill on the 1936 level of employment, and raised the level of wage rates above that prevailing in 1932 before employes consented to a temporary reduction of 10 per cent.

Pointing out that the roads are now engaged in conferences with their employes to determine whether a similar temporary reduction in wages is possible, the Splawn committee concludes that "such a wage deduction would be a means of very definite and positive financial relief to the carriers." "In this respect," the report continues, "it differs from increases in freight rates or passenger fares, the actual results from which are always problematical, owing to the possible effect on traffic." Although these remarks leave little room for doubt as to the committee's favorable attitude toward proposals for wage reductions, it avoids making a positive recommendation by noting that the railway labor act provides a mechanism through which negotiations between the roads and their employes may be carried on with the aid of the National Mediation Board.

The failure of the Federal regulatory authorities and of the Administration to grapple with the present crisis emphasizes the importance of the conference which will convene this week in Washington to discuss problems of the industry as seen by management and representatives of labor. The lack of official guidance will not be without its compensations if it encourages reduction of labor costs, not merely through revision of rates, but also by modification of union rules which preclude flexible systems of payment based on hours of actual work.

Guess We Better Prime It Again.

Defeat Of The Reorganization Bill

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The polyglot anti-Administration crew has had so precious little to gloat over during the lean years since 1933, that the editors of The Post may be reluctantly indulged their shortsighted jubilation over the narrow defeat of the reorganization bill. But for many citizens the action of the House of Representatives seems so glaring a display of pettiness, ineptitude and blind refusal to consider legislative proposals on their merits that the whole affair is rather a cause for gloom.

The Post's profound observations of European affairs have certainly taught it that irresponsible antics by legislative bodies have aroused popular disgust with representative processes, thus breeding authoritarian governments. None, therefore, should rejoice except the authoritarians who have a real interest in seeing the Federal Government made as contemptible and incapable as possible.

As a student of government, The Post must certainly realize—as a long succession of Presidents before the present incumbent have realized—that a more efficient organization of the executive branch of the government is extremely desirable, is long overdue, and is becoming more needed with the passing months. If The Post can climb for a moment from off its Olympus, it must also realize that not only is the President the proper one to do the job of reorganizing but that reorganization will never take place except through executive action.

Why, then, is The Post so pleased with this latest defeat (and how extraordinarily close it was) of a sensible plan to make the Federal Government more capable of fulfilling its duties, although you had previously declared yourself fairly satisfied with the bill as amended? Your editorial of April 10, gives the reply: A slap at the President's prestige and leadership is more precious than good government—certainly neither a fairminded, nor an encouraging, nor a worthy attitude.

"Confusion — Ineffectiveness — Waste—Inefficiency" constitute the "perfect indictment" of the present Administration, says The Post. So The Post is happy that the House votes to perpetuate the evil. Or is it? Some explaining of a rational sort would be in order.

The Post would have its readers believe that the President has been overwhelmed by a great avalanche of popular indignation. Fierce blasts from dispeptic editors, unreasoning agitation by minority pressure groups, and rigged flood of telegrams evidence "a tidal wave of dissatisfaction and distrust." Indeed! Choicer yet, "the American people have at last weighed the quality of Mr. Roosevelt's leadership in the balance and found it wanting." Fortunately, informed public opinion isn't so easily manufactured. Evidently the writer of these hopeful words had not read the results of Mr. Gallup's poll published in the same issue. The newspapers, Father Coughlin, et al., still fondly pretend to represent public opinion. As if November, 1936, did not give a thumping lesson in circumspection and humility.

"The Representatives remained representative," chortles The Post. Representative of what? Bureaucratic intrigue, partisan politics, groundless hysteria, ingrained inertia, personal spleen, frightened hate, servility before pressure groups? Partly, so some suspect. Certainly, at any rate, not of reasonable statesmanship, or of a high capacity to legislate in the national interest. A sincere opposition to the lamented court plan is understandable on intelligent grounds—but not the vicious hue and cry against executive reorganization. (This is not denying the sincerity of a portion of the opposition.) Presidential indiscretion is hardly a sufficient explanation.

The Post points out that similar parliamentary action in Great Britain would have been followed by the resignation of the cabinet and its chief. "If the American system were that of a truly responsive popular government, Franklin D. Roosevelt would today be out of office and the opposition would be in power." So says The Post, in a show of wishful thinking. So the tiny handful of Republicans in Congress would now be running the Government! The Post ought to be more balanced.

As a matter of fact, party responsibility in a country like Great Britain would have made extremely unlikely the turning out of the party head on such an issue as administrative reorganization. The Post, moreover, fails to point out that the President would have had the opportunity to dissolve Congress and appeal to the country; and there's not much doubt that his shabby opposition would find out how woefully self-deluded it has been.

Having routed the President from office, however, The Post incongruously abandons its nostalgia for the estimable parliamentary system and jumps back to the good American way. It would have none of the foreign centralization of power, none of the foreign party cohesion and responsibility, none of the foreign strong executive and its concomitant subordination of legislature, court and local government—and the possibility that the President would be in power much longer than the span of eight years. Under the parliamentary system, the New Deal would now be much beyond its present point of advancement; and Franklin Roosevelt would still be at the helm, "Semi-Socialism" (sic)—that's the rub.

What are the great American "fundamentals" to which The Post wants the Administration to return? The term has been so loosely flung about (ask Thurman Arnold) and so much abused that you will pardon a reminder of Dr. Johnson's famous definition of "patriotism." Let he Post elucidate a bit.

No one is asking the legislative branch to abdicate its constitutional function—not even the President, indignant opposition howls to the contrary notwithstanding. But no objective-thinking person wants Congress "to reassert its authority" (sic) by petulantly preventing the President from putting his branch of the Government into efficient working order—which amounts to a sort of back-handed meddling by the legislative into its co-ordinate consitutional executive branch.

To hail the House vote as a revolt against unwarranted executive domination is only to confuse the issue. To compare the Presidential attempt to reorganize the executive (his constitutional responsibility) with the late so-called "court-packing" venture is again to throw up a dust screen.

In sum, what might have been an enlightened analysis of Friday's rout turned out to be a conglomerate of a few plausible ideas and a lot of muddled, fatuous and irritable exultation. More thinking with the brain instead of with the emotions would make The Post into the sort of intelligent opposition organ that I suppose it aspires to be.

Kennedy's Ruling.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The policy recently formulated by Joseph P. Kennedy in regard to presentations at the Court of St. James's is an extremely amusing item of news.

He has ruled that it would be undemocratic to present American women at the British court who were actuated by a desire to climb the social ladder. Our Ambassador therefore decided to limit the annual presentation to those women who either belonged to the official set or who were residing in England.

This policy is very amusing because Mr. Kennedy does not clearly grasp the distinction between aristocratic and democratic procedure. He thinks that to restrict the presentation to a specific class is democratic. We are often told that England and the United States are democracies. It is known that in a democracy there is really no distinction of class. Still our Ambassador is afraid that these poor ladies are climbers. It is evident that somebody is badly mixed up.

The Austrian Plebiscite.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Who does Hitler think he is fooling? His plebiscite of yesterday was a joke. I fully agree with the British people that it was meaningless and not worth the paper it was written on, something like his promises.

The educated Austrian people who would have voted against him were either thrown into concentration camps, fled the country or committed suicide. The only ones left were those weak-minded and weak-willed people who were afraid to vote in the negative, or on the other hand, thought that by voting yes, they would help themselves politically or financially.

If Hitler was so popular, why didn't he allow the Austrian people to vote as they intended to before he got his propaganda and trumpet blowing again? He knew he would be defeated.

The Divine Lord never meant one man to have such power as Hitler has brought unto himself by means of the bayonet. MRS. E. M.

Jefferson On Economy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the interesting article on Thomas Jefferson by Ben Bane Dulaney, which appeared in The Post of April 10 Jefferson is made to say, speaking of his great-great-great-grandson: "Hey Ranny, come over here and see what they're doing to me in Washington."

Mr. Dulaney might have made Jefferson add: "They are going to spend $3,000,000 for a memorial of some sort in my honor. Now, Ranny, with the country in the frightful condition it is in and with the Government's need of every penny it can scrape up to meet the deficit, which has already passed the $4,000,000,000 mark, the spending of $3,000,000, or any amount, on a memorial for me strikes me as stupid. I have done very well for nearly 200 years without a memorial and I am willing to wait patiently for one until the country can afford, without inconvenience, to erect one to me."

Or, to quote Mr. Jefferson himself on the subject of "economy," I select one of his many writings and sayings on the subject: "A rigid economy of the public contributions, and absolute interdiction of all useless expenses, will go far toward keeping the Government honest and unoppressive." SEE BEE.

Ad Hominem Attacks.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I see former President Hoover reaches the front page when he says, "The people are scared of the New Deal."

I wonder what Mr. Hoover figures the people were scared of in 1929. Not that he was any more to blame for what happened then than Mr. Roosevelt is to blame for what is happening now, but so long as the average intelligence remains that of a 12-year-old child we may expect to continue to hear outbursts of this nature from adult minds.

But, let's not forget.

Against Silk Boycott.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am a believer in "buy American." However, we cannot confine trading to ourselves—we must give consideration to business relations with countries who have been valued customers for a long period of time.

Japan has been a valuable client of ours. Her purchases have aggregated hundreds of millions of dollars. To indorse a boycott of hosiery and garments made from Japanese silk by our workers seems most unfair. Japan's share of each pair of hosiery is less than 10 cents. Chinese silk is also used extensively, consequently, her product would be boycotted.

Some people believe that the present equipment used for silk could be turned over for lisle and rayon hosiery. A large part of the finer gauge machinery does not lend itself to the manufacturing of silk stockings out of yarns heavier than the fine ones. M. M. THOMAS.

Contest.

MY young daughter was biting her fingernails in spite of a much-cherished first manicure. She was also driving me crazy with requests for synonyms. She was working on her entry for a prize contest. Finally I yelled, "Shut up! Don't you know it's always some other person who wins the prize?" She looked at me insulted, but still among the Believers In Awards, I said no more, ashamed of my rude outburst. But I could never rid myself of a skepticism inculcated long ago.

* * *

It had to do with a doll house. Offered, no doubt, by the cooking editor of a Boston newspaper, back when I was 7 and rose each morning believing that anything might come true! The doll house had a family of enchanting dolls, ten rooms, including a bathroom, and a door bell that rang! To crown it all, there was a parlor maid and a cook in the tiny kitchen. Each day the paper carried some new pictures of its miniature glories, some new tale of the lively doll family's doings. For weeks I could scarcely wait for 4 o'clock and the newsboy's arrival with the latest installment.

That doll house was to be given to the little girl who wrote the best letter about the use she would make of it, should she win the treasure.

At first I never thought of trying. The sample letters published there by big girls who could spell, and the whole affair was, in my mind, part and parcel with the lovely legends like the "Snow Queen" and "Water Babies," something that came true only in your "supposin'" imagination, when you lay with your eyes shut trying to go to sleep at night.

* * *

But finally I noticed that most of the doll-house episodes dealt with cooking, recipes, food. So I got my hopes up. For by hanging around our kitchen and pestering Ellen, our dour Nova Scotian cook, I had picked up a lot of cooking ability before my time. She must have believed in domestic duties for girl children.

Anyway, my plan took shape and I laid it before Ellen. I was to write a letter about her Saturday baking, put it in doll terms, and penned on some of her elegant Christmas stationery with the blue forget-me-nots in the corner; and I would accompany it by a real little chocolate layer cake made by me under her supervision.

The letter when completed was beautifully stilted with her dictated phrases, while the cake, baked in the lids of three baking-powder cans, turned out a darling. How old Ellen managed to deliver the cake—if she ever did—I don't know, but I was sure that once the newspaper people ate that cake the doll house would be mine. In fact, so far as I was concerned, it was mine from the moment I spread the last glossy layer of chocolate icing.

* * *

The day the award was to be announced I patrolled our front flagstone path from porch down to the high iron gate for an hour before the paper boy could be expected. But I was afraid he might come early with the doll house. I envisioned him as arriving with it on his Flying Dutchman paper wagon, two other urchins at the sides steadying it. The waiting was all but unbearable.

Of course, he was later than usual that day. The drooping cones of the lilac blooms were beginning to grow almost gray in the fading light when at last I spied him and ran down the last few paces to meet him. He had no doll house on his wagon, but I realized immediately that that was because it was too large. "It will have to come on a dray," I told myself. As I reached him he asked me brightly, "And what will you have today?"

Oh, so he was excited also about my prize! I could only swallow with delight. Then he added, "Will it be a Transcript or a Traveller that you'll be wanting to read?"

My heart dropped down dead. So he was only asking me which paper I wished. I answered dully, "The one my father always takes." I somehow knew then that my dream was over. I hardly needed to go crouch behind the big elm and spread the sheets to see the picture of that lucky, lucky girl who had won my doll house. Yet there she was with her smug 12-year-old letter, and her condescending grin. I took a twig and jabbed her eyes out.

* * *

Then I rose and hid the ruined paper behind a clump of bushes, almost buried it. I could hardly eat my supper that evening for starting guiltily whenever my father fretted about "what in thunder had become of the Transcript." L. W.

Drinking Drivers.

After exhaustive study and tests at the Boston City Hospital, Dr. Sydney Selesnick deposes and says: "Alcoholic intoxication in the biologic sense without any gross manifestations of drunkenness can produce sufficient interference with psychomotor activity and neuromuscular co-ordination to render such an affected individual a potential menace."

Which is the doctor's way of saying that if you have been drinking, even though you are not drunk, you have no business driving a car.

The Case Of Mooney.

JUST TO KEEP the record straight, I want to nail the implication contained in an editorial in the San Francisco Daily News that I argued that Tom Mooney's personality and his political views should be weighed against him in the consideration of his demand for a pardon. I wrote nothing of the kind, and I insist, with the News, that neither his egotism nor his devotion to a political system which certainly would jail and probably would kill a man for holding and agitating hostile political views may be considered in this case.

PEGLER

Moreover, I wrote that in refusing to pardon a man whose guilt for years has been clouded by doubt merely because he is politically disagreeable, California has descended to the level of Mooney's spiritual home, which certainly is Moscow, and I still insist that if Mooney were sincere and consistent, far from objecting to a course of treatment which conforms with the Russian practice which he so fervently admires, he should rejoice that in one individual case, at least, California had seen the light. He should even go so far as to regret that instead of executing him for his political beliefs and advocacy, as would have happened in parallel circumstances in Russia, California choked up and sent him to prison instead

• • • •

NOR DO I AGREE that a story about Tom Mooney, based on a personal interview, should avoid giving an impression of his personality and of the views which he expressed. For a mere discussion of the history of his case it is not necessary to see Tom Mooney at all. That may be found in the record, and, moreover, the outrage against justice and the inherent danger to the liberties of other Americans have been denounced so often and so ably that, like the atrocity of Adolf Hitler, they are generally admitted.

When a reporter goes to visit a celebrity he is expected to give an impression of the man, and in Mooney's case it certainly was of interest to note that he is as egotistical as an actor, that he expressed no human sympathy for the 5,000 other prisoners in San Quentin, with the exception of a labor dynamiter, and that not once, of his own initiative, did he mention Warren Billings. I stand corrected on the point that Billings was not technically a codefendant, but the correction is only technical. They were charged with the same job and Billings is no less persecuted than Mooney.

I refrained from quoting Mooney on the subject of his fellow prisoners and still do for the sake of his own peace. But the only sympathy that he could spare for anyone but himself was expressed for Jim McNamara, the convicted dynamiter of the Los Angeles Times, and another prisoner in the Times case of whose name I am not positive, not remembering the details of that slaughter and the ensuing prosecutions.

• • • •

MY STORY was not court testimony and was not restricted by the rules of evidence and pertinence, and it undoubtedly is a matter of interest to the reader that this man who correctly rails at California for political persecution frankly admires a form of government which not only practices political persecution but avows it.

It is argued that political dissenters in Russia are not punished for their dissenting beliefs but for political activities in the furtherance of those beliefs. But that merely argues that in Russia dissenting belies must be kept secret because expression of them would constitute political activity. Mooney's personality and political beliefs are important elements of the story of Mooney the person, and they have been ignored for fear that they would wrongly be held against him by the courts and the public. If the courts and the democracy of the people are no better than that, that is too bad, but his personality and beliefs remain what they are, nevertheless.

As for the neglect of Warren Billings and the glorification of Tom Mooney, I call attention to the fact that the "Free Tom Mooney" movement is an industry with international connections, whereas there is no "Free Warren Billings" movement at all. It is understood that if Mooney goes free Billings does, too, but they have suffered equally and yet Billings is a forgotten man. The reason is to be found in Mooney's love of publicity and his hammy vanity and in the organization which shares his political beliefs.

Politically and intellectually Mooney runs with those who would destroy the American form of government by force and violence, and if he himself plainly indicates this why is it wrong to communicate his position to the public to which he appeals?

Lindbergh's Successor.

Your correspondent has become air minded. Or maybe it's air "half-minded."

• • • •

Not that his initiation was particularly reassuring. There was that experience of the plane turning back in the fog to its base after being only a half-hour out on the way down to Miami. But this is a story of the return.

• • • •

The unexpected is what happens in the air. Happens isn't quite the word. You zoom right into the unexpected.

• • • •

In this case it was a matter of out of the frying pan into the blizzard.

• • • •

We had boarded the plane at Miami on a flawless tropical morning. Temperature around 80. What a trip it was! . . . up to the last hour! That flight through the great fleecy sun-colored clouds, the Alps of the sky as Kit Carson called them!

• • • •

• • • •

Stop at Jacksonville, Savannah, Charleston and Raleigh in what seemed like mere half-hour jumps, with the plane landing as lightly as a bird. "Beautiful," said Carson. "You can't beat it," said I.

• • • •

At Washington it was little overcast and cool. We made some crack about Northern weather. "Wait'll you get to New York," said somebody. "It's 30 and snowing up there." "Ridiculous," said Carson. "Absurd," said I.

• • • •

We hit it around New Brunswick, N. J. "Snow," said a passenger, pointing to the white ground. "Snow," agreed Carson. "Snow," I said simply.

• • • •

At Princeton the plane tilted and began to make wide circles. The steward explained that another plane was coming in at Newark and, on account of the visibility and storm, our ship was awaiting word to proceed. It was snowing hard now and getting dark. "Exquisite," said Carson. "Shut up," said I.

• • • •

After what seemed a long time the plane straightened out. The ground grew whiter as we neared Newark. The snow grew heavier. We couldn't distinguish the ground through it, and it was much darker now. "Did you say something?" asked Carson. "No. Did you?" "No."

• • • •

Everything was white now. Carson was particularly white. (I was an ultra-alabaster.) Then there was a slight bump—and we were down! The worst storm of the winter was raging. All planes had been grounded.

• • • •

"I was afraid for a few minutes we were going to turn back," said Carson.

"I was afraid we were not," said I, buttoning my ulster, and arranging my emergency earlaps, and resigning myself to the vagaries of Northern weather.

Impending Naval Race Finds Designers Stressing Armor And Compartmentation; Japan's Attitude Unsettling.

By Joseph H. Baird.

The "gods of the copybook maxims"—as Rudyard Kipling called those troublesome little deities of truth who persistently reappear despite attempts to down them—again are mounting their thrones in the world's war offices and admiralties.

"Wars are won or lost by the doughboy." "The battleship is the backbone of the fleet." Such phrases are being heard again from generals and admirals these days after two postwar decades in which the "new school" of military and naval thought was consigning the older fighting arms to the discard in favor of tanks, gas, aviation, submarines and speedy destroyers.

Particularly has the battleship come to the fore of naval attention in recent weeks as every sea power in the world begins a new building race in super-dreadnaughts.

U. S. Enters Race Just Behind Britain.

THE UNITED STATES NAVY enters the new race in capital ships slightly behind Great Britain and just ahead of Japan and Germany, with France and Italy following in that order. According to the latest data compiled by the United States Navy Department, the relative ranking of the leading naval powers in capital ships is as follows:

| Nation. | Built. No. | Tons. |
|---|---|---|
| Great Britain | 15 | 474.750 |
| United States | 15 | 464.300 |
| Japan | 9 | 272.070 |
| Germany | 5 | 56.000 |
| France | 6 | 140.595 |
| Italy | 4 | 94.488 |

| | Building and Appropriated for. No. | Tons. | Total! No. | Tons. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Great Britain | 5 | 175.000 | 20 | 649.750 |
| United States | 2 | 70.000 | 17 | 534.300 |
| Japan | | | 9 | 272.070 |
| Germany | 5 | 157.000 | 10 | 213.000 |
| France | 3 | 96.500 | 9 | 237.095 |
| Italy | 4 | 140.000 | 8 | 234.488 |

In the American program it is fairly safe to count the three additional capital ships now being asked of Congress. Passage of the authorization measure seems virtually certain. Their construction would increase America's first-line sea power to 20 ships with a total tonnage of 639,300 if the latest trio should be confined to 35,000 tons each. But as Admiral William D. Leahy has recently plainly indicated that they will be larger than the Washington Conference type, it is likely that the total tonnage may be around 669,300, or slightly more than that of Great Britain under its officially announced program.

It is reliably understood, however, that the British, alarmed over growing threats to their interests and prestige both on the continent and in the Far East, soon will undertake a second program of five battleships. If so, this again will place the historic "mistress of the seas" far in the lead.

JAPAN is the great enigma in the field of naval construction: Tokyo declined to subscribe to the clause of the London Treaty of 1916 providing for exchange of information among the naval powers as to their projected building. More recently it refused pointedly to answer Secretary of State Hull's inquiry as to the truthfulness of reports that it was carrying out, or contemplated, a secret building program of super-dreadnaughts. Hence it is confidently assumed both here and in London that the reports were true. Little factual information exists, however, as to the exact type of vessels the Japanese are planning, although they are believed to be well above the Washington tonnage limitation.

Although for diplomatic reasons no statement of this sort would be supported by the Navy Department, it is obvious that America's future naval building will be determined to a far greater extent by Japanese than by British construction. Frequent rumors of an Anglo-American naval entente are consistently denied by the State Department and White House and there is no reason to believe that any such document exists. Nevertheless, the exchange of letters between former Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Norman H. Davis, American delegate to the London Naval Conference of 1936, at the close of the abortive meeting, made it plain that neither nation would resent any naval construction which the other deemed necessary. One might go further and say that each new British naval program is greeted with subdued satisfaction in both the Navy and State Deparments here.

No particular concern is felt here over the building programs of the continental powers, viewed as individual nations. The United States has no major quarrels with any of them. Nevertheless, there appears to be a tendency to watch closely the combined building of the "Fascist bloc," as such. It is perhaps significant that Admiral Leahy, in his recent testimony before a House committee, when presenting comparative battleship figures for the United States and other naval powers, included at the end of his table en bloc the total of ships and tonnage for "Italy, Japan and Germany."

NAVAL DESIGNERS are entering the new building race with little save theory and sham-battle practice to guide them in making their ships more powerful and deadly. There has been no important naval engagement since Jutland, during the World War. And the 15-year "battleship holiday" which followed the Washington Naval Conference has prevented any construction of capital ships by the three leading naval powers—the United States, Great Britain and Japan—save a few vessels already projected at the time the treaty was signed.

Naturally, in view of world political conditions and the resurgence of naval rivalry, every admiralty is guarding the details of its projected battleships with more than normal jealousy. Specifications of the two new American battleships now under construction have not been made public and may never be.

Along very generalized lines, however, it is safe to predict some of the changes and innovations which should make the capital ships now under construction both here and in Great Britain more powerful than anything afloat.

Probably there will be very little new in the main batteries of the vessels. They are expected to carry 16-inch guns, as do the Maryland, Colorado and West Virginia, the last United States battleships to be completed under the Washington Treaty. For some years an argument raged in the Navy Department between the proponents of 14 and 16 inch guns. Both have the same range—about 15 miles. The 16-inch gun has the advantage of hurling a larger and more powerful shell which inflicts greater damage on its target. However, the 14-inch type utilizes less of the ship's total displacement and so leaves more to be devoted to armor plate and engines, giving it greater protection and speed. When warships were limited by treaty to 35,000 tons, this factor was important. Abrogation of the tonnage limitation of the London Treaty, however, removes that argument for the 14-inch gun and there is no doubt that the 16-inch type will be the minimum standard of the future.

Antiaircraft Defense Stressed In New Designs.

GREAT ADVANCES have been made by naval technicians in recent years in improving both the accuracy and rapidity of fire. For this reason, the new ships will be able to conduct a more spirited offensive than anything now afloat. Their anti-aircraft defenses, too, will achieve a new deadliness of fire.

Rapid development of aerial bombing in recent years—many planes now carry 4,000-ton bombs—will result in a thickening of deck armor to withstand terrific shock.

Indeed, it is in the field of defense—of increasing a ship's ability to "take it" and still ramain afloat—that the most radical improvements are being made. "Damage control" is a phrase hardly known to the public and little has been written about it save in highly technical naval journals, but it is the preoccupation of every admiralty in the world.

The hull of every warship is divided into a number of compartments, separated from each other by water-tight steel doors. When one compartment is pierced by a shell or a torpedo it can be isolated quickly to prevent water from rushing into other parts of the ship.

Through elaborate technical studies during post-war years, compartmentation has been reduced to an exact science. Apparatus has been designed to close compartment doors with a minimum of delay. The latest problem is to achieve balance through counter-flooding. If, for instance, a compartment on the starboard side of a vessel is pierced by a shell, the vessel immediately lists. That can be corrected and the ship restored to an even keel only by compensatory flooding of compartments on the port side.

This problem, involving extremely complex and accurate data on displacement and the size and location of compartments, is receiving intense study by the designers of America's new dreadnaughts.

Changes in world political conditions, statesmen hope, may halt the new race for sea power. But, at the moment, it appears that the United States is entering what may be a long and costly competition for naval primacy

Dr. Jung On The World's Lost Soul.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED TO MAN in a despiritualized age might well be the alternative title to the most recent published work of Dr. Carl G. Jung, of Zurich. In the short space of three lectures, he has covered man's fall in this modern world far more simply and directly than the same event was chronicled in the ancient. The basic material is already known to readers of his larger works, "Psychology of the Unconscious" and "Psychological Types." But to those as well as to the less informed the good doctor has something to say in his addenda. Pity it is that for the welfare of humanity it will not reach the ears where its effect is most needed nor destroy the recrudescent primitivism in us all.

In these lectures, delivered under the Terry Foundation at Yale in 1937, an endowment for the delivery and subsequent publication of lectures on religion in the light of science and philosophy, Dr. Jung considers some of the old human problems in the light of new knowledge and new method. His particular procedure here, as in his major opus, is by the relation of a dream and its interpretation. The titles, "The Autonomy of the Unconscious Mind," "Dogma and Natural Symbols," "The History and Psychology of Natural Symbol," give but a clew to the comparatively vast territory covered in them.

IT IS REFRESHING (economists please note) to meet again the "whole man," primitive and infantile though he may be, after the dry desert years of "economic man" who, so far as we know, has not even a real existence other than his presence amid charts and textbooks. Through the richly illumined perceptions of this great teacher and physician we are reminded that humanity is not a collection of mere robots wandering in a wilderness of machines and gadgets, even though creeds are dying and their symbols are mocked. For the problem of the soul, or psyche if you will, remains fundamental regardless of state or church, wealth or poverty, success or failure, religion or atheism. Always from within it is crying for solution, twisting in the unconscious mind of each of us and rendering from its crucible some fearful and horrible products. Conflict and the effort toward a resolution of the opposites—these are man's, it seems, forever and a day, whether he be of East or West and no matter what the extent of his learning.

Of symbol and creed, their function as protectors from "immediate" experience, much he has said will be too esoteric for the general reader. Of Protestantism and Catholicism he makes no choice, but he analyzes the structure of each, pointing out the protective role of the church and the danger to the Protestant of his new freedom. In the light of this subtle critique, the merely historical ideas of the revolt against the church, and of the Reformation, seem puerile indeed. But for that matter, so does the economic determination of modern historical teaching, not because it is entirely fallacious, but because it is so incomplete.

• • • •

JUNG IS BENT UPON SHOWING US, first, the problems of the individual soul freed from dogma; second, the collective results of this freedom as observed in the fears and hates and active primitivism of most of the modern world. It is behind all the unrest of populations throughout the world today. Among the Germanic tribes in particular, since they as Protestants gave up the ritual which for ages was the safe way of handling the violent forces of the unconscious mind, a great amount of energy thus liberated went instantly into the old channels of curiosity and acquisitiveness, by which Europe became the mother of dragons that devoured the greater part of the earth.

Since those days, Protestantism has become a hotbed of schisms and, at the same time, of a rapid increase of science and technics which attracted human consciousness to such an extent that it forgot the unaccountable forces of the unconscious mind. The catastrophe of the Great War and the subsequent extraordinary manifestations of a profound mental disturbance were needed to arouse a doubt that everything was well with the white man's mind. When the war broke out we had been quite certain that the world could be righted by rational means. Now we behold the amazing spectacle of States taking over the age-old claim of theocracy, that is, of totality, inevitably accompanied by the suppression of free opinion. We again see people cutting each other's throats to support childish theories of how to produce Paradise on earth.

It is not difficult to see that the powers of the underworld—not to say of hell—which were formerly more or less successfully chained and made serviceable in a gigantic mental edifice, are now creating, or trying to create, a state slavery and a state prison devoid of any mental or spiritual charm. There are not a few people, nowadays, who are convinced that mere human reason is not entirely up to the enormous task of fettering the volcano. The whole development is fate. I would not blame Protestantism or the Renaissance for it. But one thing is certain—that modern man, Protestant or not, has lost the protection of the ecclesiastical walls carefully erected and reinforced since Roman days, and on account of that loss has approached the zone of world-destroying and world-creating fire. Life has become quickened and intensified. Our world is permeated by waves of restlessness and fear.

• • • •

SO, IT WOULD SEEM that the old religion, that of the church, was based on an understanding of man more profound than any but scholars realized. It may even be said that the church understood man, but did not try to advance him by theories of progress. Science has tried to advance him, but without understanding him. Thus, so-called progress has gone awry, tossed off the tracks by its own unawareness and ignorance of the creature it used for its experimentation. The same may be said for economics. Therefore, man battles today as ever, not only for lands and riches and trade routes, but for the very existence of his soul.

• • • •

ONE SMALL CRITICISM I would make of this work, small indeed in view of the work and the author, Dr. Jung states that he takes the words of a dream for granted, refusing the more complex analysis of Dr. Freud, which in brief consists of going behind the elaborate manifest dream to determine dream content and meaning. But, the dream used as example in the lecture is simple and direct. Not only does it appear as a too easy proof of Dr. Jung's contention, but it could be analyzed just as well by Dr. Freud's method. To say, as the former does, "I take the dream for granted," seems a bit too flat; to deny most of the Freudian technique in a paragraph, too easy. If Dr. Jung were to read that paragraph again and remember the great experience and integrity of his old teacher, he might think so, too. For "The Interpretation of Dreams" remains the monumental life work of one of the great men of the age.

The Decline of Breakfast

According to delegates of the recent convention of the American Gas Association, the modern American breakfast of orange juice, ready-cooked cereal, toast and three-minute eggs is one of the things that is wrong with the gas industry. Too many housewives, it is asserted, prepare breakfast at the table, using electric gadgets.

The passing of the good old-fashioned American breakfast is, of course, to be deplored. This Nation was created and nourished by a race who would have scorned the decadent modern matutinal fare. In those golden days an average breakfast consisted of a big bowl of oatmeal or cornmeal mush with sweetening and cream; a thick slab of fried ham or a generous hunk of beefsteak, garnished with a trio of fried eggs and a few ladles of fried spuds; a dish of stewed prunes or greengage preserves; apple pie cheese and boiled coffee and sinkers.

The menu varied a bit according to local custom. Codfish cakes, baked beans, fried catfish or fried chicken might be substituted for ham or beefsteak in some localities; side meat and greens were de rigueur in other localities. Buckwheat cakes from a perpetually replenished crock of batter on the back of the stove were standard in certain communities; in others merely optional. Fried mush, scrapple and sausage with fried apples were favorite side dishes.

$796,785,515 AgricultureBill Sent to Floor

House Cuts Almost 10 Pct. From Appropriation for Current Year.

The House Appropriations Committee recommended yesterday $796,785,515 for the Agriculture Department in the fiscal year beginning next July 1.

Augmented by automatic annual appropriations, chief of which is $147,000,000 for surplus commodity purchases, funds available to the department in the year will total $951,039,580. The surplus commodity program is financed by earmarking 30 per cent of tariff receipts.

Cut Almost 10 Per Cent.

The flexible appropriation—$796,785,515—recommended to Congress by the committee, was $72,975,684 less than for the current year and $10,500,000 less than Budget Bureau estimates.

The bill includes $485,000,000 for benefit payments to farmers and administration of the new farm act; $100,000,000 for roads; $8,000,000 for control of Bang's disease and tuberculosis among cattle; $23,525,000 for the long-established Soil Conservation Service; $6,550,000 for the Farm Credit Administration; $18,614,112 for the Forest Service; $48,000,000 for benefit payments to sugar producers and $14,000,000 for the Extension Service.

Secretary Wallace told the Appropriations Committee during consideration of the bill the outlook for the Nation's farmers was not bright.

Export Prospect Poor.

The Government has attempted to stabilize farm income, he said, but has been able to do nothing about unusual weather and little about the gradual disappearance of foreign markets.

He estimated chances were 20 to 1 against a return within ten years of world conditions which would permit American agriculture to dispose of huge surpluses such as it once sent overseas. But chances were only about 5 to 1 against those conditions returning in 30 years, he said.

Wallace predicted that success of Secretary Hull's reciprocal trade agreement program would aid materially in restoring foreign markets.

President Vetoes Payment for Crash Caused byCCC Boy

President Roosevelt yesterday vetoed a bill authorizing the Government to pay Peter Sietsma, of Monon, Ind., $39.50 for damage to his automobile and personal injuries to members of his family when a Civilian Conservation Corps enrollee threw an empty whisky bottle through the windshield.

Returning the bill to the House, the President said that at the time of the occurence on December 1, 1935, three of the enrollees were absent from camp without leave and were not acting within the scope of their employment."

"Even if the United States were subject to suit," he added, "it would hardly be liable for damages under the circumstances involved in this claim."

The CCC youths were convicted in a local court and dismissed from the corps.

District Policemen Get New Chapeaus

Inspector Stott in charge said the new caps replace those condemned after long service.

Recreational Leaders Will Gather Tonight

Recreational leaders will meet in seminar at 8 tonight for the second session of the Eighth Annual Play Institute being promoted by the Community Center Department at Langley Junior High, First and T streets northeast.

Rock Kirkham will discuss types of songs and their classification. Ella Gardner, Department of Agriculture extension service, will use her audience to demonstrate group games, get-acquainted games and singing games.

Citizens of Greenbelt Form Co-op Committee

An 11-man co-operative organizing committee was elected by citizens of Greenbelt, Md., last night, as the first step toward ultimate control and ownership by citizens of the business interests in the Governments model community.

Those elected at the meting in the Greenbelt school were Henry Little, Peter J. Carroll, Dr. Linden S. Dodson, Mrs. Bertha Maryn, Thomas R. Freeman, Charles E. Fitch, William R. Poole, Reed P. Maughan and Fred Wilde. The first five members will serve for a year, the others for six months.

National Lawyers' Guild To Meet Next in Chicago

Ferdinand Pecora, president of the National Lawyers' Guild, announced here yesterday that the next guild convention would be held in February, 1939, in Chicago. He said the guild would pay tribute to work done by the Chicago chapter under the leadership of Malcolm P. Sharp, past president, and George L. Quilici, president.

The Office of Education has welcomed Dr. Helen K. Mackintosh, who comes from Oxford, Ohio, to fill the position of senior specialist in elementary education. Fulfilling Civil Service Commission requirements in training and experience, Dr. Mackintosh comes to the Office of Education with an exceptional background in educational study and work, particularly in the elementary school field.

Inasmuch as the week of April 18 will be in celebration of the birth of William Shakespeare, the Union Playhouse has obtained "the services of two of the finest Shakespearean actors to portray Romeo and Juliet," says an announcement which arouses interest, but lets interest down since the identity of the Shakespearean actors is not disclosed. In any event, Gordon Hittenmark, of WRC, will appear. There will be four additional acts of entertainment. The show will be held at the Agriculture auditorium Thursday, April 21.

The publicity agent of the FBI Theater Group writes in:

"Something interesting as well as cosmopolitan was noted at a rehearsal of 'Three Cornered Moon,' the spring play presentation of the FBI Theater Group. There are nine States represented in the cast of nine players. Ranging all the way from New York in the North to Texas in the South, and as far west as California. The latter represented by Edward Taylor. Miss Dorothy Hair, who plays the heroine, Elizabeth, hails from Tennessee; Dora Rountree, from North Carolina; Robert Youmans, Ohio, and the wilds of Wyoming claim Daniel Jones as a native son. Evangeline Wilkinson is the only District rooter, and Masey Volk is from Indiana. Dorothy Bingham is the delegate from the Lone Star State, while Alfred Francfort joins with the director, William Coleman, to hold down the North, both being native New Yorkers. However, I don't think the Rimplegar family, around whom the play centers, will suffer much because of this oddity. They're rather odd themselves. You'd better truck on down to the Wardman Park Theater Tuesday night, April 19, and find out. You're missing something!"

Our agent at the Fredericksburg and Spotsylvania National Military Park says that visitors there for the Easter week-end will find the park roads splotched with dogwood in full bloom, a pretty sight for the motorists. The blooms were seen by hundreds last week-end. Lee Drive, in the Fredericksburg area, and the park roads around Spotsylvanania courthouse are the places where the flower is most heavily concentrated.

Also of great interest to nature lovers about this time of the year is the National Park Service's wildflower preserve at Chancellorsville. This preserve, a memorial to Stonewall Jackson, includes the spot where the great general was mortally wounded during the Battle of Chancellorsville. All the flowers in the preserve are native to this section and are marked with unobtrusive waterproofed tags giving both botanical and common names. A footpath winds through the woodland and makes all the blooms easily accessible to the visitors.

Here one may see many spring flowers, which are not only more concentrated than wildflowers are usually but also are safe from the nature vandal, preserved for study in their living, natural state.

Some of the flowers now in bloom are the violets, the bluets, hepaticas and the Rue anemone. The shad bush, which nature-wise fishermen say heralds the coming of the shad up the rivers, has been in bloom for some time and the lovely mauve buds of the redbud or Judas tree have almost all gone.

As the season advances, the azalea (wild honeysuckle) and the laurel will take the place of the earlier blooms.

Larger Building Sought for Home

A plea for a larger building and more funds for the Washington Home for Incurables was expressed by Miss Bessis J. Kibbey at a recent luncheon given by the board of managers of the home in honor of the medical staff, consulting staff and specialists.

Miss Kibbey, member of the executive committee, stated that increased funds are needed to care for more cancer patients. The history of the home, founded in 1889, was told by Mrs. E. R. Finkenstaedt, president.

May Day Celebration Planned by Labor Units

Formation of a united May Day committee to arrange a huge celebration in the District May 1 was announced yesterday by Jack Mink, business agent of the United Shoe Workers Local 136.

Officers of the committee include Costas Alexnion, secretary-treasurer of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes Alliance, chairman; Doxey A. Wilkinson, international vice president of the American Federation of Teachers, vice chairman; Mink, secretary, and Joseph H. Bernard, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, treasurer.

Single Private System Asked For Railways

I. C. C. Man in Memorandum to Roosevelt, Says it Would Give Confidence.

By the Associated Press.

Senator Wheeler Democrat), of Montana, made public yesterday a memorandum prepared by an Interstate Commerce Commission employe and transmitted to him by President Roosevelt arguing for consolidating all railroads of the country under one privately operated system.

Wheeler said the memorandum, delivered to the President by Commissioner Carroll Miller of the IC C was apparently designed to supplement other suggestions for railroad legislation which the President has passed on to Congress without comment.

The memorandum asserted that many economies would be attained under a single-system consolidation, and declaration of such a system as the policy of the United States would result in a "wave of confidence in the future of the railroad industry" throughout the country.

RFC Asks New Laws.

Officials of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation said yesterday they believed new legislation would be necessary before the RFC could set up a large fund for equipment loans to railroads.

"Even if not legally necessary," one official said, "additional legislation certainly would be necessary as a practical proposition."

In a report President Roosevelt transmitted to Congress Monday, three members of the Interstate Commerce Committee recommended $30,000,000 of Federal funds be made available immediately for the purchase of railroad equipment, including shop equipment and appliances as well as cars and locomotives. The equipment would be the security for Federal advances, under the committee's proposal.

RFC officials said informally they felt the ICC Committee's recommendation meant loans for the full cost of equipment, instead of the usual maximum of 70 to 80 per cent.

Pensylvania Man Gloomy.

Philadelphia, April 12 (AP).—A. J. County, vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, today asked "legislative protection and relief from unwise and unjustifiable burdens imposed on the railroads and their investors."

County, in charge of finance and corporate relations of the railroad, told stockholders at their annual meeting the immediate outlook for railroads "is far from encouraging."

Rivers Protests Rates.

Birmingham, Ala., April 12 (AP).—Gov. E. D. Rivers of Georgia condemned existing Southern rail rate structures today as an indirect and illegal tariff barrier against the South.

Testifying in an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing on the complaint of eight Southern States against rates they contend are discriminatory, Gov. Rivers cited several industries which "moved from Georgia because of high freight rates."

Jacksons Observe Golden Wedding

Looking back to a spring day in 1888 when they crossed the Ohio River from Cincinnati to Covington, Ky., to get a marriage license, Dr. and Mrs. Elmer E. Jackson this week are celebrating half a century of wedded life.

Producer Plans Film Cavalcade As Major Work

Sol Lesser, Film Veteran, Reveals Idea for Movie Glorifying Movies.

By Frederick C. Othman.

Hollywood, April 12 (U.P.).—This started out to be an interview with a producer on the movie business, but hardly had Sol Lesser started to talk when his phone rang.

It was an agent—one of those lads who get 10 per cent and sometimes more for the services of their artists—and he was negotiating the services of one of his scenario writers. All we heard was Lesser's side of the conversation, which went something like this:

"It's agreed. I'll pay her $1,000 a week."

"What? You mean I have to give her a four-week guarantee?"

"Yes, but all I've got is a little polishing up job for her to do. She ought to finish it in a week, but to be on the safe side I plan to keep her two weeks."

"Honestly? You mean I can't have her unless I pay her $4,000 for a $1,000 job?"

The agent apparently said yes, that's what he meant. Lesser slammed down the phone and turned wearily to his interview on the picture business. But first he had something to say about movie stories and the writing there.

He Ought to Know.

As president of Principal Productions and as a veteran of 31 years in the industry, he ought to know what he's talking about.

"Take this woman I'll probably have to give $4,000," he said. "She's acknowledged as a good writer, but I have no guarantee that she can polish up this story. Yet I'll have to pay her a month's salary for work that should not take longer than a week, and if she messes it up, I take the loss.

"What I never have been able to understand is why movie writers get so much more consideration than the writers of plays, or of novels. The latter do it solely on speculation. If they do a bad job, they get little or nothing. If they turn in a good piece of work, they make a fortune.

"It seems to me that if scenario writers operated the same way the good ones would make a lot more than they do now, the poor ones would become mechanics, and the quality of motion pictures in general would improve 100 per cent.'

Was Ice Cream Salesman.

Lesser, who entered the amusement business as an ice cream salesman in his father's nickelodeon at Spokane, Wash., and then established one of the country's first film exchanges at San Francisco in 1907, made a fortune from the theater business and retired 15 years ago. Twiddling his thumbs got boring, so he returned to the movies, which he has been making steadily ever since.

He's made something of a specialty of child actors, developing Jackie Cooper, Jackie Coogan and Bobby Breen, youngest of the crooners. Bobbie's choir-boy voice should be good for several years yet, but when it begins to crack, Lesser has an idea.

"As soon as Bobbie's voice starts to go bass," he said, "we'll make the biggest picture of his career—stressing the tragedy in the life of a boy singer who suddenly loses his singing voice."

Lesser makes pictures for release through R. K. O. and Fox. He makes many Westerns, latest of which starred Lou Gehrig, the baseball player, as a man of the plains. Lesser also manufactures Tarzans and other low budget films, but before summer he hopes to have in production a picture which will make the rest of the industry open wide its eyes.

History of Cinema.

Its title is "Celluloid." It's a cavalcade of the motion picture industry, it'll cost $1,000,000 and it had better be good, because Lesser considers it the crowning event of his movie career.

"The characters will be idealized," he explained. "The central character, for instance, will be a producer, whom I hope will be a composite of Zukor, Mayer, Selznick and Zanuck. We will show his trials and troubles during the early silent days. We will carry him on into the talkies and into color. Incidentally, our film will become colored when the color stage comes in. Then we will go on even for a glimpse of television, which now seems to be involved in the future of the picture industry.

"There also will be characters representing Charlie Chaplin, Mary Pickford and others. I've already obtained their co-operation."

First Long Pants For Bartholomew In Latest Picture

With the reproduction of the lobby of a swank London hotel as a locale, Freddie Bartholomew began work in his first "long pants" role, and incidentally his first with a short haircut.

"Lord Jeff" went into production at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer with Freddie and Mickey Rooney teamed as "buddies" in the nautical training school of the Barnardo Homes, British institution in which boys are developed for the Merchant Marine.

The role is the "oldest" Freddie has yet essayed, as he plays a boy of high school age. Sam Wood is directing. Mickey apears as a young companion. They are trained in the nautical school to which is sent by the authorities. Gale Sondergaard, Herbert Mundin, Charles Coburn, Emma Dunn, May Beatty, and Wilson Benge are among the players.

The Barnardo Homes, about which the story revolves, are a group in a youth rehabilitation movement founded years ago by Dr. Thomas John Barnardo.

Follows Baseball.

George Raft, co-starring with Sylvia Sidney in Paramount's "You and Me," is Hollywood's No. 1 baseball fan. He sees at least one Pacific Coast League game a week during the season, hasn't missed a World's Series in ten years, and is continually playing host to visiting ballplayers in the film capital.

Nelson B. Bell About The Showshops

The Belasco Will Reopen Easter Under Direction of Jack Thoman

House Manager Assumes Control of Famous Old Lafayette Square Playhouse; More About 'The Women;' Notes of the Theater.

THE Belasco Theater has "changed hands" again.

The Belasco Theater, as a matter of fact, never changes hands. It remains a Shubert property through the years, with the late David Belasco's estate having a bit of a finger in the pie. But it does change lessees every whipstitch.

There have been many occupants of the old Lafayette Square house these past few years. Some of them have prospered, at least for a time, and some of them have not. The list is not restricted to the entrepreneurs of the cinema. It also has included Wee and Leventhal and other adventurers into the realm of the living theater. They have come and gone, like all the rest.

BELL.

The latest to assume managerial control of one of the National Capital's theatrical landmarks is Jack Thoman, who, for the past four years, has served as house manager under more "supervising directors" than you can count on your fingers and toes. Mr. Thoman now has taken the place over, "on his own," as the saying is, and is reconciled to the notion of swimming or sinking by his daring.

There is more than a modicum of sound thinking back of the Thoman plans for the future conduct of the house. It will reopen on the night of Easter Sunday with first Washington presentations of "The Life and Loves of Beethoven," a musicalized film that has achieved considerable note in other cities. Mr. Thoman has no intention of running his house during the hours of the day when nobody journeys to Lafayette square to see a picture. He will operate from 4:30 to 11:30 p. m., only, and thus engineer economic savings that may make all the difference between profit and loss.

The new lease runs well into the summer and is renewable in September. It is to be hoped that this projected relighting of the Belasco will result in the success its new impresario hopes. It will be the first time in recent years that the famous old playhouse has been operated on a basis that might reasonably be expected to give it a handsome chance.

Jack Thoman always has proved himself what is colloquially known as a "square shooter" in the theater business and I am sure that the newspaper fraternity—if that is what it is—will join me in wishing him every success in his new and single-handed enterprise. He deserves it.

It perhaps is not fair to pick out favorites from so long a cast as appears in Clare Boothe's comedy of "The Women," current at the National, but we somehow cannot refrain from observing that of all the characterizations offered during an evening that was alive with impersonations that were both sterling and startling, Dorrit Kelton's portrayal of the role of Lucy struck us as being at the top. Lucy was a slavey who had been married to a red-headed plainsman and harbored vivid recollections of her experience. The manner in which she expresses her reminiscences still sticks in memory as one of the highlights of a brilliantly highlighted interpretation of an admirable and audacious exposition of the sinister workings of the feminine mind, morals and militancy.

In passing, I somehow seem to entertain a doubt that the cast of "The Women" includes a sum total of 40 distaff players. There is some "doubling" going on in the last few scenes that a close observer cannot overlook.

That, however, is of no consequence. The "doubling" in contrasted roles only adds to the luster of a cast that leaves little to be desired, even in the estimation of those who have seen the New York company in Miss Boothe's remarkably frank treatise upon the strengths and weaknesses of her sex.

I suspect that there are a great many women in the world who don't like Miss Boothe as much as they did before her play was produced.

A campaign to enroll all Gilbert and Sullivan enthusiasts in Washington as members of the "American Gilbert and Sullivan Association, Washington, D. C., Chapter," has been inaugurated under the presidency of Frederick J. Halton. The association has its headquarters in the Park Central Hotel, in New York. Its inducements are a subscription to the "Gilbert and Sullivan Quarterly," free assistance in staging the Savoyard operettas and other privileges. There is also a minor matter of reduced ticket charges for the forthcoming engagement of the revivals of the Gilbert and Sullivan works at the Rialto Theater. It is here that the not too deft hand of the press agent shows through—although I don't know why it should, with Frank Moulan, Frank Danforth and others of the old-timers, remembered from the days of the Aborn Light Opera Company, at the National, heading the cast.

• • • •

Summers have changed in Washington since those ancient days of the Aborns and the Columbia Theater Players, in friendly and profitable competition during the Capital's heated term. And I mean that the Capital's heated term really is heated and that in the old days when refrigerated playhouses were unknown it was a tremendous tribute to the ability of the stellar players that they were able to fill the foremost theaters in the city with nothing to allay the high temperatures but palm-leaf fans that were given away at the door.

Those days hark back a little. Not more than 25 or 30 years, but still a little. The Aborns prevailed at the National during a period when that venerable playhouse was continuously open, 52 weeks a year, for an unbroken stretch of five years. The minute the regular season closed the summer season opened and kept on until the regular season immediately opened—if you get the idea. Those days seem to be gone forever.

Perhaps this all is brought up by the recent presence of Charlotte Walker, most popular leading woman ever known to the Columbia Players, who was in "You Can't Take It With You." Miss Walker used to gross more during the summer at the Columbia than the house was able to do during the winter as a "second string" outlet for the Klaw and Erlanger "syndicate" bookings that had first play at the National.

Those, in a manner of speaking, were "the good old days," even if there were not any "movies" at that time. Somehow, we didn't seem to miss them!

• • • •

Somehow I feel that we would miss them now, if they were suddenly removed from the theatrical scheme of things—the "movies" I mean.

• • • •

Add-Words-We-Hate Note.

"Movies." But you have to use the darn thing once in a while, anyhow. There doesn't seem to be any other.

Juvenile 'Stops' - Famous Director

Director Ray McCarey prides himself on always being ready with a swift comeback, but during the making of Universal's "Hell's Kitchen," 8-year-old Scotty Beckett threw him for a 20-yard conversationa loss.

"Listen, Mr. Director. Do I do this scene like I was mean, or as if I was just exasperated, like you get sometimes?"

McCarey could only stutter after that one!

McLaglen Plans For Son, Daughter

The giant star plans to spend some time looking at ranches as soon as he is assured there will be no added scenes on "Battle of Broadway."

Sheila is one of the leading equestriennes of southern California, while Andrew, who weighs 190 and is well over 6 feet, holds the boxing and tennis titles in the prep school division in and near Santa Barbara.

Gen. Sheridan Loses His Temper

DIDN'T FIDDLE AS CHICAGO BURNED.

Reading in the usual direction, we see here Tom Brown, Don Ameche, Tyrone Power and Sidney Blackmer in one of the climacteric scenes in "In Old Chicago," the Twentieth Century-Fox film play that will be the next attraction on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater. Mr. Blackmer, in the role of Gen. Phil Sheridan, is telling Mr. Ameche, as mayor, where to "head in" in the matter of saving the city during the holocaust of 1871. The salvage didn't quite come off.

In HOLLYWOOD With Hedda Hopper

HEDDA HOPPER.

The thing that makes it outstanding to me was his remark. "We are planning a program such as they say can be given only in Hollywood. But New York is borrowing Hollywood for that night."

That's marvelous—when the son of the richest man in America borrows Hollywood for one night, and we do nothing but waste their talents the other 364—except when they are on the screen and radio.

Letters have poured in about starting a Pacific Theater Guild here. One from Peter Dixon, the writer, bears quoting: "A Guild for Hollywood—about 80 per cent of the old guild gang are in Hollywood today. Walter Abel, Walter Kingsford, Helen Westley, Leonard Mudi—scads of others, all eager to act in good plays. When do we get started?"

Another from the manager of one of our big hotels. Offering his ballroom, seating 500 people, or smaller halls for rehearsals. Any part of his establishment absolutely free of charge to help get this thing started.

And Kate Lawson, five years with the Guild designing scenery she did everything from running up curtains and dresses to tacking down the floor cloth, acting and running errands between times, wrote: "Wouldn't I love to have a hand in putting over a Guild here for Americans, with Americans, by Americans."

Speaking of Kate, a few years back when I was an employe of Elizabeth Arden in New York, Elizabeth was trying to find some one to decorate the Ritz ballroom which she had hired to give her niece a coming out party. She wanted an original decoration. I sent for Kate. Interviewing Miss Lawson, Elizabeth said, "Smilax and flowers are passe—I'd like to use cellophane—something like the stage setting of 'Three Saints and a Sinner.' I don't suppose you know anything about that." To which Kate quietly replied, "I did it." The bargain was made then and there—for Prince of Wales plumes 14 feet high made of white cellophane.

To conceal gold molding at the top of the room, Kate had to get the draper from Madison Square Gardens. Just as he had his ladder adjusted and reached the top, the ladder broke, but he was able to grab the molding. A funny little man in charge, said, "Oh-or-oh—just hang on, hang on!" The hanger, looking down a distance of 40 feet, said, "For what reason would I let go?"

Other people tell me having a cause is a very dull affair. I'm inclined to think this would be great fun. Look at the laughs the Lunts have had out of their theater guild for years. In what other organization in the world could they have expressed their ideas, fulfilled their hopes and done as they jolly well pleased, and got paid as much money as our picture stars? Well, there it is. Take it or leave it.

Our smart producers who think they're going to cut stars' salaries and sell pictures with fine casts but without a star name, should have witnessed the near riot at the Filmarte Theater the other night. Their eyes would have bulged out. It looked as if a new market were opening. But behold, it was a traffic jam to see Valentino in "The Sheik!" Hundreds stood three deep half way round the block for hours waiting until the end of the first show so they could get in.

Crump Finishes Scout Scenario

Having completed an original screen story based on drama in the life of "The Boy Scouts of America," Irving Crump, editor of Boy's Life, last week boarded the Santa Fe Chief en route to his home in New York City.

The Post's New Yorker By LEONARD LYONS

New York, April 12.

ROLAND REDMOND, attorney for the Stock Exchange, will be called to Washington this week to testify regarding the Richard Whitney crash. In the private hearings Redmond and Simmons, former president of the Exchange, admitted that when, in November, 1937, they asked Whitney for the Gratuity Fund assets, he requested a delay. Redmond should have suspected the truth, the commissioners will charge, because he, as an attorney, should have realized that Whitney was a trustee of that fund, and not a debtor—and therefore should have produced the fund forthwith . . . William Allen White will be the next president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors . . . After the defeat of the reorganization bill, Attorney General Cummings said: "Things have come to a fine pass—when the Supreme Court is the only department the President can depend upon!"

• • •

The American Federation of Actors is threatening to call a strike at the Ringling Bros. circus here, unless an agreement is reached this week . . . When the President appoints those two new Federal judges for the Southern District of New York, the expectation is that one will be a woman. The other appointee won't be from New York County . . . Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, who once advised retirement at 75, and who reached the age of 76 this week, told a group of us Saturday: "Rain, and the years, do not bother me" . . . Jim Farley now denies any gubernatorial aspirations. "I'm not in the picture," he protested. "And I don't want to be Governor of New York."

Two nurses who have been attending the Dionne quins at Callander, were fired a few days ago. The nurses, who spoke only French, didn't want the quins to learn any English—for fear that they'd lose their jobs . . . The birth of the Dionne baby last week came as a complete surprise to Doctor Dafoe. This despite the fact that Mrs. Dionne had visited the quins one week earlier. The doctor was present, and never suspected the truth!

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST, JR., and Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., whose fathers have no affection for each other, met after the Gridiron dinner in Washington last week-end and became arms-around-the-shoulder pals—right up to 7 a. m. . . . F. D. Jr., sat at the piano, sang a swing-version of "Loch Lomond," and described himself as "Benny Goodman, Jr." . . . Gov. Earle, of Pennsylvania, who banned Life's issue because of the "Birth of a Baby" pictures, will announce a happy solution for Life's editors this week. The national heads of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. have indorsed the pictures. Similar photos always have been and still are on view at the Museum of Natural History, the Public Library, and the Museum of Science and Industry.

POSTAL TELEGRAPH will send Song-o-grams on May Day. The song will be "One Big Union For Two," from "Pins and Needles" . . . Jesse Jones, head of the RFC, is feuding with the Securities & Exchange Commission. Jones wants all loans 100% secured. The SEC wants to establish regional banks which would season all loans according to the different needs of varied sections of the country . . . Harry Hopkins, the WPA Administrator, returned to Washington in good health, after submitting to a series of operations. "I've been operated upon enough," said Hopkins—who just was assigned to spend a few billions. "Now it's my turn to operate."

WILL ALEXANDER, who was with the Farm Security Administration, and Clark Foreman, who was Ickes' aide, now are the leading contenders to succeed Morgan, who was fired from TVA . . . Ohio's leaders report to the Capitol that Judge Arthur Day of Ohio's Supreme Court, will defeat Robert A. Taft, son of the late President Taft, for the Senatorial nomination . . . Leon Gordon, the artist, is expected to be assigned to paint the official Roosevelt portrait. Gordon's portrait of Cordell Hull has been accepted. Mrs Hull first had to approve it—because the portrait belongs to the Secretary of State, until he leaves office.

LAST NIGHT'S REPORT was that Burns & Allen have been signed to broadcast for Chesterfield cigarettes—at $12,500 per broadcast . . . Steve Early, the President's secretary, is suggesting the writing of a book, comparing (1) what Roosevelt told the newspaper men at his conference and (2) how differently various newspapers interpreted each statement . . . Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City, who has returned from Florida, will be served with a subpena to appear at the suit brought by the C. I. O. and the American Civil Liberties Union in the Federal Court. The trial will be held April 19.

BILLY ROSE is negotiating to present the "Birth of a Baby" films at his Casa Manana. His attorney, Arthur Garfield Hays, is trying to remove the censorship, in so far as its application to cafes is concerned . . . Tay Garnett's nephew, Jack Spears, now at college, sent a short telegraphic plea to his dad, "NO MUN, NO FUN, YOUR SON." The parent wired in reply: "SO SAD, TOO BAD, YOUR DAD" . . . Glenda Farrell will be a bridesmaid at the Harry Richman-Hazel Forbes nuptials . . . Jerome Frank of the SEC has completed his new book. It will be called "Save America First."

singing star of the screen, who will be present in person on the stage of Loew's Capitol Theater to add luster to the bill planned for the edification of Easter theatergoers. Mr. Jones, perhaps, will be mostly readily identified as the tenor who added so much to the "Donkey Serenade" number in "The Firefly," with Jeanette MacDonald.

McCarthy Fickle Says Girl Chum

Charlie McCarthy and Eve Arden are old friends, the actress disclosed last week as she reported for her first scene in "Letter of Introduction," which John M. Stahl is directing.

"I was Charlie's 'stooge' in the Follies, in New York, in 1935," the blonde player disclosed. "Charlie made love to me just like he makes love to every girl he meets. I'm afraid he's a heartbreaker!"

Surprise!

As a gift for his birthday, Marvin Stephens, youthful featured player in "Sporting Chance," was presented with a basketball by his chums in the studio schoolroom. He is an avid cage fan, playing a fine game himself.

Japan Building 'Hit-Run' Fleet, U.S. Navy Hears

Powerful Cruisers Likely to Revolutionize Naval Tactics.

By the United Press.

The Navy Department has been informed that Japan is constructing a powerful "hit-and-run" fleet that may revolutionize naval tactics, it was learned last night.

Despite a screen of censorship, this government has been advised that the island empire is building a type of supercruiser that has no match from the standpoints of speed, mobility and striking power.

It is reported that Japan, which turned a cold shoulder to all diplomatic overtures for exchange of information on naval programs, has three such vessels under construction.

The ships were said to be between 16,000 and 18,000 tons each, to be armed with eight or nine 12-inch guns and to have estimated speeds of 40 knots.

"If such ships are being constructed," a high Navy official said, "they would represent perhaps the most powerful offensive sea weapon in existence. Of course they could not successfully engage a battleship in close fighting, but they would be tremendously more powerful than any American or British cruisers and their terrific speed would make them the scourge of world shipping lanes."

This country's heaviest cruisers are 10,000 tonners and are armed with eight-inch guns.

U. S. May Increase Size.

It was said in official circles that if the Japanese reports prove true, the United States may be forced to increase the size of her cruisers. The Navy Department already has asked for authorization to increase the size of proposed battleships from 35,000 to 45,000 tons.

In addition to the supercruiser program, Japan, according to Navy Department information, is constructing or has authorized construction of three dreadnaughts of 46,000 tons each, five aircraft carriers, 43 destroyers, seven light cruisers and eight submarines, for a total of 66 fighting vessels.

President Roosevelt's $1,121,000,000 Naval expansion program calls for construction of only 46 warships.

Canal Spying Charged.

Meanwhile, reports that a Japanese "mystery fleet" invaded Philippine waters last night caused a hastening of the Navy Department's studies of the advisability of establishing a naval base in the commonwealth.

Representative Byron Scott (Democrat), California, in a speech on the House floor, charged that Italian, German and Japanese secret agents were co-operating in espionage in the Panama Canal Zone and warned that incursions in South and Central America by foreign countries already had started.

Representative Maury Maverick (Democrat), Texas, urged the House to support a Senate amendment to the War Department appropriation bill providing expenditure of $42,000,000 for seacoast and anti-aircraft defenses, particularly on the Atlantic Coast.

Commander C. E. Rosendahl, who commanded both the ill-fated dirigibles Akron and Macon, but was not aboard either when it crashed, told the Senate Naval Affairs Committee that unless the Nation provides for dirigibles in the pending $1,121,000,000 fleet expansion bill "it never will."

He said the potentialities of dirigibles were "startling," asserting that they could serve effectively as long-range scouting arms of the fleet and as airplane carriers.

May Shake-Down Cruise.

The Navy Department announced yesterday the submarine Snapper, built at the Portsmouth, (N. H.) Navy Yard, will leave New York City in May for a two-month shake-down cruise to the West Indies.

Army Sets Test Dates.

The War Department announced yesterday that examinations for entrance into the Army Medical and Dental Corps will be held in July and August, respectively.

London, April 12 (AP).—The death today of Capt. Arthur S. Wilson, 69, racehorse owner and former member of Parliament, recalled the 1890 baccarat scandal, involving charges of card cheating at a house party given by his parents.

Col. Sir William Gordon Cumming, an officer of the Scots Guards, signed a pledge never to play cards again. Later he sued Wilson's mother and four others for slander, but lost after King Edward VII testified he saw no cheating but believed Cumming's accusers because "there were five of them."

operation, regardless of strikes.

Deputies considered the premier's statement as a warning that he would mobilize strikers and send them back to work as soldiers of France's army, with a status which would make quitting equivalent to desertion.

The Chamber Finance Committee had voted approval of the decree powers for the premier 20 to 0 with several abstentions.

Huge Credit Involved.

Among measures contemplated are a special tax on industries producing material for national defense—to prevent excess profits—and a general revision of customs duties.

Vincent Auriol, addressing a socialist group in the Chamber, said Minister of Finance Paul Marchandeau confirmed to him that the decree powers Daladier asked would be used to permit the government to draw on the Bank of France for 10,000,000,000 francs ($310,000,000) to meet treasury needs and prepare a 15,000,000,000 franc ($465,000,000) public loan for national defense needs.

Bond Decree Planned.

Finance Minister Paul Marchandeau disclosed the cabinet was considering two decrees, one to change all government bearer bonds to registered bonds and one to create a special tax on young men exempted from military service for minor health defects.

Joseph Paul-Boncour, former premier and minister in many cabinets, made known he had applied for readmission to the Socialist Party from which he bolted in 1932. He has resigned from the small Republican Socialist Union which he founded.

One of the most powerful segments of Pendergast's organization is an Italian section of the First Ward.

Loyalists Push Through Rebel Catalonia Lines

Insurgents, Using Liquid Fire, Reported Nine Miles From Sea.

By the United Press.

Barcelona (Wednesday), April 13.—The cabinet, after a seven-hour session ending at 1 a. m. today, called the classes of 1927, 1928 and 1941 to the colors and placed all communications — including post-office, telephones, radio and cables—under military control.

The cabinet also placed all sources of electric energy under the personal control of Premier Negrin, now virtual dictator of loyalist Spain.

By the Associated Press.

Hendaye, France, April 12.—Spanish government troops in heavy fighting today tried to drive a wedge between northern and southern insurgent forces closing in on Catalonia, Spain's northeastern corner.

Government attacks on the central Catalonian front were said to have broken through insurgent lines.

Supported by machine-gunning planes, government troops beat back insurgent forces east of Lerida, recapturing one village and forcing the enemy back across the Segre River. A government communique said three insurgent planes were shot down in flames near Balaguer and another at Tortosa.

Both Claim Advances.

In the south, where insurgents have tried to clip the narrow ribbon of coastal orange and nut groves linking Catalonia with the rest of government Spain, both factions claimed advances.

[Insurgent armies, said by loyalists to be using liquid fire, pushed through the mountains east of Morella to within 9 miles of the Mediterranean, the United Press reported.

[Dispatches from the loyalist capital at Barcelona said the government's armies, except for strong units holding Tortosa, were fleeing toward the coast after holding up the advance for nine days—Editor's note.]

Moors Bear Brunt.

The fighting was for possesssion of Serro and La Granja in an area about 18 miles from Lerida along the Segre river.

Try to Cut Power.

The insurgents were trying to cut the electric power line from the Republic of Andorra, which has been supplying Catalonia with most of its electric power since insurgents seized the hydro-electric plants at Tremp.

Barcelona said factories in Catalonia were forbidden to use electric motors without authorization from the armament division of the government economics department.

In Madrid, the Madrid section of National Confederation of Workers, Anarchist-Syndicalist trade union, which claims a membership of 2,000,000, took steps to mobilize its entire membership between the ages of 17 and 45 for military duties.

Court Rules Barry Illegally Detained

Authority of the Treasury Secretary to commit to St. Elizabeths Hospital members of the Merchant Marine Service was curtailed by the United States Court of Appeals yesterday in an opinion which held that Thomas Barry had been unlawfully sent there.

Since 1854, the Treasury, has been permitted to commit seamen for care if they lack funds.

Barry was comitted in 1935. He filed suit in District Court to obtain his release but his plea was turned down. He appealed. Approximately 136 patients are now confined under the same procedure.

Barry has not been released, although his release was ordered.

Mussolini Seals Pact as British Forestall Hitler

Pledges Formal Welcome to Hore-Belisha on Proposed Visit.

By the Associated Press.

London, April 12.—Italy virtually has sealed in advance a British-Italian friendship pact which diplomats said tonight "might avert an otherwise inevitable major war within two years."

Premier Mussolini did this by promising a welcome to British War Minister Leslie Hore-Belisha, who is to arrive in Rome April 22 to round out the new alignment.

Great Britain's cabinet was expected to give final approval tomorrow to the pact, designed to alter radically the course of world diplomacy and reduce European tension. The agreement is to be signed Saturday.

To Forestall Hitler.

When Hore-Belisha reaches Rome it will be the first time in nearly three years that a British cabinet minister has visited Italy.

Mussolini's promise of a welcome came as a quick response to Britain's pledge yesterday to work through the League of Nations for recognition of Italy's two-year-old conquest of Ethiopia.

Reliable sources said it was essential for Britain to sell British-Italian co-operation to Mussolini before Reichsfuehrer Hitler visits Rome in May.

Diplomatic observers said the meeting of Mussolini and Hitler may decide Europe's fate.

Mussolini Faces Choice.

This was the picture they drew: An advancing Nazi Germany menaces Europe's peace as ominously as imperial Germany did in prewar years. Mussolini faces choice between the German and the British-French camps.

His understanding with Great Britain is a bargaining move, timed to impress his partner in the Berlin-Rome diplomatic axis. He holds the key to the situation.

Mussolini realizes that if he decides to keep the Rome-Berlin axis intact, he probably would have to let Hitler push Germany's sway eventually to the Black Sea.

In return, Germany might support him in obtaining an enlarged North African empire, probably at France's expense. But even Mussolini's own increased strength might not help if Hitler, having crushed other obstacles, found only Italy in his path.

Small Nations to Follow.

With Mussolini in the British-French camp—or even neutral—the whole picture would be changed.

Poland, Rumania, Greece and Jugoslavia would rally to London and Paris, possibly forcing Germany to keep peace and smashing the anticommunism pact among Italy, Germany and Japan.

British agreement with Italy would release Britain from Mediterranean worries and enable her to abandon her present cautious policy in the Far East.

A French-Italian pact supplementing the one between Britain and Italy would be easily attainable. The resulting three-way understanding among Britain, Italy and France would be the only hope of averting a war which Hitler would be ready for in two years.

Capt. Nixon Wins New Divorce Suit

Philadelphia, April 12 (AP).—The Supreme Court today refused the petition of Annetta Pauline Nixon to reopen hearings in the divorce proceedings of her former husband, Capt. Thomas Hay Nixon, U. S. Army officer living in Washington.

Capt. Nixon was granted a divorce August 6, 1935, in Adams County court on grounds of cruel and barbarous treatment. Shortly afterward Capt. Nixon remarried and his former wife filed a petition in Adams County court asking that the divorce be vacated on the grounds the court has no jurisdiction.

Adams County Court granted her petition and the superior court affirmed the lower court. Last March 21 the Supreme Court reinstated the divorce decree.

Annetta Finnerton Nixon, second wife of Capt. Thomas Hay Nixon, is a former actress. His present wife is the former Anne Cooke, of Chevy Chase, Md. They have three children.

Child Guidance Discussed by Experts Here

Dr. Richmond, Miss Samuel, Mrs. Kirk Are Among Speakers.

Need of trained personnel to conduct a child guidance program was stressed at a panel discussion of the District Guidance and Personnel Association last night at the National Education Association auditorium.

Guidance in health, education, vocation and social life is needed by children, not merely problem cases, it was said. The panel, presided over by Miss Jessie LaSalle, assistant superintendent of schools, divided on the advisability of keeping cumulative records of children throughout their school career. Some members thought that such action might "tag" children for life.

The panel included Dr. Winifred Richmond, of St. Elizabeth's Hospital staff; Miss Helen Samuel, of Gordon Junior High School; Mrs. Page Kirk, of Western High School; Mrs. Elwood Street, representing parents; Birch Bayh, of the physical education department of public schools; Miss Cecilia Dulin, of Buchanan School; Mrs. Florence Cornell, of John Quincy Adams School; Miss Olivia Taylor, of Eastern High School; Mrs. E. H. Hoyt, art supervisor and instructor of elementary schools; Everett A. Golway, of the Board of Public Welfare, and Dr. Mitchell Dreese, of the George Washington University.

Father Walsh Assails Laski's Stand on Russia

Georgetown U. Official Calls Briton 'Intellectually Astigmatic.'

Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., vice president of Georgetown University, last night took to task Prof. Harold J. Laski, of the London School of Economics, for what he called the professor's approval of Soviet political theory in a recent lecture here.

He attributed Prof. Laski's stand to "an intellectual astigmatism which focuses thought too narrowly on social theory and too little on social reality."

Addressing an audience in Memorial Continental Hall, Father Walsh quoted Laski as replying, "most emphatically, yes!" when asked if he still considered America and Russia the hopes of Democracy for the world. The scholar-priest concluded the Briton considered the American plan of government as "outmoded and fundamentally untenable in modern times," and, therefore, "doomed." He then added:

Federalism Not Doomed.

"Prof. Lasky, as a careful scholar, doubtless prepared the text of his address before the final vote of the House (on the reorganization bill) last Friday evening. Far from being doomed, the principles of federalism were reaffirmed and strengthened by the elected representatives of the American people on the very day when the prophecy was delivered.

"I suspect he had been talking to the wrong people. His conclusions suggest that too much preoccupation with abstract ideas of perfectability often lead to an intellectual astigmatism which focuses thought too narrowly on social theory and too little on social ratity.

"Prof. Laski," Father Walsh continued, "observed that he 'sometimes bewildered at the objects chosen in the United States for popular excitement.' . . . It was a trifle in the form of a stamp that fired the indigation of the colonies. . . . It was a trifling matter of some chests of tea that led to a still further challenge to the encroachments of the crown.

"Nowadays it takes the form of over 300,000 telegrams . . . Prof. Laski should not forget what others have just learned anew. You must be right at the right moment. To be right at the wrong moment is just as dangerous as being wrong at the right moment."

"Impatient Executives."

At another point Father Walsh departed from his consideration of Laski to refer to "impatient executives" upon whom "moral values persistently intrude" to their "great annoyance."

"The aroused instinct of a people," he added, "will often baffle sociologists, economists, and legalists, armed though they may be with perfect blueprints of better things."

Father Walsh charged the record of Russia represented "the most appalling continuous example of man's inhumanity to man ever recorded in human annals. He listed as "contributions of the commissars, housing, "child welfare for selected groups, educatoin—"on Marxian principles only"—a new Moscow subway and the "most formidable standing army in the world."

Chaliapin Dies; Gained Fame as Operatic Basso

End Comes in Paris Home; Rose From Poverty to Riches.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, April 12.—Feodor Chaliapin, 65, whose great basso voice raised him from poverty to world renown, died today.

The great opera stages of the world revered him, but he remained the tempestuous, unaffected personality of his youth when he was the shocless, hungry son of a Russian peasant.

Chaliapin went to the United States in 1906 to sing at the Metropolitan, but not until his return to New York 16 years later was his art acclaimed.

He was regarded not only as a superb singer, but also as a great singing actor and his genius made him one of the highest-paid operatic stars in the world.

Chaliapin died in his Paris apartment after a two-week illness of kidney ailments, complicated with anemia. He joked with his nurses until shortly before he died.

Family at Bedside.

Two specialists had attended him for the last three days, but despite transfusions his strength ebbed rapidly.

"Papushka" (Daddy), as Chaliapin liked to be called by his family, died with his wife and eight children at his bedside.

News of his death spread quickly through the Paris colony of White (Czarist) Russians and brought hundreds of them to his home. Many were former noblemen at the Czar's court.

The fine home where Chaliapin spent his last moments contrasted sharply with the one-room hovel where he lived as a boy in Kazan. Chaliapin liked the comforts that he was deprived of in childhood and never hesitated to say so.

"I will sing on a street corner if I am paid enough," he once said, explaining that he saw money-making possibilities rather than romance in art.

Interviewed in Paris, he once said:

"I left Russia without a cent, and was obliged therefore to sell my soul to the devil."

As a basso cantante in the role of Mephistopheles he became one of opera's greatest satans. It was generally conceded Chaliapin's voice attained its peak in that role.

Russian liberals of the old, pre-revolution days never could forgive Chaliapin for what they considered the affront to their cause when, at one of his performances, he was moved by patriotic emotion to fall on his knees before Czar Nicholas II, singing the Russian national anthem.

He had been in virtual retirement since an attack of influenza at Paris in 1935. His last concert tour in the United States was in 1932.

Story-Book Life.

Chaliapin was twice married. His first wife was an Italian ballet dancer, Julia Tornaghi, whom he married in Russia in 1898. She bore him eight children and was divorced in Moscow in 1927 in proceedings brought by the singer through the Soviet Consul in Paris. His second marriage was to the former Mme. Maria Petzhold, daughter of a Russian landowner.

The story of his life is of the Horatio Alger type. At 15, untutored and undernourished, this future giant that so many Americans knew as Mephistopheles or Boris Gudonov, with a reputed fee of $4,000 for each appearance, bent his flat chest over a cobbler's bench and drove tacks into the boots of his fellow peasants.

He was fired from his first job by the cobbler, who called him a wastrel and cursed him for his incompetence.

The miserable boy wandered up and down the Caucasus, working at odd jobs. At times he sang before cafe doors, gathering from the gutters the few kopeks thrown by passersby. With these he bought the black bread and onion soup that were his fare. At night he slept in stables and under bridges, shivering and hungry.

Within 15 years he had sung before the Czar, the elite of Russian society had acclaimed his genius, the severest of music critics had dubbed him the greatest of all Russian bassos, and impresarios sought his signature of contracts calling for large fees. Another 15 years saw his fame spread all over the civilized world, and his fortune assured.

Africa Natives Know No Wars, Turner Relates ### Minister, Back From 6,000-Mile Trek, Praises Primitive Folk.

After a six-months' motor tour across Africa, the Rev. W. G. Turner, vice president of the general conference of Seventh-Day Adventists, returned last week to Takoma Park, Md., with tales of adventure from the jungles.

His trip covered territory seldom explored. Starting at Mombasa, port city of Kenya on the west coast, Dr. Turner traveled 6,000 miles through the interior. He was accompanied by the Rev. W. E. Read and the Rev. J. I. Robison, foreign officials of the church.

"Most travelers go into the interior for comparatively short distances and then go back to the coast and embark on boats if they want to reach the other coast," Dr. Turner said.

Didn't Know War.

"Everywhere we went we found the natives friendly. There were no tribal wars, and neither did the natives know of wars in progress in other lands."

On all sides, he related, he saw evidence that the natives were attempting to keep up with modern civilization. Although highways are not paved, the cross-country trip was accomplished in 14 days.

"We saw pigmies with their bows and arrows during three days in the Iturian forest," said Dr. Turner, "and in the French Cameroon sections of central Africa we saw the most primitive tribes.

"Thousands of them were without clothes. They used crude cooking utensils which had been used down through the centuries."

Dr. Turner and his associates collected many photgraphs which he plans to use on a country-wide series of lectures this summer.

Rites Tomorrow For Capt. Havens

Capt. Frank B. Havens, who served in the Army Quartermaster Corps in the World War, died yesterday at Walter Reed Hospital.

Since the armistice he had been engaged in the coal and ice business in Rosslyn, Va.

He is survived by his wife, three daughters, Mrs. Lily Wilkinson, Mrs. John E. Conway and Mrs. Alfred B. Milburn; a son, William D. Havens; a brother, Robert Havens, and six grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the home, 5922 North Sixteenth street, Arlington, Va. Interment will be in Columbia Gardens Cemetery, Arlington.

Building Trades Drive Designed To Cut Idle Roll

Campaign Will Stress Modernization and Renovizing Angles.

With a dual objective of creating employment in the building and allied trades through modernization and repair of property, a "Renovize Washington" campaign indorsed by representatives of 15 business and civic organizations was inaugurated yesterday at a meeting called by the Washington Building Congress at the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

A construction committee, headed by E. Philip Schreier, of Washington chapter, American Institute of Architects, will select structures in various sections of the city as demonstration projects to be financed and modernized, showing the public the simplicity of the process and exemplyifying the slogan of the campaign, "It Is Good Business for You and Good for Business."

Formation of a general "plan and scope committee," headed by Arthur B. Heaton, chairman, board governors of the Building Congress, was begun with appointment of the following representatives of interested groups: Theodore Irving Coe, president Washington Building Congress; William Sterrett, Junior Board of Commerce; W. I. Swanton, Federation of Citizens Associations; Hugh Reilly, jr., Paint Contractors Association; John W. Hardell, Producers Council Club; J. Harry McCarthy, Plumbers Guild; Joseph C. Gardner, Washington Chapter, American Association of Landscape Architects; Hilleary G. Hoskinson, first vice president, District of Columbia Bankers Association; Mr. Schreier and Joseph A. Herbert, jr., Washington Real Estate Board.

Other committee chairmen were named as follows: Finance, Mr. Hoskinson; publicity, Mr. Herbert; public relations, Mr. Swanton; sales promotion, Joseph G. Hildebrand, secretary of the Plumbers Guild. Additional interested organizations are: Washington Building Trades Council, Electrical Institute, Paints Club of Washington, District of Columbia Chapter, Associated General Contractors of America, and the Subcontractors Association.

Thomas Donaldson Funeral Set Today

Funeral services for Thomas Donaldson, 52, who died Monday of a heart ailment, will be held at 2 p. m. today at the home of his sister, Mrs. Riley E. Elgen, wife of the chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, at 2022 Klingle road northwest. Services will be conducted, by Dr. Oliver J. Hard, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Donaldson was with one of the first contingents of Americans to go overseas in the World War. He became a lieutenant in the Sixth Marines, Second Division. Mrs. Elgen is the only survivor.

Lindman Will Address Welfare Worker Group

Eduard C. Lindman, chairman of the National Conference on Conservation and Development of Human Resources, will discuss "Human Resources and Technology" tomorrow morning at a meeting in the United States Chamber of Commerce Building.

The meeting is open to those interested in welfare work and is sponsored by the committee on volunteer services of the Council of Social Agencies.

Romance Lives In Field Report Of Smithsonian

Reptile 'Bed,' Underground River Explored by U. S. Scientists.

Tales of adventure in romantic places that would tax the imagination of any novelist—from the Mountain of the Blanket in Siam to the Island of Anegada ii. the West Indies—are told in the annual explorations report released yesterday by the Smithsonian Institution.

Of all the 24 expeditions sent out to the ends of the earth in the last year, the trip to the East Indies headed by Dr. William M. Mann, director of the National Zoological Park, was termed "perhaps the most notable."

Conducted under joint auspices of the Smithsonian and the National Geographic Society, Dr. Mann's expedition brought back to Washington nearly 2,000 exotic birds, mammals and reptiles.

The voyage to the mountains of Siam was directed by H. G. Deignan, of the division of birds. Deignan and his party climbed Doi Chiengdao, a mountain whose summit had previously been reached by only six Europeans. When the group started the descent, the men found themselves trapped by a forest fire. They were able to reach camp only by descending the face of a precipitous cliff and gaining an area where the fire had burned itself out.

In an island of the Barbados, B. W. I., Dr. Waldo L. Schmitt searched for specimens in an underground river coursing through a canyon that may be 50 to 75 feet high.

"We went on for 300 or 400 yards in stygian darkness which was only intensified by the flickering torch I held until we came to a waterfall where a foot-thick stream of water poured over in a noisy cascade," wrote Dr. Schmitt.

Other expeditions explored fossil reptile beds in Utah, and rock formations in New York, searched for sites associated with De Soto's hunt for the Fountain of Youth, collected birds in Venezuela and mammals in Panama, marine invertebrates in the waters of Greenland and moose and caribou in Alaska.

Rites for Ethel Read To Be Said Tomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. Ethel Read, 48, wife of Dr. Boyd R. Read, who was found dead at her home, 8001 Saratoga avenue, Sligo Park Hills, Md. Monday afternoon in a gas-filled kitchen, will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. at the William Rueben Pumphrey funeral home, 7905 Wisconsin avenue, Bethesda, Md. Burial will be in the Mount Hebron Cemetery, Winchester, Va.

Born in Winchester, Va., Mrs. Read was in training at Emergency Hospital when she met Dr. Read. After their marriage they lived in Lower Brulle, S. Dak., where Dr. Read was in chrage of the Indian reservation for nearly a year. They returned to Washington where they have lived until they moved to Sligo Park Hills three years ago.

Professor CRAIG KENNEDY gets the Evidence!

1. BEGINNING OF THE SEARCH! Can really fine rye taste—the most elusive of all whiskey flavors—be captured in a low-priced straight rye? The famous detective, Craig Kennedy is put on the case, and the search for evidence takes him to Peoria, Illinois.

2. THE RYE GRAIN "LINE-UP" At the world's largest distillery, Kennedy sees how the grain that goes into BLACK HAWK Straight Rye Whiskey must face the "line-up"! Hiram Walker's eagle-eyed grain inspectors make sure that it measures up to the highest standard of quality.

3. BLACK HAWK GETS THE "THIRD DEGREE"! Professor Kennedy discovers that more than 50 times during the distilling process BLACK HAWK gets the "third degree." Samples are checked constantly in Hiram Walker's laboratories to be sure the flavor stays perfect.

4. IMPRISONED FOR 2 YEARS! Kennedy inspects Hiram Walker's weather-conditioned "whiskey prison" to which BLACK HAWK is sentenced. Before being bottled, it serves two long years in aging casks to bring out the rich, ripe flavor that distinguishes this fine rye!

African Dance, La Conga, May Replace 'Apple'

To Be Presented First Time in Capital Tonight at Pall Mall Room.

By Chanticleer

From darkest Africa comes something for the Pall Mall Room, the rhythm of the new dance craze, "La Conga." It's basic, primitive, a story told down through the centuries. Revised and modified by Zanette and Manya, current Pall Mall attractions, it includes the frenzy of the native dances.

"La Conga" will be presented to Washington for the first time tonight. If you would like free lessons stop at the Pall Mall Room between the hours of 9 and 10 p. m. The dance is being boomed as a successor of the "Big Apple."

Boba Prozenka, who produced the "Blue Bird Revue" and other famous Russian revues, is now at the Troika and a spirit of comedy prevails. The lubov, a pantomine of slapstick, is excellent. Dena, the Bublishka girl, provides hilarious situations. Another number done in comic is La Grunka. Lola and Vanya give lessons in the fine art of flirting. "Othello" is a further attraction. This features Mischa, the talented Russian singer, and is beautifully costumed.

Borras Writes a Song.

The Madrillon is featuring a Spanish night Friday. Song writers had better look to their laurels. Peter Borras, Madrillon host, has written a rhumba (words and music), which will be played by Johnny Shaw and his band on this occasion. Shaw says it is a good rhumba. However, Borras is not desirous of quitting the restaurant business to become a composer. Two new arrangements of popular music will also be featured, "Three Little Words" and "Lady Be Good."

This week a Broadway revue comes to the Lotus. Six lovely girls are in the line-up as the "Wally Wanger Girls." Norman and McKay put on a modern dance. Marion Dawn sings and Al Norton and his orchestra provide music. Much credit on the success of recent revues goes to Al who spends many hours seeing that all acts go off smoothly.

The King's Jesters, now at the Carlton's Shar-Zad room, put on a different floor show every night. If you have seen them and liked them, come again. Incidentally, they are also in the lounge every afternoon.

Outdoes Easter Rabbit.

Albenice, the man with the persuasive smile, does tricks with eggs that the Easter bunny never dreamed of. His black magic is the attraction at the Shoreham's blue room this week. Enters and Borgia, dance team above the average, and Mary Burton, the singer who can get away with murder, brings a top-notch bill to the Shoreham.

Glen Echo Park will open for dancers and fun lovers Saturday. Little Joe Hart and his orchestra with star entertainers will preside in the Spanish Garden Ballroom. Joe has just completed engagements in St. Paul, Minneapolis and in the large Chicago Center Ballroom.

The show at the Bamboo Gardens is featuring as M. C. one of Washington's favorite entertainers, Leo Lisee. Dancers Keller and Martin, Andre and Frances, comedy team; Jordan and Grace, jugglers, and Dorothy Keller, tap specialist, are other attractions.

Theon, maitre d'hotel of the Wardman Park's Metronome Room, is laying plans for a May Day festival with flowers on every table. Garlands and wreaths will be used for decorations. He hopes to use a May pole in the center. If you have suggestions, send them along.

The entertainment at the Hi Hat Cocktail Lounge has the ingredients and seasonings that give variety. Here is the menu: Libby Frazier, "Miss Hi Hat," Jack and Jack, Buddy and Cleve, the String Swingsters and Hill Billy Dick Reger.

Father Gives Son To Mother Rather Than 'Injure' Him

Unwilling to have his 12-year-old son, Fred, haled to court to testify for "or against either of his parents" Robert E. Storm, 1681 Columbia road northwest, yesterday in an affidavit in District Court agreed award of the boy's custody to his mother, Mrs. Margaret Hoffman.

The affidavit explained that the father believed the visit to court would do the boy "irreparable injury, will undo all I have sought to do by placing him in a military academy, and will seriously affect his chances of becoming a useful citzen."

The parents each sought control of the boy last summer when the mother asked a warrant charging the father with whipping the youth too severely. Judge John P. McMahon held the father had used only normal parental means to control the boy and dimissed the charge.

Train Kills Foreman.

Black Feet, Navajos, Kiowas and Chickasaws to Send Performers.

Braves and maidens from four Indian tribes will gather in Washington next month for a twentieth century pow-wow that will include war dances, corn ceremonials and traditional flute love cals.

They will be a stellar attraction at the fifth annual National Folk Festival in Constitution Hall, May 6, 7 and 8, appearing on all six of the festival programs. Their part of the big show has been arranged in co-operation with the Office of Indian Affairs, and will provide a colorful cross section of the Indian's culture in present-day America.

Blackfeet, Navajos, Chickasaws and Kiowas are coming. The Kiowas will open the festival, with Chief Belo Cozad as their leader. Cozad is a flute maker who can play the tomtoms with such rhythmic precision that the whole audience wishes to join in the dancing.

"Bronze Nijinskys."

"Humming Bird Dance." "Shield Dance," "Buffalo Brave Dance." "Young Turkey Dance," "Kiowa Smoke Dance," "Fancy War Dance" and "Circle Dance" are but a few of the dances to which the braves will be called by the arresting music of a handmade artistically decorated flute that is a prized legacy from one generation to the next. In embroidered buckskins and richly feathered head-dresses the troupe will enact the ceremonial "Snake Dance" and "Gourd Dance."

Steve Mopope and Asah, who have been termed "the two bronze-skinned Nijinskys," will lead the "Shield Dance"—adding momentum and broader lines to the exhilarating dance figure.

It has been said that the Kiowas, who come from Anadarko, Okla., have held closer to their tribal traditions than any other Indian group. In addition to being expert dancers and musicians, they are noted for their accomplishments as artists.

Their paintings have received acclaim in both Europe and America. A comprehensive display of their art work will be included in the folk exhibition arranged in connection with the festival. Steve and Auchiah, two of their best dance leaders, are also two of their best artists.

Indian flutes, on which ancient love calls were sounded — calls which never had actual words to go with them—bear a resemblance to the flutes used in ancient Greece. They are handmade and vary slightly from tribe to tribe.

On the second festival day the Black Feet will be featured and on the third the Navajos, who are bringing an outstanding exhibit of their silverwork. All tribes will join in the corn cycles, led by Attaloa, a Chickasaw princess.

Tickets for the festival, sponsored by The Washington Post Folk Festival Association, are now on sale at The Post. All seats are reserved. Prices range from 25 cents to $2.

KEEP KIDNEYS ACTIVE WITH GOLD MEDAL
Haarlem Oil Capsules
Cost but 35 cents
If your kidneys are active and in good condition your life will be a healthier and happier one.
It's a good plan to give your kidneys a good cleaning once in a while with a wholesome, effective diuretic that can do you no harm.
Excess poisons and acid may segregate in the kidneys and help to cause an irritated bladder—with some people passage is difficult or scanty and often smarts and burns.
One good harmless diuretic that has proven its worth is GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules—right from Haarlem in Holland.
So if backache bothers—if you get nervous and irritable—if you have dizzy spells—if you break your refreshing sleep by getting up often at night it may be that your kidneys need attention. Ask for and get GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules—the original—and for your own sake do not accept any imitations—35 cents at every drug store in America.—Adv.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Girl Confesses Illicit Love Relationship to Fiance; He Wonders Whether to "Hold It Against Her."

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a young man 28 years old. Upon coming to this city four years ago, I met a young lady whom I immediately fell in love with. This girl is now 24 years of age. We are engaged and are to be married in the near future. However, this girl recently honorably confessed to me that she had had an affair with a boy whom she had been going with steadily for about four years, and whom she had every reason to believe she would marry one day. The question is this: Should I hold this against the girl? Or should I consider myself one of the few men who are told the truth by their bride-to-be? Please answer as quickly as possible.

WONDERING.

• • • •

DEAR WONDERING: Supposing you were to hold this girl's unnecessarily self-confessed mistake against her, you would be proving yourself miserably unworthy of the love-inspired trust she places in you. She paid you the highest compliment woman can pay to man, in assuming you were too decently generous and too understanding to take mean-minded advantage of such a confession. And she proved herself to be a person of courage, integrity and dependability, in letting you know what—in the eyes of society—would probably be considered the worst that could be known about her, while there was yet time for you to make a decision against her.

• • • •

Very probably, in confessing her secret to you, she has conferred upon you the distinction of being "one of the few men who are told the truth by their bride-to-be." Yet the reason so few men are told the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth by those women who play important roles in their lives is because so few men are constitutionally able to bear with the truth—to accept it, digest it, and deal with it honorably and kindly. Determined, for the most part, to fool themselves about nearly everything except what has to do with the strictly materialistic, they are largely aided and abetted in this self-deception by their womenfolk.

• • • •

The attitude of most women is to the effect that the less you tell your husband, the happier he is, and the better off you are. Rather a sad commentary on the lack of fundamental confidence and respect in men-and-women relationships, isn't it? My advice to you is to dismiss your fiancee's confession from your mind altogether; remembering it, if at all and if you must, only as the greatest compliment your sweetheart could pay you, and with gratitude that she had the gallantry to play altogether fair with you.

M. H.

Never Alone With Beau.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am nearly 19, and for two years have been going with a nice young man 24 years old. My parents think I am still too young to go out alone with a boy friend. I have to take my sister wherever I go. Even then, mother always says, "Be back before dark," or "Don't stay out too long." Consequently, we are always in a hurry. At home, some member of the family must sit with us all evening. We can never be alone. When we do go out, sometimes we have to argue for the privilege, even with my sister along. Consequently, we don't care to go out much.

• • • •

The boy has given me many nice gifts, which my parents didn't object to my accepting, so why should they be so strict with us? I didn't mind it so much the first year or so, but now that I have known him so long and we have become so devoted to each other, I don't see why we have to take sister everywhere. We have planned to marry when I am older, but my parents don't know this. Do you suppose they would change their attitude if they did?

• • • •

Would they be more lenient if he gave me an engagement ring? He once said he was going to give me a ring but I told him not to, thinking it might make matters worse. I'd love to have a ring, though. We love each other dearly, but I'm afraid if this goes on I may lose him and this must not happen. He is such a nice boy: everyone likes him. How old should a girl be before she is permitted to go out alone with a boy? We can be trusted, so this shouldn't stand in the way. I can't stand it much longer. Something must be done.

HEARTBROKEN.

Parents Shortsighted.

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: Any girl who has been intelligently reared, whose character development has been properly guided, and who has had some training and first-hand experience in the social arts of friendship and courtship, is old enough, at 18, to go out unchaperoned with a young man. Parents who refuse an 18-year-old daughter this rudimentary social privilege are, by such prohibition, either damning themselves as insufferable meddlers, petty tyrants or unwholesomely suspicious-minded, or they are damning their daughter as a moron, who never will develop beyond the 12-year-old stage, or a moral weakling who must constantly be protected from her own involuntary waywardness.

• • • •

Such over-protectiveness as your parents employ seldom, if ever, serves any good purpose. As a rule, it defeats its own purpose, by destroying, rather than promoting, the guarded child's happiness. Either it divorces him, slowly but surely, from normal association with his contemporaries; or it forces the child to fight his way to personal freedom of action by the devious route of evasion and deceit. The worst of it is, such parents will seldom listen to reason. One might reverse the old simile by saying that they refuse to unlock the barn door until after the horse has gone.

• • • •

I can only suggest, in your case, since your parents obviously approve of the boy, that you become formally engaged to him, by accepting—and wearing—his ring; by tentatively setting a time for the wedding; and by telling your parents, quietly and decisively, that you are going to be married in 1939, or 1940, or whenever you think it possible (but make it fairly specific.) Then, as a formally affianced couple, claim the right to come and go unchaperoned. Unless you do this, you are in grave danger of losing the boy's companionship altogether. No young man of proper pride and self respect is going to continue indefinitely dragging his lady love's sister along as chaperone on strictly time-limited "dates." without his devotion's breaking down altogether under the unnatural and slightly ridiculous strain.

• • • •

Tell your parents frankly how much you love the boy; what a wholesome companion and influence he is; how much you are both to be trusted; how fearful you are that you may lose his love altogether unless given a little more self-respecting freedom of action, and ask for the privilege of at least one unchaperoned evening together each week, with the curfew set at 12 o'clock sharp. If they aren't sympathetic and won't grant that much, they are being obstinately ungenerous and unreasonable. And in that event, there is no remedy short of completely emancipating yourself from their guardianship; which means waiting until you are completely self supporting and have attained to legal majority. After that, of course, you may do as you please; and let's hope your parents will have prepared you to deal wisely with such freedom.

M. H.

Mrs. B. E. Smith Makes Dream Of Far Travels Become Real

George Washington University Consultant Gardener Takes Ten-Week Tour Alone Through North Africa, Greece and Turkey.

By Genevieve Reynolds.

DREAMING of far-away, picturesque places and peering longingly at enticing travel books is as far as most housewives and professional women escape from their humdrum, work-a-day life. Usually they close the book and sigh, "If I only had the money, or if I weren't so old."

But for one woman a dream became a reality. This woman, Mrs. Benjamin E. Smith, consultant gardener at George Washington University, who began a career when most mothers with married children sink comfortably into complete domesticity and middle-age pursuits, recently returned from a ten-week voyage to Turkey, French Morocco, Greece and Tunis.

For a long time Mrs. Smith had enthusiastically pored over travel literature. In her imagination she went to China, South America, Europe and Asia. After many months of keen anticipation she decided that she would make an ocean voyage, even if she had to go alone.

Liked Remote Places.

'Remote, unfrequented places interested me more than the conventional tourist routes," explained Mrs. Smith, "and to reach them I had to travel on a freighter. So I set sail alone."

Sailing into the first port, Casa Blanca, at French Morocco, she said: "When I saw the white house on the hill and blue sky above I was reminded of a stage setting. The scenes were so beautiful it seemed unreal."

From there she want to Tunis and on to ancient Carthage. Of Carthage she remarked, "Time stood still—it was nothing."

Watching the sunrise on Mount Olympus provided the greatest thrill, according to Mrs. Smith. It was the day after the royal wedding and close beside her stood the Duchess of Kent and her party.

After leaving Athens she went to Salonica and then to Istanbul. More time was spent in Istanbul than any other port. There she visited friends. In order to form her own opinion of the place, she roamed the streets alone, riding in second class trams, so that she might meet all classes and types of people. She talked with both poor and rich, educated and uneducated Turks.

Unable to speak the languages of the countries she visited, she found no difficulty in understanding them, for in every country she found some one who had lived in the United States. Most of them had sold post cards here or products from a push-cart. Through these people she conversed with those about her.

Was Never Cheated.

Turkey today, she explained is progressive. One third of their parliament is composed of women. Everywhere there are schools and colleges. Young girls dress like American girls, wear the same cosmetics, work as stenographers, telephone operators, clerks and teachers. They are poised and well bred.

"In fact," she continued, "I received courteous, friendly treatment everywhere in Istanbul. Not once was I stared at or jostled in a crowd. And despite the fact that I couldn't count my money quickly enough to make change no one there ever cheated me so much as half a cent. At the bazaars, in the trams, railroads and other places, I just held the money in my palms and they took out the correct amount of my fare or purchase."

Contrary to the general belief that Turkish women are fat and awkward, Mrs. Smith found the young girls slim, well-formed, graceful, modest and soft-spoken.

"Is it true that banishment of the harem created an old maid problem there?" Mrs. Smith was asked.

Harems Very Quiet.

"Quite the opposite," she replied. "Rather than increasing the number of spinsters, it gives the women a better chance to make contacts and desirable marriages. Generally, the head of the harem was true to one wife, whom he loved. Many of the other members did not ever see him except when they were called in to dance for entertainments. Their life was as secluded as a nun's. They had no opportunity to have a normal married life. The harems in Turkey have too long been misunderstood. They were not riotuus and iniquitous sex dens, as commonly believed. For the most part, they were quiet and orderly. It was exceptional for the sultan to really live with more than one wife."

Each home in Turkey had some flowers in the yard or on the front porch. Mrs. Smith found families who were too poor to have a garden had some plant or flower around in boxes or old tin cans. The wealthier people had large formal gardens with many roses. Very few had lawns in summer, due to the scarcity of water. What water could be procured was saved for flowers, rather than a lawn.

Roses are the favorite flowers of the Turkish people. It was there Mrs. Smith found many old and new species of the rose. Sharing beauty with their friends is characteristic of the Turkish people, Mrs. Smith also discovered. For example, early in the morning, when they left for work, they carried roses in their hands. On meeting a friend they would present a rose. That friend gave the rose to another friend. It passed from one person to another all through the day. The last one that received it carried it home to be placed in water.

Your Figure Madame!

By Ida Jean Kain.

ROLLING, WE'VE DECIDED, is the answer to the working girl's figure problem. It hits the high spots and is the easy way to streamline.

The hipline may jut out in the back, bow out at the sides, or just be an all-around problem, but you can roll right back into shape.

For the general hip problem, roll from side to side in a half-sitting position to put the pressure where it is needed.

MOVEMENT: Rock from side to side, catching the weight on first one hand and then the other, with opposite hands lifting off the floor. To strengthen the abdominal muscles while doing this hip rolling, hold the feet a few inches off the floor.

Variety Suggested.

If your extra hipline weight seems to be concentrated just below the small of the back, use the following exercise, a different technique in rolling:

POSITION: Lying on back on floor with knees drawn up and the ankles crossed. Have the hands clasped back of the head so that the arms form a cradle.

MOVEMENT: Keeping the head on the floor, roll from one side to the other, going all the way over on the sides of the thighs. Give yourself a push with the upper arms to facilitate the rolling.

POSITION: Sit on the floor with the arms out at the sides and back, hands on the floor. Lean back until your weight is on the buttocks. Have legs straight out in front.

MOVEMENT: Use your arms as supports to lift the body off the floor so that the weight is on the hands and heels, with the hips a few inches from the floor. Now lower quickly, administer a smart spank to the hips. Continue to raise and lower 25 counts, gradually increasing to 100.

Kicking Also Effective.

Thumps and thuds will get rid of the thighline bulges. Try this:

POSITION: Lying on the back on the floor, arms out at the sides, knees slightly flexed and feet on the floor. Hold the legs together.

MOVEMENT: With a quick movement, twist at the waist and push with the heels, bringing the left leg down on the floor with a thud. Keep the legs and feet together, twist and push to the right, and bring the right leg down with a thud. Five times for each side will be plenty for the first week. After that, the number of times you repeat the exercise depends on how much you want to lose those bulges on the sides of the hips and thighs.

If you prefer kicking exercises, by all means do them. They are just as effective as rolling, but we will admit that a program of kicking exercises can be a bit wearing. Rolling takes less effort than any other form of exercise and you can see results in a week.

Paris Girls Wear Striped Raincoats And Lisle Hose

Paris (U.P.).—Water-proof checkered or striped coats and capes are the Parisian's favorite for stormy weather.

New three-piece swagger suits with rounded revers, which cross over and button on the shoulders for warmth, are being shown at Trois Quartiers. In rubberized fabrics, they are in smart color contrasts: plaid suit, plain coat, or plaid coat, plain suit.

During heavy rains, French girls wear the ribbed lisle and woolen hosiery that the American girl would not dare be seen in. Nevertheless, these hose are good looking and protect the legs without the need of awkward boots. They come in sets matched with mittens and scarfs.

Dieckhoff's Wife Back Here Today

Envoy of Germany Meets Her as Ship Docks in New York.

Counselor to Leave for Berlin for Vacation This Week.

By Hope Ridings Miller,

An arrival, a heralded departure and a small dinner—all with a German accent—made Washington's most interesting social news yesterday. When the North German Lloyd liner Europa pulled into port in New York last night, Frau Dieckhoff, wife of the German Ambassador, was on board and Herr Dieckhoff was at the pier to meet her. She left for her homeland several weeks ago to discuss final plans for the new German Embassy with Der Fuehrer himself. She and the Ambassador are scheduled to return to Washington today and then they will be off for a brief Easter vacation, coming back to the Capital early next week.

Meanwhile, Washington social circles yesterday afternoon were buzzing with the report that Dr. Hans Thomsen, Counselor of the German Embassy, had been summoned home by Hitler, and that there were doubts he would return. A brief conversation by telephone with Dr. Thomsen clarified the situation. There was no doubt he would be back. He will leave this week for his homeland, where he will attend to routine duties in the Berlin office and enjoy a brief vacation before returning to Washington in June. Meanwhile, Frau Thomsen will remain here to enjoy the Capital's most pleasant season.

Prochniks Attend Thomsen Dinner

One of the final social functions on Dr. Thomsen's "before-sailing calendar" was the dinner he and Frau Thomsen gave last night in their home on Colorado avenue. In the company of 12 were the former Austrian Minister and Mme. Edgar Prochnik, who do their dining out these days without benefit of official rank.

Others in the party were the Minister of Finland and Mme. Eero Jarnefelt, the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Wayne Chatfield Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Shouse, Philip Broadmead, of the British Embassy, and Miss Rebecca Wellington.

Frau Herbert Blankenhorn, wife of the Second Secretary of the German Embassy, also entered yesterday's social picture when she entertained at a small luncheon at her home on Thirty-third place . . . Frau Paulus von Stolzmann, wife of the First Secretary of the same embassy, has cards out for a tea on Thursday, April 21.

Minister to Norway Arrives in New York

Just when she will be on down to Washington even her best friends don't seem to know, but anyway, Mrs. Borden Harriman, United States Minister to Norway, arrived last night on the Europa for a visit that will keep her in this country until June.

While most Washingtonians who don't know her as "Daisy" know her as Mrs. Borden Harriman, her name appears on the sailing list as it is on the diplomatic register—Florence Jaffray Harriman. While her plans as revealed in recent letters to friends here indicated that Mrs. Harriman will spend some time visiting relatives and friends in New York, chances are she will be on down to Washington soon.

• • • •

HERE AND THERE: Paulo Hasslocher of the Brazilian Embassy yesterday received an enviable award. At a quiet ceremony witnessed by a handful of fellow diplomats, the Ambassador of Ecuador, Capital Colon Eloy Alfaro, presented Mr. Hasslocher with the decoration of the National Order of Merit, in the grade of grand officer. The citation, as voiced by Ambassador Alfaro, indicated that the award was the highest decoration his government had to offer to a representative of another country . . . Miss Sally Holmes, daughter of Admiral and Mrs. Ralston Holmes, will arrive on the Manhattan tomorrow after spending several months in Egypt with the State Department conference . . . She will be in Washington a week before going to Philadelphia to be a bridesmaid in the wedding of Miss Hester Lanning and Dr. D. S. Pepper on April 23 . . . Mrs. Lothrop Stoddard will entertain at a tea on Wednesday, April 20, in compliment to Mrs. Adelaide Hibbard, who recently returned to Washington after an absence of several months . . . Mr. and Mrs. John McClure have cards out for a dinner on April 21, at which guests of honor will be the Canadian Minister and Lady Marler.

Tea Will Begin Exhibit At Green Acres School

A tea at Green Acres School in Silver Spring on Easter Monday from 4 to 6 p. m. will formally open the exhibit of children's work at the school during next week. Mrs. L. Corrin Strong and Mrs. Waldron Faulkner will assist at the tea.

The exhibit will include a wide variety of arts and cultural products from 15 progressive schools of the East. A number of leaders in social, civic and educational life will be present.

Mrs. George Nordlinger has gone to New York for a week's visit.

• • • •

Mrs. Henry Hildebrand, of Springfield, Vt., joined Mrs. A. W. La Fountain, also of Springfield, at the Wardman Park Hotel yesterday. Mrs. La Fountain arrived here last week for an indefinite stay.

France's Envoy Fetes Bullitt

Those who attended the affair at the Embassy were all men. They included Jesse H. Jones, head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation; Adolph A. Berle, Assistant Secretary of State; James Clement Dunn, of the State Department; Arthur Krock, James T. Williams, and Charles Lucet, Third Secretary of the French Embassy.

Count de Saint-Quentin stepped over to Mr. and Mrs. Snowden A. Fahnestock's home on Q street for dinner last evening. He shared the honors of ranking guest with the Belgian Ambassador and Countess van der Straten-Ponthoz at the party for 24.

Mrs. Evatt Barnum Entertains 10 at Dinner in Hotel

Mrs. Evatt Barnum entertained at dinner at the Shoreham last evening. Her guests were Vice Admiral Robert Witthoeft-Emden, Naval Attache of the German Embassy; Herbert Blankenhorn, Second Secretary of the German Embassy, and Frau Blankenhorn, and Michal Budny, Attache of the Polish Embassy.

Also Mrs. Patterson Roberts, Miss Margaret Hall, Mrs. Scudder Doeg, Commander Robert B. Simons, Ostermann Von Roth and Eugene O'Dunne.

About The Town

With Dudley Harmon

STROLLING around Georgetown on the most perfect day so far this spring: The hamburger shoppe going up on the site of something awfully quaint . . . Mrs. Justice Roberts, in a yellow cape suit and matching sports hat, walking her wire-haired terrier with a bundle under her arm . . . Mrs. Donald Hiss, in smart black, also with a pup on a leash.

DUDLEY HARMON.

The photography class meeting in Mrs. Brinkley Smither's backyard. Mrs. Lucius Wilmerding sitting under a pink cherry tree and posing for camera shots by Mrs. David Karrick and Mrs. Alfred Hand. Teacher Marvin Breckinridge looking very efficient.

Mrs. Harold Hinton putting the top down on her Packard coupe . . . The grass in front of Ralph Snowden Hill's charming house needs cutting . . . The little front yard of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge's home is filled with violets. A glimpse of lovely curtains striped in yellow and pale blue fluttering in the slight wind . . . Mrs. McCook Knox's remodeled home on N street is almost ready for occupancy. Some of Mrs. Knox's furniture has already been moved in, although the owner is still at the Anchorage. The residence is a lovely old one next to that of Representative and Mrs. James Wadsworth.

• • • • •

THINGS TO COME: The Commandant of the Navy Yard and Mrs. George T. Pettingill will give a small dinner Saturday night . . . Frau von Stolzmann will have a cocktail party Thursday, April 21, at her residence on Forty-ninth street. Her husband is First Secretary of the German Embassy . . . Otherwise the town is very, very dead. Not even a pagan would dream of giving anything big on Good Friday. Tomorrow is the second and final of Kurt Hetzel's musicales. Mrs. John Creighton, wife of Commander Creighton, will sing.

• • • •

MRS. EVALYN WALSH McLEAN is the taxi drivers' favorite. She always gives a dollar tip. Her servants have been with her as long as 25 years, and are all devoted to the mistress of Friendship. Wonder why Mrs. McLean so seldom accepts social engagements? She hardly ever makes dates for luncheon. She looks well after her Florida trip, although her weight is down to only a little over 100 pounds.

• • • •

THE SULTAN of Oman and Muscat (remember him?) is now on a fortnight's visit to London . . . Miss Marjorie Meuser, the American niece of the American-born Marchioness of Huntly, will make her debut shortly in the British capital. But the real news is that the 18-year-old girl has just passed the tests for her pilot's license in France. Ever since she was a little girl she has been anxious to fly, and for years has been reading books and papers about aviation. She is the cousin of Arthur Campbell, who frequently visits Washington.

CORNELIUS VANDERBILT was in town earlier in the week, but without his famous trailer . . . We also caught a glimpse of William Gaston in front of the Mayflower . . . He formerly worked for a New Deal agency.

NOTES OF SOCIETY

Official and Residential

Senator and Mrs. Josiah W. Bailey, of North Carolina, have as their house guest at the Mayflower Hotel the latter's mother, Mrs. James H. Pou, of Raleigh, N. C., who has just returned from a three-month cruise in the Caribbean. She is accompanied by Miss Melville Fort, also of Raleigh.

Senator and Mrs. Bailey's son, James H. Pou Bailey, of the University of North Carolina, will spend next week in Washington.

• • • •

Senator and Mrs. Warren R. Austin, of Vermont, have their grandson, Warren R. Austin 3d, with them at the Mayflower for his spring vacation from school at Burlington.

• • • •

Representative Benjamin Jarrett, of Pennsylvania, left yesterday morning to join Mrs. Jarrett at their home at Farrell, Pa., where they will spend the Easter holidays. Representative Jarrett plans to take advantage of the trout season which opens in Pennsylvania April 15 and will do a little fishing.

• • • •

Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose entertained at dinner at the Shoreham Hotel last evening.

• • • •

Col. and Mrs. Henry C. Pillsbury, who have many friends in Washington, arrived yesterday by motor from New York City and, for a stay of a week or two, will be at the Carlton Hotel. Col. Pillsbury is stationed at Balboa Heights, Canal Zone, and he and Mrs. Pillsbury sailed from there last week on the S. S. Virginia for a spring visit in this country.

• • • •

Dr. and Mrs. R. M. Anderson, of Hackensack, N. J., are at the Hay-Adams House.

• • • •

Col. F. M. Cox, of Tennessee, is at the Raleigh Hotel, as is Maj. William C. Lee, of Kansas.

• • • •

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Smith, of Sidney, Australia, and David Smith are at the Wardman Park Hotel while in Washington until the end of the week.

• • • •

Among Washingtonians at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, in New York City, are Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Yonker and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Doran.

• • • •

Dr. and Mrs. J. Louis McCarty, of Berwind, W. Va., are at the Dodge Hotel.

• • • •

Mrs. Mary W. How and Miss Mary W. How, of Duluth, Minn., are at the Shoreham before returning to their home after a vacation in Florida.

• • • •

Mrs. W. S. Wolfe, of Akron, Ohio, is at the Hay-Adams House.

• • • •

Mr. and Mrs. Jules S. Brandt, of New York City, are at the Raleigh Hotel, as are Mr. and Mrs. G. A. McDermott, also of New York.

• • • •

Mrs. Robert Coltman, of London, England, who has made her home in Washington at various times in the past, arrived yesterday to join her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Coltman, and their family who have been in Shanghai, China. They are occupying a suite at the Wardman Park for several days.

• • • •

Dr. and Mrs. H. I. Haines, of Coatesville, Pa., are spending a brief time at the Dodge.

Edith Estelle Bogart Will Return for Visit

Miss Edith Estelle Bogart, of New Haven, Conn., who last week was the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Stamm, will return Friday to be their guest again indefinitely. Miss Bogart is the daughter of the late John B. Bogart, who was city editor of the New York Sun in the days of Charles A. Dana.

Charles Morgans On Wedding Trip

Now on a motor trip through the South, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Raymond Morgan were married Monday evening at Sherwood Presbyterian Church with the Rev. Thomas L. Coyle officiating. The bride is the former Miss Ruth Pancoast White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William White, of this city. Mr. Morgan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Morgan, also of Washington.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white satin dress fashioned with a long train and embroidered with pearls at the neckline. Her tulle veil was fastened with orange blossoms and she carried an arm bouquet of calla lilies.

Miss Helen Black, her maid of honor, was in peach chiffon, with a lace bolero and carried talisman roses and blue delphinium. Bridesmaids were Miss Carolyn Hotis and Miss Alice Morgan, sister of the bridegroom. Both wore gowns like that of the maid of honor, but in blue chiffon.

Lawrence Morgan, brother of the bridegroom, was best man while ushers were Frederick White and John Costello.

At the reception at the home of the bride's parents following the ceremony, Mrs. William White was in brown lace and had a corsage of yellow roses, while the mother of the bridegroom wore rose lace and a corsage of gardenias.

When the couple left the bride wore a gray traveling suit with blue accessories. They will make their home at 908 Quincy street.

Mrs. Morgan is a graduate of Wilson Teachers College while the bridegroom is an alumnus of the University of Iowa.

S. H. Sueyros to Give Cocktail Party April 21

Capt. Saba H. Sueyro, Naval Attache of the Argentine Embassy, and Mrs. Sueyro have cards out for a cocktail party in the Mayflower Hotel April 21.

Society Notables To Attend Races At Middleburg

Events Are Scheduled for Saturday, Following Wednesday.

All roads will lead to Middleburg, Va., for the Middleburg Hunt Spring Races on Saturday, April 16 and Wednesday, April 20.

Not only will society from all parts of the country be on hand as spectators, but it also will be responsible for many of the entries. One of the contestants for the Middleburg Cup will be Lassitude II (who shouldn't live up to his name), and who is owned by Col. Wyndham Torr, military attache of the British Embassy.

Amory A. Lawrence, of Washington and Boston, is due to enter the Raymond Belmont Memorial three-mile race Saturday, riding his own horse, Racharock.

Social Notables Will Attend Meet

Other owners and trainers who will be on hand for the Saturday card, which will be run for the benefit of the Loudoun County Hospital, include Mrs. Marion duPont Scott, recently returned from England, where she went laurel-gathering with Battleship; Randy Duffy, whose forthcoming marriage to Miss Viola Winmill will take place May 3, and the ubiquitous Mrs. John Hay Whitney.

Among those planning parties are Mr. and Mrs. Daniel C. Sands and Miss Charlotte Noland, who will give a large luncheon preceding the races on Saturday. This, the joint-masters luncheon, will be held at Benton Farms, home of the Daniel Sands. Prominent among the guests will be Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, who will stay with Mr. and Mrs. Sands over the week-end, and Gov. Robert C. Perry of Virginia and Mrs. Perry.

The C. Oliver Iselins will also entertain, and Miss Audrey Campbell, cousin of Thomas Leiter, will be with the William Doellers, of Prospect Hill.

Many to Have Week-End Guests

Mr. and Mrs. George Garrett will have as their house guest over the week-end Mrs. James Roosevelt. Mrs. Brinton Coxe, of Philadelphia, also will be down for the affair and will stay at the North Wales Club. She is the grandmother of William Stokes, jr., who will marry Miss Polly Buchanan, daughter of John Buchanan, of Warrenton, and Mrs. Lester Buchanan, of Washington, on April 23.

The Arthur Whites will have as week-end guests in their Chilton Manor Farm, the Ivor Baldings, of Long Island, and will entertain at a small informal tea following the races. Mrs. Ayres Starr also will entertain following the races, while the Duncan Reads and Frederick M. Warburg will have many house guests for the Saturday meet.

Miss Lanigan Plights Troth

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Margaret Virginia Lanigan, of Riverdale, N. Y., to Lieut. Arthur Oberbeck, now stationed at Fort Belvoir, Va. The wedding will take place in September.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Andrew Lanigan, of Riverdale, while the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Overbeck, of Chicago.

Miss Lanigan is a graduate of the Academy of the Holy Child and the Harriette Melissa Mills School of New York. Lieut. Oberbeck was graduated first in his class from the United States Military Academy last June.

Billy Roosevelt Will Watch Eggs Rolling on Lawn

Watching the traditional egg rolling from the broad south portico of the White House on Easter Monday, will be little Billy Donner Roosevelt, son of Elliot Roosevelt. He will come from Philadelphia with his mother, Mrs. Curtin Winsor and Mr. Winsor and Mrs. Maurice Block, who will be accompanied by her two children.

Mrs. Roosevelt who comes to Washington from New York today, will have the usual full schedule of engagements on her hands. This afternoon she will receive a group of Camp Fire Girls at the White House and then will attend a tea to be given in her honor by the Arlington County League of Women Voters. This morning, she will make an address at the University of Maryland.

Tomorrow she will be hostess at the White House at teas for railway magazine editors; the Young Democratic Woman's Club of Baltimore; and the National Society, Daughters of Patriots and Founders of America.

Bride Completes Plans for Wedding

Miss Elizabeth Ann Fieser, daughter of the vice chairman of the Red Cross and Mrs. James L. Fieser, of Edgemoor, Md., has completed arrangements for her wedding on April 16 to Albert Cobb Persons. The ceremony will take place at 5:30 p. m. at St. Mary-on-the-Highland, in Birmingham, Ala.

Miss Nelson Persons, of Birmingham, will serve as the bride's maid of honor and only attendant, while Herbert Morgan, also of Birmingham, will be the best man.

Here From Arkansas.

Mrs. John E. Miller, wife of Senator Miller, of Arkansas, will entertain at luncheon today in honor of Mrs. William Martin Eades, of Fort Smith, Ark., who is the guest of her mother, Mrs. Ben Cravens, wife of Representative Cravens. Guests wil be the wives of the Arkansas House delegation.

Betrothal Is Announced

Harris & Ewing.

MISS ELEANOR CECILIA DENT,
whose engagement to Charles Abbot Beard, jr., of Rockville, Md., is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Addison Dent. The wedding will take place in the early fall.

Clara Isabel Boone has returned to her studio apartment at 3435 Brown street after several days in New York City. She will be at home informally on Sunday evening after 6:30 o'clock.

Closes to Entertain.

Eleanor Dent To Be Bride of C. A. Beard, Jr.

Daughter of D. C. Surveyor Graduate of Western High School.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Addison Dent announce the engagement of their daughter, Eleanor Cecilia, to Charles Abbot Beard, jr., of Rockville, Md., the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Abbot Beard. The wedding will take place in the early fall.

The bride-elect, whose father is Surveyor of the District of Columbia, is a graduate of Western High School, while Mr. Beard attended Catholic University, is a graduate of Columbus University and a member of the District of Columbia Bar.

The mother of the bride-to-be is the daughter of the late Joseph E. Hayden, formerly Assistant United States Attorney for Washington who also served as United States Consul in several European countries. Miss Dent's father, a native Washingtonian, is the son of Louis Addison Dent, attorney and confidential secretary to Secretary of State James G. Blaine. Other positions which he held included those of Register of Wills for Washington, auditor of the Supreme Court of the District and special assistant to the Attorney General.

The Dents are descended from Capt. John Dent, of Charles County, Md., an officer in the Indian Wars, and the Rev. Hatch Dent, an officer of Smallwood's Battalion, Maryland's famous Four Hundred in the Revolution, and first principal of Charlotte Hall School, Md.

Zelina Clark Engaged To Donald P. Blagden

The betrothal of Miss Zelina Therese Clark, of New York and Bar Harbor, Me., to Donald Peabody Blagden, also of New York, has been announced here. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Blagden, who formerly made their home in Washington, but now live in Upper Saranac, N. Y. The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mrs. David Crawford Clark and the late Mr. Clark. The wedding will take place in June.

Tree-Planting Program at Rock Creek Park Features Opening of 3-Day Rally of Nation's Camp Fire Girls

70 From All Parts of U. S. Participate in Arbor Day Project.

Conservation is Subject of Conference; Will Meet First Lady Today.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,

Weather, made-to-order, greeted 70 Camp Fire Girls from all parts of the United States when they gathered in Washington yesterday for a three-day rally on conservation. They began their convention with a picnic and tree-planting ceremony in Rock Creek Park yesterday morning, at which Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg, wife of Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, and a member of the national board, was guest of honor.

The girls came to Washington by motor, station wagon, train and bus, accompanied by their adult leaders, and are having the time of their lives, mixing sightseeing with their Camp Fire program. They went in two buses from their headquarters at the Mayflower Hotel to the Joaquin Miller cabin in the park, where 20 trees sent ahead from their home States were placed. The motorcycle escort which accompanied the party was one of the most impressive parts of the trip so far as the young visitors were concerned.

The girls wore white middie blouses, blue skirts, red ties, the Camfire armbands and berets, both bearing crossed logs and torch-flame, which are the insignia of the organization. They rehearsed camfire songs on the way out and gathered in little groups to take pictures and look up their particular trees when they arrived at the park. Already there were the Bluebirds—the junior troops from nearby Maryland—playing ball, enjoying the swings or balancing their way cautiously across a shallow place in the creek via a large fallen tree.

Mrs. Vandenberg Brings Doughnuts

Flags and the Camfire banner designated the site for the ceremonies and in an adjoining part of the park, picnic preparations were made before one of the fireplaces. When Mrs. Vandenberg arrived, she brought with her 100 doughnuts, freshly baked, which she passed among the groups of picnickers while they were at luncheon. She needed nothing to add to her popularity among the girls, but if she had the doughnuts would have turned the trick. They were greeted with genuine appreciation.

After the luncheon the girls assembled before the improvised speakers' platform, where Miss Ruth Pierpont Stephens, of the national staff, presided at the brief ceremonies in connection with the tree-planting. The formal dedication was held at the gum tree sent by the Cleveland, Ohio, girls, the largest delegation to the rally. "This and neighboring trees were brought from all parts of the country by Camp Fire Girls and planted at the National Conservation Rally, April 12, 1938, in memory of Dr. Luther Gulick, their first president," says the inscription on the bronze tablet at the foot of the tree, which was read by Mrs. Vandenberg.

The girls who participated in the dedication were June Wamble, of Walla Walla, Wash., who expressed appreciation for the industrial uses of trees; Nancy Kelly, of Detroit, who termed trees "friends," giving shelter to birds, animals and even to the ferns which grow at their feet; Beatrice Pugsley, of Buffalo, who called them "conservationists"—holding the soil and water with their roots; Mary Jane Anderson, of Bethesda, Md., who pledged the interest of the girls nearby in watching their growth, and Lorraine Sterkel, of Cleveland, who expressed appreciation for trees in their contribution to the beauty of the landscape.

Historic Spade Used in Ceremony

The spade used in the planting ceremony was the official one of the National Capital Parks Service, first used 40 years ago by President Theodore Roosevelt for planting a tree on the White House grounds and since then by every President except President Franklin Roosevelt.

Marshall Finnen, superintendent of the National Capital Parks, welcomed the girls, and Edward Kelly, administrative assistant, added his official greeting; August Hanson explained the plan of arrangement for the trees and Clyde Burton assisted in the planting ceremony. Miss Frances Loomis, of the national staff, also spoke.

Among the adult leaders present were Mrs. Paul Ledig, of Bethesda, chairman of the Guardians Association, and Mrs. F. Norman Hearn, of Silver Spring, a former Camp Fire Girl, who are official hostesses for the convention; Mrs. H. K. Ferguson, of Huntington, W. Va.; Mrs. W. T. Snodgrass, of Charlottesville, Va.; Mrs. G. P. Kinsolving, of Corsicana, Tex.; Miss Florence Bremer, of Sandusky, Ohio; Miss Mildred Black, of New Haven, Conn., and Miss Doris Bishop, of Cleveland, who are acting as group leaders during the conference; Miss Katherine Powers, who was a Camp Fire Girl in Belleville, Ill., 25 years ago and now is in Washington; Mrs. Lindley H. Dennis, a former leader in Camp Hill, Pa., now a resident of the District; Mrs. Harry deLong, Mrs. Percy G. Marshall, Mrs. Roswell Boyer, Mrs. Gordon Kline, Mrs. Wilburt Snyder, Mrs. Howard Richardson and Mrs. Helen Schaeffer.

Girls to Breakfast Today at Capitol

This morning the girls will breakfast at 10:30 in a room adjoining the Senate dining room, meet many of their Senators, including their hostess, Senator Hattie Caraway, of Arkansas, and then see Congress in session. At 4 o'clock they will go to the White House to have tea with Mrs. Roosevelt, and this evening hold a rally in the auditorium of the Agriculture Building. Tomorrow they will reach the climax of their stay when they go to see President Roosevelt at the White House and a chosen six girls, who have done the most outstanding conservation work locally, will receive national honors from him. They will visit Mount Vernon with motorcycle escort tomorrow afternoon and then entrain for home.

Camp Fire Girls taking part in national radio programs will be Virginia Krueger, of Sandusky, Ohio, reforestation enthusiast who will speak on the "Farm and Home Hour" program, 12:30 to 1:30 p. m. (E. S. T.) today and tomorrow at the same hour. Betty Wheelock, from Corsicana, Tex., will tell Dr. Hugh H. Bennett chief of the Federal Soil Conservation Service, how she saved her father's farm.

Corrine Reardon Heads Alexandria Business Women

Miss Corrine Talmadge Reardon was re-elected president of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Alexandria for a second term last night at the club's meeting in the George Mason Hotel.

Miss Elizabeth Apperson was re-elected for a second term as vice president, and Miss Edith M. Whitton as corresponding secretary. Mrs. Irene Pancoast was elected recording secretary, succeeding Miss Minnie Brock, and Miss Alice Gronau, treasurer, succeeding Miss Dorothea Mills.

Miss Reardon, Miss Whitton and Miss Gronau were in the original group of 50 women who formed the Alexandria club May 17, 1921. It later reached a limited membership of 100, with a waiting list for vacancies.

War Is Described By Carmien Meana

Senora Carmen Meana, recently arrived in this country from Barcelona, talked half in Spanish and half in French to guests at a tea given yesterday by Mrs. A. Ford Hinrichs for the Women's Committee to Aid the Children of Spanish Democracy. She told how the women of Madrid played a great role in defending that city.

She is secretary of the subway workers union. In 1936, when Moorish Italian soldiers arrived at the gates of Madrid, and the Government had no airplanes and no heavy artillery, she said, the subway workers organized a battalion of 800 men and the women took the places of men on the subway trains and in the shops. Senora Meana led this movement to release the men for service at the front.

She is a social worker as well as a ticket seller. Since March, 1937, she has been working with the Committee of Anti-Fascist Women to bring women's support to the Government. She has organized places where refugees are cared for; dispensaries for the whole population; nursing and children's homes, to teach the illiterate women to read. Among these refugees, she helped organize co-operative factories where women made bandages and clothing for the Ordnance Department.

Members of the local Women's Committee are:

Mrs. Gardner Jackson, Mrs. Hinrichs, Mrs. Joseph Mackenzie, Mrs. Charles Garland, Mrs. Clark Warburton, Mrs. David Barr, Mrs. Charles Putnam, Mrs. Ernest Gruening, Mrs. Mordecai Ezekiel, Miss Peggy Duffy, Mrs. Walter Gardener, and Alexander Hawes.

Woodridge Book Club Elects Mrs. Thompson President

The Woodridge Book Club elected Mrs. David Thompson president yesterday at its annual luncheon in the Admiral. The luncheon celebrated the eleventh anniversary of the club, which was formed in 1927 by a group of women who had been meeting for bridge and decided to transfer their interest to books.

Mrs. Thompson succeeds Mrs. A. A. Ludwig as president and other new officers are Mrs. Robert Armstrong, vice president; Mrs. Nathan Gammon, secretary; Mrs. William Bush, treasurer; Mrs. William White, chaplain; Mrs. Jesse M. Lutton, parliamentarian, and Mrs. James Hall and Mrs. Cleo Mardfeldt, librarians.

Guests of honor at the luncheon were Mrs. Lloyd W. Biddle, president of the D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Arthur C. Watkins, W. C. T. U. candidate for federation president. Mrs. Walter B. Mallory was reader for the program yesterday and music was provided by Mrs. Malcolm Scates, who sang, accompanied by Mrs. W. P. Barrows.

Mrs. O. G. Hankins was chairman of the luncheon committee assisted by Mrs. James Hall, Mrs. W. J. Sando, Mrs. W. B. Putman, Mrs. White, Mrs. M. C. Wilson and Mrs. Albert Genung.

The club, which now has 108 members, holds its meetings monthly at the Woodridge branch of the Public Library. Most of the original 12 members, who met at the home of Mrs. Herbert Statsir in 1927 to organize it, still are active. These include Mrs. Statsir, Mrs. C. H. Lane, Mrs. Albert Bumstead, Mrs. Emmett Midkiff, Mrs. W. W. Stevens, Mrs. W. H. Dunn, Mrs. Clara Hitz, Mrs. T. O. McMinimy and Mrs. Wilson. Mrs. Arthur Howell, another of the group, this year was made an honorary member. Mrs. James Hastings has moved away from Washington and Mrs. Minerva Anderson is the only one of the charter members no longer living.

Diplomatic Wives To Talk on Radio

Wives of several Latin American diplomats will broadcast over a Nation-wide hookup on a program being arranged tomorrow by the People's Mandate Committee in observance of Pan American Day. It will be from 3 to 3:15 over the Blue network of the National Broadcasting Company.

Miss Mabel Vernon will preside and the speakers will be Senora de Quintanilla, wife of the Counselor of the Mexican Embassy; Senora de Tudela, wife of the president, Peruvian delegation, Peru-Ecuador Boundary Commission; Senora de Viteri, wife or the president, the Ecuadorean delegation, Peru-Ecuador Boundary Commission; Senora de Huneeus, wife of the First Secretary of the Chilean Embassy, and Mrs. Thomas Burke, Latin American chairman of the People's Mandate Committee.

The growing co-operation and understanding among the women of the Americas will be stressed in the broadcast.

Women Scribes Hear Dr. Arnold

'Folklore of Capitalism' Author Addresses National Club.

Talking before the Women's National Press Club yesterday, Dr. Thurman Arnold, newly appointed assistant to the Attorney General and author of "The Folklore of Capitalism," discussed the folklore and symbolism of current national life, and, as he expressed it, "diagonsed the case without attempting to prescribe a general cure." His stimulating comments in a serious vein were prefaced by a sprightly explanation of his theory that every man profits by having four types of women in his life—the romantic type, the domestic, the efficient and the intellectual.

"That," he said, "is the theory of quadrilateral balance."

Among guests hearing his after-luncheon talk were Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, who asked a question afterward that Dr. Arnold refused point blank to answer. It was in regard to whether a certain corporation's products could be sold for half their current price and still bring in a profit.

"I won't answer that because it pertains to a specific case, scheduled to come up on May 2," he said.

Then, hastily scanning the crowd of feminine faces, he added:

"By the way, who asked that?"

Other guests at the luncheon included Mrs. Jouett Shouse and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Sidney Smith; Mrs. Emil Hurja, Mrs. Mastin White and Mrs. J. Addison Robb, jr., of New York, better known as Nancy Randolph, the noted lady of the press.

Md. Clubwomen To Elect State Officers Today

Mmes. Wheelock and Salisbury Are Candidates for President.

Politics seethed yesterday at the second day's session of the Maryland State Federation of Women's Clubs in Baltimore when Mrs. Carl W. Wheelock, of that city, was nominated from the floor to oppose Mrs. Harry Harcum, of Salisbury, as candidate for president. Mrs. Wheelock, who was originally nominated for vice president, withdrew as candidate last Friday and Mrs. Walter E. Kriel, of Hampstead, was nominated in her place. The election will be held between 12:30 and 2:30 today.

Mrs. Frank M. Hoadley, of Chevy Chase, retiring president of the federation, is presiding at the convention, which is being held at the Lord Baltimore Hotel. Miss Earlene White, of Washington, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, was guest of honor and speaker last night at the annual federation banquet, a high light of the convention. Mrs. Roberta Campbell, president of the general federation, also was a guest of honor and brought greetings to the Maryland clubs.

Urges Exercise Of Citizenship

"The Woman Citizen" was the subject of Miss White's address. She emphasized the duties of citizenship, pointing out that voting was merely an instrument of it. "If America ever needed anything, what it needs now is a real appreciation of the meaning of American citizenship," she declared. "Women, always interpreters, must interpret what true citizenship means today, and Americanism is needed more than any other quality in it."

Contrasting the position of the businesswoman. "who has her finger on the pulse of the world," with that of the home-maker, Miss White said the latter had the more important position, for she was able to influence the thought of youth and she could act as a clearing house for the opinions of the men of her household when they came home worn with the dissensions of the day.

Dr. Mitchell Dreese, assistant professor of education at George Washington University, spoke at the morning session of the convention, substituting for Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, chairman of education for the general federation and its candidate for first vice president. Mrs. Whitehurst has not recovered from her recent illness sufficiently to take part in the program.

Federation Gives $3,800 for Radium

A feature of the afternoon session was the announcement of the completion of the Maryland federation's part in the cancer control campaign with the presentation of a fund for $3,800, made by the cochairmen, Mrs. Charles O. Appleman and Mrs. Simon Sabeloff. They presented the check to Mrs. Hoadley, who in turn gave it to Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, as the State federation's gift in honor of Mrs. Whitehurst. It will be used for the purchase of radium for the university hospital in Baltimore.

Officers who will be elected without opposition today include Mrs. Harry T. Cottman, of Jessup, for recording secretary; Mrs. Alfred T. Truitt, of Salisbury, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Ira J. Pool, of Baltimore, treasurer.

Mrs. Butler Hostess To Sister From Miami

Lieut. Comdr. William J. Butler, U. S. N., retired, and Mrs. Butler, have as their guest at their Chevy Chase residence, Mrs. Harralson Frix, of Miami, sister of Mrs. Butler.

Mrs. Frix was formerly Miss Ethel Harralson, and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Harralson, who made their home here before going to Miami to live. She is in Washington to attend the annual convention of the League of American Pen Women, of which she is special assistant to the national president.

"Madame Chairman" . . .

By Suzanne.

HOW ABOUT A glimpse at the calendar of the president general of the D. A. R., Mrs. William A. Becker, for the next few days?

Her official partying starts tonight with her dinner at the Mayflower for members of her cabinet. Tomorrow night, Mrs. Delos A. Blodgett, past national recording secretary, is giving a dinner in her honor at which members of her cabinet will be present. Friday there will be the National Officer's Club luncheon at the Willard and the party that night for the Good Citizenship Pilgrims at the home of Mrs. Thomas H. Seay. Friday morning at 10:45 Mrs. Becker speaks over the radio, giving an interview on the Congress.

Saturday morning starts out early with a breakfast at 8 o'clock, given by the Georgia delegation including Mrs. Julius Y. Talmage, recording secretary general. Sunday, after church, Mrs. Becker is having a luncheon for the pilgrims at the Mayflower. Sunday night at 6:30 there will be a dinner, given by members of the California delegation.

• • • •

NOW, as we launch into the coming week, you'll realize that Mrs. Becker can't actually attend all of the functions on her schedule but will just "look in" at some of them.

Unique in D. A. R. history will be the breakfast of the Orchid Club Monday morning, at the Mayflower. The club includes Mrs. Becker and ten State regents who made the rounds of New England State meetings together last spring. Everywhere they went, they were greeted with receptions plus orchids, until it became almost a joke. They decided to form the Orchid Club in commemoration of "orchids that bloomed in the spring—tra la."

The members of the club are Mrs. Becker, Mrs. Carl S. Haskins, of New Hampshire; Mrs. Victor A. Binford, Maine; Mrs. Frank Nason, Massachusetts; Mrs. Arthur M. McCrillis, Rhode Island; Mrs. John Logan Marshall, South Carolina; Mrs. Loren Edgar Rex, Kansas; Mrs. Arthur Roubotham, Virginia; Mrs. Frederick P. Latimer, Connecticut; Mrs. John S. Heaume, Ohio, and Mrs. C. Leslie Witherell, Vermont.

• • • •

MONDAY noon the Massachusetts delegation will have a luncheon at the Mayflower, and at 5 p. m. the Colonial Dames will give a reception at Dumbarton House.

Monday night, Mrs. Henry M. Robert, jr., unopposed candidate for president general, is entertaining at a reception at the Mayflower, following the opening of the Congress in Constitution Hall.

THERE will, of course, be plenty more official and unofficial entertaining, including parties to be given by Congressional wives honoring delegates from their States. Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg, wife of Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, is giving a tea Monday afternoon for the Michigan D. A. R.'s as she has for the past five years. This season there will be an added thrill for the visitors as their hostess beside being the wife of their senior Senator is now a regular contributor to the National Magazine of the D. A. R.

• • • •

Monday afternoon also, the wives of the Missouri delegation in Congress are planning a tea for the Missouri D. A. R.'s. This will be given at the Congressional Club from 4 to 6.

• • • •

THEN, STATE SOCIETIES will have parties too, as they have in other years. Many of them plan their most elaborate entertainments for the time of the D. A. R. Congress. The Iowa Society is having an Easter dance and reception in the Shoreham Hotel Monday night. Senator Guy Gillette, president, and other members of the Congressional delegation will be present. Miss Gertrude Louis, of the Roosevelt Hotel, is secretary of the society.

Wednesday, the Missouri State Society will entertain at the Shoreham for the group from that State, headed by Mrs. Henry Clay Chiles, State regent, and Senator Bennett Champ Clark, will speak.

Thursday the North Carolina Society will entertain for the North Carolinians, headed by their State regent, Mrs. Eugene N. Davis, at the Shoreham, and the same night, the West Virginia Society will give a reception and dance at the Raleigh, with the D. A. R.'s from that State as guests of honor.

• • • •

REPRESENTATIVE ROBERTson will make the dedicatory address at the planting of a scarlet oak tree, a gift of the Maryland Daughters of the American Revolution, on the Supreme Court grounds Tuesday.

Mrs. Wilbur B. Blakeslee, Maryland State regent of the D. A. R., will present the tree on behalf of the State society, and Senator Tydings will make the address of acceptance.

• • • •

MANY out-of-town guests, including a number of the Kansas delegation, will be present tomorrow night at the twenty-eighth birthday party of Capt. Wendell Wolfe Chapter, to be given at the clubhouse of the American Association of University Women, from 9 to 11.

• • • •

The Writers' League will meet at Thomson School, tomorrow at 8:15 p. m., when members have been asked to report on contributions for the 200-word "short, short-short" story evening.

• • • •

The Washington Chapter of Alpha Gamma Delta Sorority will have as guest speaker at its meeting tomorrow, Dr. William D. Boutwell, editor in chief of the United States Office of Education. The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. C. M. Durgin, 5118 Chevy Chase Parkway, at 8:30 p. m.

Dr. Boutwell, former editor of the National Geographic Magazine, will discuss the value of radio as a medium of disseminating educational information.

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson

How Duplicates Are Won.

I announced day before yesterday that I would report four hands that I watched in a recent duplicate game. The hands described Monday and yesterday resulted in a miserable score for the team I was "kibitzing," and my readers must be wondering by now how this team could have come out with top score. The answer will be found partly in today's and tomorrow's hands. The expert member of "my team" was helpless on the two previous hands, but came into his own as declarer in the deal described below, and the one to be described tomorrow.

North, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.
Match-point duplicate.

The bidding:

| North | East | South | West |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♠ | Pass | 3 ♡ | Pass |
| 4 ♡ | Pass | 4 N T | Pass |
| 5 N T | Pass | 7 ♡ | Pass |
| 7 ♠ | Dbl. | 7 N T | Pass |
| Pass | Dbl. | Pass | Pass |
| Pass | | | |

Again, South was almost the victim of his partner's error. There was utterly no excuse for North to bid seven spades over South's seven hearts. It is quite true that seven hearts might have been defeated due to the miserable break of the trump suit and the fact that declarer's natural play would have been to discard dummy's losing diamond on a club and then to ruff a diamond. This procedure would result in a lost trump trick. The seven spade contract, however, was hopeless and the only reason for seven notrump turning out better than seven hearts was because West failed to make the right opening lead, and because declarer then proceeded to play beautifully.

After East's double of seven spades West should not have considered any other opening lead except a spade. Probably on the theory that spade tricks, if any, could not get away, West preferred to open his fourth-best diamond. That was the last time that the defenders had the lead. Dummy's diamond ace was played and the heart queen was laid down. This, it should be noted, was a vital play. Declarer was missing only four hearts. If they were not all in one hand, any method would produce six tricks; if West had all four, no method would be effective. But if East had all four it was imperative to lay down the queen so as to be able to take successive finesses toward the A-K-9 through the J-10. When West showed out, a low heart was led, and East was helpless. He split his honors, hoping that it would be necessary to take out dummy's spade ace in order to return to dummy. But the club jack made this unnecessary. After capturing the heart ten with the king declarer overtook his own ten of clubs and led through East's remaining J-8. He then ran off every heart and every club. When declarer came down to the nine of spades and the queen of diamonds East's position became untenable. With only two cards left to him, he could not guard the spade suit and also keep the diamond king. In the despairing hope that West had the queen of diamonds East discarded the diamond king, but in vain. Declarer cashed the diamond queen and took the last and fulfilling trick with the spade ace.

This was a bit of luck for South, although it cannot be denied that he capitalized it admirably. If West had followed the implied command of his partner and had opened a spade, the squeeze never could have materialized since dummy's vital spade entry would have been taken out prematurely.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

OF THEE I SING: Of the "Free Mooney" posters on the doors of several Congressmen's offices . . . (Some of the tourists take a quick look and think it reads "Free Money") . . . Of the hints thrown out at Army day speeches by Army officers that the Army should be tripled . . . Of the Peace Monument in front of the Capitol, with inscriptions that speak only of war.

* * * *

As a newcomer in the Capital from the Western plains, I seem to have reached an important turning point: Other people are buying me almost as many lunches as I am buying other people.

Lady Astor . . . Nancy's School.

* * * *

As usual, the trend in Roosevelt stories is this week an accurate index of the fortunes of the White House occupant. Here's one not brand new that I've been told a dozen times in a week:

A motorist's jalopy broke down in the road. Along came Herbert Hoover, full of sympathy. He examined it and shook his head dolefully.

"I'm afraid I can't do anything for you," said Mr. Hoover.

"—FDR tackles a repair job."

Almost immediately Franklin Roosevelt came down the road and sized up the situation quickly.

"I'll fix it for you!" he said, while Hoover sat on a fence looking on.

He took the car apart until its pieces were scattered on the highway. Then he shook his head.

"I'm afraid I can't put it together!" he said.

* * * *

What President Roosevelt actually said to Vice President Garner may not be known until the next installment of White House memoirs.

To some embarrassing questions about the rumored tiff, the President replied at yesterday's press conference that the incident was made of whole cloth.

Mr. Roosevelt uses the phrase "whole cloth" in much the same way that his cousin Teddy used to nominate people for the Ananias Club. That's twice in three weeks; he used the phrase last month in the TVA squabble.

The tiff seems to hinge on Garner's rumored advice that the cattle (that is, the people), be given a chance to fatten, a homely phrase from the Texas cow country . . . Garner now denies that he said what other people say he said.

If he said it, he apparently didn't make it clear what they're to fatten on.

* * * *

Confidentially, Republican members of Congress confess they were amazed at the sensational success of the "dictator" propaganda drive against the President.

"There wasn't really anything dangerous in the bill," they say. "If Roosevelt had introduced the Lord's Prayer we would have attacked it."

* * * *

Mr. Roosevelt's own "I-don't-wanta-be-a-dictator" letter lent the onslaught its strongest color of reality . . . Then headline writers began to use the word "dictator" to describe the bill because "reorganization" is such a long word.

* * * *

A brilliant Government economist who turns out reams of facts and figures on the "situation" confides that he has an infallible way of confirming his opinions on business.

"When Washington drug stores are selling aspirin for 16 cents a 100 pills and rubbing alcohol at 8 cents a pint," he says, "I know business has a hangover."

"—Nancy's school for statesmen."

Several great ladies in Washington are a bit envious of Lady Astor's role in British affairs . . . They'd like to imitate Nancy's school for statesmen at their big mansions in the Capital . . . But American statesmen have a dread of feminine meddlers and prefer to treat public-spirited gals as cute little things. In this Capital there are several great houses like Lady Astor's Cliveden where the hostesses would like to put ideas into our rulers' heads . . . But they are the outs, and there's no sale with the present crop of statesmen.

TVA QUIZZER.

Bristling independence hits you in the eye when you talk with Senator Vic Donahey, only three-time Governor of Ohio, destined to head the TVA inquiry . . . He is a man who simply will not be stampeded on any pretext . . . He is a close friend of Arthur Morgan, whose outcries and dismissal brought it on . . . That won't deflect his delvings . . . In a Senate of many vigorous gum chewers, he is easily the most vigorous; his jaws clump up and down like a stamping machine . . . Nervous and loquacious, he sits in 10 or 15 different seats during a Senate session . . . He has a flair for tweeds, carries a union printer's card, and seems younger than his 65 years . . . As the father of ten children, the "town hall" size of his committee of ten, to which Borah objected, should not daunt him . . . His denunciation of a 30-cent baked potato on an Ohio expense account made him famous. He'll find out what's gone over the dams, if anything.

Auto Owners Asked to Join Safety Drive

Wallace, Speaking at Council Dinner, Cites Huge Death Toll.

Aroused public sentiment is rapidly turning the Nation's traffic tide toward new heights in motoring safety, the National Safety Council announced last night in presenting awards to seven cities and four States as winners in the sixth national traffic safety contest.

Speaking to a distinguished gathering of Federal, State and civic leaders at a banquet in the Mayflower Hotel, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace cited the loss of nearly 40,000 lives in highway accidents last year and called upon the motoring public to join authorities in their tremendous task of curbing accidents.

Citizenry Aroused.

To bolster its claim that an aroused citizenry is demanding and obtaining greater life-saving efforts, the council reported new safety records from all sections of the country. Top honors in the traffic contest went to Memphis, Tenn., and the State of Massachusetts. A total of 44 cities and 10 States were recognized for outstanding traffic records.

Had the country as a whole achieved highway safety results comparable to Massachusetts, said D. D. Fennell, president of the council, 16,000 lives would have been saved in 1937.

Secretary Wallace described the traffic problem as "large and tragically acute." On all sides, he said, are evidences of the country's price for failure to safely and intelligently use motor vehicles.

Problem of Nation.

"The problems of safety on our streets and highways," the Secretary said, "are national and local. The organization to achieve safety must extend throughout our whole national structure."

In 1925, said Wallace, 15,000,000 vehicles were registered in the United States. That figure was nearly doubled last year. The average use of autos, measured by gasoline consumption, he declared, increased 50 per cent in that period.

"Despite this growth in traffic," Wallace said, "the rate of fatalities per 1,000,000 miles traveled has actually gone down—slowly, to be sure—but certainly. It was safer to drive 10,000 miles in 1937 than in any year since the automobile first appeared."

The country has a twofold task, he told the dinner guests. First, to rebuild highways as nearly accident proof as possible, and to apply safety with ingenious engineering, persistent education and impartial and effective enforcement.

Bay State Honored.

"The Nation might dare hope we have reached the turning point and that the fatal accident toll of 1937 will never again be equaled."

Gov. Charles F. Hurley accepted the Safety Council's award in behalf of Massachusetts.

He credited co-ordinated safety activities for the State's record. Continuous publicity, he said, aroused citizens in a massed attack on the traffic problem.

Concentrating on speed and drunken driving, the State suspended licenses of 22,000 motorists last year, Hurley declared. Unsafe vehicles were ruled from the highways under compulsory semiannual inspection laws.

The city of Des Plaines, Ill., winner in the 10,000 to 25,000 population class, was lauded as the "community without a death." In accepting the award, Mayor Hobart M. Ahbe said not a singe fatality was reported in the city last year.

Boy Pleads for Caution.

From 16-year-old Tommy Applewhite, schoolboy patrol leader in Memphis, came a plea for adult driving caution. Admitting he was "pretty scared and not much of a speechmaker," Tommy said:

"Every school patrol leader knows that it isn't the kids we have to worry about—it's you older folks, our own mothers and fathers. We can't talk safety while you break the rules and kill."

The Memphis award, highest among the cities, was accepted by Mayor Watkins Overton and Clifford Davis, commissioner of public safety.

Milwaukee, Wis., for the third time, was announced as winner in its population group.

Other top-ranking cities named were Hartford, Conn.; Sacramento, Calif.; Beaumont, Tex., and Everett, Wash.

In addition to Massachusetts, the other winning States were Oklahoma, North Dakota and Nevada. Honorable mention went to Maine, Connecticut, West Virginia, Minnesota and Kansas.

President Is Asked To Lead Vote Parade

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt and all the White House staff will be asked to lead the parade to the polls for the referendum on suffrage for the District, the executive committee of the Citizens Conference on Suffrage decided last night.

The committee, meeting in the offices of its chairman, William H. Mondell, also invited six District judges to serve as a board of election supervisors. They were Police Judges Edward M. Curran, Hobart Newman and John P. McMahon and Municipal Judges Nathan Cayton, Armond W. Scott and Ellen K. Raedy.

The board will be asked to approve the appointment of election judges, selection of polling places, the hours of the vote and the ballot forms. The referendum is scheduled for April 30.

D. C. Territory Won't Work, Says Historian

J. C. Proctor Cites Dismal Failure in 3-Year Trial Under Grant.

Advocates of a territorial form of government for the District, with a nonvoting delegate to Congress, were sharply criticized last night by John Clagett Proctor, author and historian, when he told the Columbia Historical Society that such a plan is impractical and unsatisfactory.

He based his conclusions on a study of the three years, 1871 to 1874, when Washington experienced the territorial form of government. Proctor said that the delegate then, Gen. Norton P. Chipman, was an able politician and orator, a close friend of President Grant, "yet he was never able to accomplish anything in particular for the people whom he represented in the Lower House of Congress."

His audience at the Hotel Mayflower indicated their agreement by speeches from the floor and applause, when he said that only a "super-man" delegate could influence Congress to act always in the District's interest. He called attention to unsuccessful efforts by the District Commissioners, the Board of Trade and citizens' associations in predicting that a Congressional delegate would not be satisfactory.

A business meeting of the society followed Mr. Proctor's talk. Miss Carolyn Schulte, soloist, sang, accompanied by Miss Elsie Cranmer.

The drive for national representation for the District was given a boost, meanwhile, by the Randle Highlands and the North Randle citizens' associations at meetings last night. The Randle Highlands group voted to support the campaign for a referendum April 30 while the North Randle organization reiterated its support of the Randolph-Lewis suffrage bill.

Backers Fear Delay of Venereal Control By 'Enthusiasm,' Meaning Plethora of Bills

Multiplicity of pending bills on control of syphilis and gonorrhea, a subject which formerly was rarely, if ever, brought up the in halls of Congress, are causing concern to health proponents.

Supporters of the La Follette-Bulwinkle bill, upon which hearings opened yesterday before the House Interstate Commerce Committee, with testimony by Surgeon General Thomas Parran and Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York are apprehensive least the measure become snarled in the maze of similar legislation.

Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, last night emphasized the importance of the measure's enactment—it already has passed the Senate—in an addres before the District Social Hygiene Society.

But earlier in the day a supporter said, wryly:

"There is so much enthusiasm over venereal disease control throughout the States that I am afraid nothing will be accomplished at this session of Congress."

The "enthusiasm" to which the speaker, a Federal official, referred is demonstrated by bills introduced by five other House members, laying out separate combat programs and authorizing Congressional appropriations for control work.

More Bills Introduced.

As passed by the Senate, the La Follette bil provides for a three-year, $21,000,000 drive. The companion measure now under House consideration, however, is a $271,000,000 project covering a 13-year period.

Dropped previously into the hopper were bills by Representatives Pfeifer and Somers, of New York; Boren, of Oklahoma, and Voorhis, of California. Representative Maverick, of Texas, introduced another one Monday.

"But nobody need worry that I'll obstruct the La Follette-Bulwinkle bill to obtain preference for mine," Maverick said last night. "I'm interested only in wiping out syphilis and gonorrhea and I am for anything that will help do that."

The Texan's proposal differs from the others in that it would set up a venereal disease institute and a national advisory committee, comparable to legislation enacted by Congress to curb cancer.

Won't Obstruct Measure.

"Such procedure would give the drive greater prestige," said Maverick, adding that he will attempt to have the institute-committee plan incorporated in the bill now being heard. But should that fail, he said he still would not obstruct the Bulwinkle measure. Officials to whom The Post spoke yesterday implied that support should be rallied around the La Follette-Bulwinkle legislation, pointing out that it is assured of indorsement by various States.

The Conference of State and Provincial Health Authorities, representing health officials of all States, drafted the bill and, at the final session of the 1938 convention Monday, lauded its passage by the Senate, it was pointed out.

Addressing the dinner of the Social Hygiene Society, Senator La Follette said he was amazed and pleased that his bill was introduced, investigated by committee and passed without a single protest being raised against it in any form.

He credited the "ice breaking activities" of Dr. Parran in paving the way for such favorable response and said Federal aid is essential if the drive is to be pushed on 48 fronts.

Kentuckian Speaks.

Ray Everett, executive secretary of the society, pointed out that District taxpayers spend more than $280,000 a year to keep local wards in St. Elizabeths Hospital—many of whom were sent there by syphilis—while only 10 per cent of that figure is expended upon preventive care.

Other speakers at the dinner, held at the Y. W. C. A., were Dr. Arthur McCormack, State health officer, of Kentucky, and president of the American Public Health Association; Dr. William F. Snow, general director of the American Social Hygiene Association, and Dr. R. A. Vonderlehr, assistant surgeon general of the public health service.

The society unanimously adopted a committee report concurring in the venereal disease control recommendations of the recent public health service survey of the District, with the following additional recommendations:

Extend night clinic hours, expand facilities for diagnosis of advanced syphilis, determine exact amount being spent here on venereal disease control, seek to cure clinic patients and not merely render them noninfectious.

Dr. H. H. Hazen, president of the District society, presided.

Dr. Parran, facing the Interstate Commerce Committee, said the spread of syphilis and gonorrhea is the most serious public health problem confronting this country. More than 1,000,000 cases each come to the attention of physicians for the first time each year, he declared.

Mayor LaGuardia described recent advances in New York City in the control of the "great pox" and gonorrhea, expressing the conviction that the problem is one to be met nationally.

The bill was indorsed also by Drs. J. Earle Moore, head of the syphilis clinic at Johns Hopkins University and editor of the American Journal of Syphilis, Gonorrhea and Venereal Disease, and M. J. Rosenau, director, division of public health, University of North Carolina.

Pre-Marital Syphilis Tests 'Must' in N. Y.

Gov. Lehman of New York yesterday signed a bill requiring examination for syphilis of all applicants for marriage licenses, which will not be issued without a physician's certificate.

Lehman already had launched the State's war against syphilis by approving legislation requiring examination of prospective mothers in an effort to reduce infant mortality. The new law requires the examining physician to file results of tests on those seeking to wed with local health authorities, who must hold the information in "absolute confidence" except to produce it as evidence at a trial on a court order.

Trustees of Howard U. Vote To Retire Dr. Emmett J. Scott

Dr. Emmett J. Scott, university and trustee board secretary for the past 19 years, was voted retirement, effective June 30, by the board of trustees of Howard University last night. His successor will be named at the October meeting.

Others voted retirement were Dr. A. M. Curtis, professor of surgery, and Dr. Georgiana Simpson, professor of German. T. L. Hungate was re-elected chairman of the board for the ensuing year; George W. Crawford, vice chairman, and V. D. Johnston, treasurer.

Members of the board re-elected for a three-year term included Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, university president; J. C. Napier, of Nashville; Dr. C. C. Spaulding, of Durham, N. C., and Dr. Sara W. Brown. Dr. Thomas Jesse Jones, Dr. J. R. E. Moorland, Dr. Peter Marshall Murray and Dr. Channing Tobias, all of New York.

Named on the executive committee for the ensuing year were Dr. Moorland, Dr. Spaulding, Victor Deyber, Dr. Albert Bushnell Hart and Dr. John R. Hawkins. The budget of $1,170,869 also was approved.

A strike of PWA employes, engaged in erection of the university library, because of employment of nonunion men on repair of the university president's house, was referred to a special committee at a late hour. Discussion will continue today with union officials, and the decision will be referred to various building trades' unions for ratification.

Police Guard Transit Vote On CIO Union

500 Ballots Cast at Two Meetings; T. W. U. Is Confident.

Nearly 500 employes of the Capital Transit Co., at two mass meetings last night and early today, balloted to settle the fight between the A. F. L. and the C. I. O. over which of the unions will represent the company's 3,200 workers.

A half-dozen Metropolitan policemen stood outside Turner's Arena, Fourteenth and W streets northwest, as ballots were distributed to bus drivers and street car conductors and motormen.

After all ballots are cast the vote will be counted and the result anonunced, C. I. O. leaders who called the meetings as part of their driive to organize transit workers here said.

T. W. V. Claims Majority.

Neale McGillicuddy, business agent of the Transit Workers Union, said that he expected the Washington transit workers would line up nearly 100 per cent for that union.

The National Labor Relations Board has given the union until late today to muster a majority which will necessitate the calling of an election to decide if the Transit Workers Union is to be the bargaining agent, supplanting the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Coach Employes, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor.

Michael Quill, president of the T. W. V., called upon the workers to unite in war against the one-man car and other phases of employment which he termed "unfair."

Handbill Ban at Stake.

Conflict between Supreme Court decision holding handbill distribution permissible under the freedom of the press guarantee of the Constitution, and a District regulation banning them, will be referred to the District Commissioners, it developed yesterday.

The question arose in connection with the arrest of a young man and woman who were passing out handbills advertising last night's meeting. The regulation is aimed at keeping streets clear of litter.

Opossum, Poison To 17th St., Meat For Colored Man

Residents of the 2900 block of Seventeenth street northeast had a wild animal scare last night, two policeman made a safari that ended in the treetops, and Jimmy Dean, colored janitor at Twelfth Precinct Station, will have a possum dinner today.

They climbed a tree in which the possum had taken refuge, gripped him by his prehensile tail and brought him to earth.

Nats Now Boast of Cinderella Man.

By Shirley Povich.

Richmond, Va., April 12. The Nats are emerging from the South with the pitching miseries, a long string of lickings and—of all things—a Cinderella Man.

Fortune's favorite was just plain Taft Wright a week ago when the Washington athletes shook the orange blossoms from their feet and set forth from Florida. Folks were looking down their noses at the bottle-shaped outfielder who was more tolerated than esteemed by the Washington bosses. His appearance wasn't very prepossessing to start with. He looked more like a fat butcher's boy than a major league athlete.

POVICH.

From the start of the Nats' training season, Taft Wright was the stepchild of the Washington outfielding corps. At best, he was supposed to hang on as a utility outfielder, but only at best. The greater probability was that when May 15 rolled around and Manager Bucky Harris was forced to cut his squad to the 23-player limit, Taft Wright would be told that Harris was awfully sorry but . . . .

Taft Wright was regarded as one of those fellows who could hit minor league pitching . . . there was no doubt of that. With Chattanooga for two seasons, he had been a powerhouse. But there was no guarantee that he could hit in the majors. And defensively, there was nothing sylph-like about his play.

• • • •

Also, the one item with which Harris found himself not particularly concerned was his outfielding. He had Johnny Stone and Mel Almada. And there was also Al Simmons who had a srtangle hold on that third outfield job. If any rookie were supposed to make good in the Washington outfield it was to be young George Case, fleet as the wind and the leading hitter in the N. Y. P. A. League.

Besides, Taft Wright was a left-handed hitter and that fact, on the Washington club, was tantamount to two strikes against him. Because Harris' team was already top-heavy with southpaw swingers. Wright, who perhaps might make good with another club, was, with the Nats, a victim of circumstance.

Never did the fat fellow, who diligently worked 26 pounds off his fleshy frame last winter, figure seriously in Bucky Harris' outfield plans. In any discussion of their outfield, the Washington bosses dwelled long and glowingly on the talents of Stone and Almada, the hitting possibilities of Simmons and the potentialities of Rookie Chase. And then, if they bethought themselves, they would add . . . "and oh, yes, there's Wright."

• • • •

Three weeks ago the last measure of hope apparently vanished for chunky Mr. Wright. The Nats signed Goose Goslin, who had begun to demonstrate with his bat that he possessed at least one more year of big league baseball. The acquisition of Goslin gave the Nats six outfielders and never has it been customary to carry more than five beyond the May 15 deadline. Wright knew what that meant . . . back to the minors, and the stuffy hotels, the all-night bus rides and the blue-plate menus.

And then, on April 9, it came to pass that the Nats were in Greenville, S. C., to meet their Trenton farmhands in an exhibition game. And the day was dark and stormy, and Manager Harris did not wish to play the game. Moreover, it was cold and the outfield was a young bog. As a favor to the Greenville folk, Harris finally consented to play.

But he would not risk his pets—Simmons, Stone and Almada—in that water and mud-ridden outfield. No, indeedy. It was not a fit place for regulars. Rookies—well, that was different. Harris sent out to a nearby college for three pairs of high-laced football shoes, flung them in the direction of Taft Wright and Jimmy Wasdell and told them to go out in the muck and play the outfield in company with Goose Goslin.

• • • •

Well, Taft Wright needed only that chance, apparently. He played in the outfield all day in those football shoes and he played an errorless game. And he rapped out a single and a double. And he also walloped a vicious home run over the rightfield fence. Bucky Harris began to get ideas.

The Nats' manager let Wright play again the next day in Charlotte. It was a gesture to the home folks, for Charlotte was the cradle of Wright's organized baseball career. He had come out of the Piedmont League as something of a slugger and Charlotte fans liked him. They still liked him when, on that Sunday afternoon, he rapped a long two-bagger into the crowd, a smart single through the infield and a tremendous home run over the rightfield fence.

And Bucky Harris began to like him, too, because Harris suddenly realized that most of his other outfielders, with the notable exception of Goslin, had not been able to buy a base hit during the Nats' exhibition games. If Wright could hit like that, he'd leave him in there . . . after all, two homers in two games was pretty near par.

• • • •

So Harris started Wright in leftfield again the following day . . . at Gastonia, against the big league pitching of the Boston Bees. And another homer rattled off the fat boy's bat . . . and two singles. And today again he was in leftfield against the Bees. And twice he produced vital singles. So tomorrow again Taft Wright will be in the Nats' outfield, for Bucky Harris now has very definite ideas about the lad's hitting. And he has discovered that Wright is not only

Lopez' Homer Helps Boston Defeat Griffs

Nats Blow Fancy Lead; Circuit Blow Lands in James River.

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

Richmond, Va., April 12.—En route to Washington, the Nats paused here long enough to take another beating from their traveling companions, the Boston Bees, who have been making a habit of this sort of thing.

Today the score was close, 7 to 6, and the Nats had the ball game won until the under-half of the eighth inning when little Al Lopez, the Bees' catcher, committed a highly decisive home run.

Elon Hogsett, the Nats sidewheeling left-hander had entrusted his successor, young Ray Phebus with a 5-4 lead in the latter half of the eighth and with one out Rookie Phebus began to waste his advantage. He pitched a single to Harl Maggert, Boston third baseman, and then along came this Lopez, the catcher who couldn't get a job with the Nats not so many years ago.

Lopez didn't tarry with Phebus. He walloped a line drive over the rightfield fence where it tore through the flimsy screen and fell into the James River beyond for a four-base blow. Bucky Harris attemped to argue that it was not a legitimate homer inasmuch as it hit the screen, but Umpire Goetz said it was, so it was.

A False Alarm!

In the ninth, the Nats turned in an exciting false alarm in an effort to tie the score. With one out Almada beat out a clever bunt and Rick Farrell was hit on the ankle by Ira Hutchinson, Bees' pitcher. In this emergency, Harris sent Al Simmons to bat in place of Phebus and the Bees countered by lifting Hutchinson and entrusting lean Dick Errickson with the pitching.

The sad result was that Simmons worked the count to three and two then struck out, and Lopez engineered a double play with a throw to Cuccinello to catch Case attempting to go down to second on the pitch. Case, by the way, was running for Ferrell.

It didn't seem exactly fair for the Nats to lose today. The undeniable facts are that they outhit the Bees, 16 to 10. And they came from behind a 4-0 deficit to take the lead in the eighth after Rick Ferrell tied the score with a home run into the river beyond the leftfield fence.

Another DiMaggio.

Most of Hogsett's miseries can be traced to one ball that he pitched to Vincent DiMaggio in the first inning. It was a high hard one and the lesser-known member of the DiMaggio clan whacked it far over the centerfield wall for a home run. There was two on base at the time and the Bees, who had scored a run previously, leaped into a 4-0 lead.

After that Hogsett was nicely effective. He gave up another run in the fifth when Gene Moore tripled against the centerfield wall and Cuccinello singled to left, but from the second to the seventh inning, inclusive, the Boston club could stir up only four hits against the old side-winder.

Zeke Bonura put the Nats in the ball game in the third inning. Buddy Lewis, who made five hits today—f-i-v-e—five—opened the inning with a double to the centerfield fence and Taft Wright scored him with a single to center. Then Bonura swatted over the leftfield wall for a homer to cut the Bees' lead to 4-3.

Buddy Myer instituted another run for the Nats in the eighth when he reached the centerfield wall for a double and scored on Wright's single to right, but the Nats were still a run shy of tying the score when the eighth came around.

Rick Ferrell promptly rectified that situation by knocking the ball over the not-so-far leftfield fence and then the Nats proceeded to go a run in front. Goose Goslin, pinch-hitting for Hogsett, rammed a single through the pitcher's box. Myer hit into a force play, Lewis sent Myer to third with a single, and Myer dashed for home when the centerfielder's throw was muffed by Maggart.

Then came the Bees' half of the eighth and Lopez.

Spencer Is Acquitted.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, April 12 (U.P.).—A jury of north country farmers and tradesmen tonight acquitted Vernon Spencer, former major league baseball player, on charges of murdering Helen Grier in their hunting lodge last October 28.

May 30 Set For $100,000 Match Race

Riddle Accepts Belmont Date for War Admiral, Seabiscuit Test.

New York, April 12.—The Westchester Racing Association today posted a $100,000 purse for a match race between War Admiral and Seabiscuit at Belmont Park, but selected Decoration Day instead of the September date previously proposed.

The board of directors, headed by Vice President C. V. Whitney, agreed unanimously that the "race of the century" should be run as soon as possible. They pointed out that right now public interest is high, the two horses are sound and at the top of their racing form.

Samuel Riddle, owner of War Admiral, immediately accepted the new date but Charles S. Howard, California owner of Seabiscuit, said he would "take it under consideration."

Willing to Gamble.

Howard, who originally objected to a summer race because it would conflict with his horse's campaign on the West Coast, said he would have to think the matter over.

Seabiscuit's most important engagement, before coming east in August, is the $50,000 Hollywood Gold Cup at the New Inglewood, Calif. track, July 16. War Admiral is scheduled to go in the $20,000 Suburban Handicap on Decoration Day at Belmont but if the match race materializes, the date of the Suburban will be changed. The Admiral also is a nominee for the $50,000 Massachusetts Handicap a Suffolk Downs, June 29.

Plans Weight-for-Aage.

Whitney, who presided in the absence of Joseph E. Widener, president, said he personally was opposed to match races and extravagant purses but yielded to public interest.

If Howard turns down the newest proposal, Whitney indicated the director might consider a fall date depending on the condition of the horses and public interest.

"Right now, however, we are more interested in bringing the two together before they meet in some regular stake," Whitney said. "Then, too, there always is the possibility some good three-year-old, such as Stagehand, might complicate matters."

RIDDLE ACCEPTS OFFER.

Media, Pa., April 12 (AP).—Samuel D. Riddle, owner of War Admiral, said today he had accepted the offer to race his horse against Seabiscuit at Belmont Park for $100,000 purse on Decoration Day.

"A 4-year-old would stand a better chance against a 5-year-old in the fall, but we're willing to take a chance," he said. "May the best horse win."

Asked whether he thought Charles S. Howard, owner of Seabiscuit, would accept, Riddle remarked:

HOWARD ACCEPTS.

San Francisco, April 12 (AP).—Charles S. Howard, owner of Seabiscuit, tonight approved Decoration Day as the date for a $100,000 "race of the century" in New York between his horse and War Admiral.

Howard, in declaring his preference for a May date over a previously determined September running, said Seabiscuit might be shipped to New York Saturday after the running of the $15,000 added Bay Meadows Handicap at nearby San Mateo.

House Body Expected to Vote Today

Favorable Action 'Due' Toward Legalizing Track, Betting.

Chairman McGehee (Democrat), of Mississippi, who conducted public hearings on the Sacks bill recently, said he will call a meeting of the sub-committee early today so that a report will be ready when the full committee meets for its weekly session.

McGehee, while opposed to the legislation personally, predicted that the sub-committee will act favorably on the proposal to permit a race track with pari-mutuel betting in the District. The fate of the measure in the full committee, however, is in doubt, in view of the proposal's past reversals.

Last year the House District Committee reported a similar measure favorably to the House and then was forced to recall it by a revolt in the committee. The opposition then was directed against Walter O'Hara, Narragansett track operator, who held an option on the old Benning track.

Proponents of the new legislation have testified that O'Hara is no longer interested in the project and that it would be controlled by Washington investors.

The Washington Federation of Churches, the District Commissioners, and Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, are on record as opposing the legalizing of horse racing.

The House several years ago passed a bill to set up a race track within the National Capital, but it was killed in the Senate by Senator Capper (Republican), of Kansas.

Proponents of the measure have argued that Washingtonians are now spending thousands of dollars yearly in wagers on Maryland tracks and the establishment of a track in Washington would divert much of this revenue into District hands.

Estimates have been made that the District government will collect as much as $750,000 a year in taxes from a track.

The backers of the newest race track venture have not been disclosed. Malcolm S. McConihe, Democratic National Committeeman, and W. C. Murphy, a lawyer, now hold an option on the old Benning track.

McConihe told the District subcommittee that Mrs. John Hay Whitney and Mrs. Dodge Sloane, prominent sportswomen, had expressed a desire to invest in a District race track.

Pin Title Clinched By Jacob's Transfer

Jacob's Transfer last clinched the pennant in the Columbia Heights Bowling League by sweeping a three-game match with Little Tavern at Arcadia Alleys. Bill Champpitt, of Little Tavern, had high game with 156; Bill Krauss, Cool's Fountain, high set with 428; Argyle, high-team game with 633 and high-team set with 1788.

Krauss, incidentally, all but locked up the individual average leadership by adding his 428 set to a previous average of 125.39. Paul Jarman, who was close behind, fell back when he was able to shoot only 377.

In the Washington Ladies League, Billy Butler, Bee Bees, took high game with 131 and high set with 351. Columbians annexed high-team game and high team set with 517 and 1573.

Taft Nine Wins.

Blackhawks Win Crown

Score 4-to-1 Victory Over Toronto.

By the United Press.

Chicago, April 12.—Chicago's Blackhawks, unpredictable underdogs of the National Hockey League, tonight completed the year's greatest sports comeback by winning the world championship with a 4-to-1 victory over Toronto's Maple Leafs in the fourth game of the Stanley Cup play-offs.

Tied at one goal each through most of the first period the Hawks hammered at the heavier Maple Leafs until the league champions grew flustered and let second period goals by Carl Voss and Jack Shill slip through their defense.

Official attendance was 17,204.

The Blackhawks, who barely landed in the playoffs, first defeated the Montreal Canadiens and New York Americans in three games after dropping the first game in each series.

Toronto, after disposing of Boston in three straight, lost the first of the final series, 3 to 1, and won the second, 5 to 1, both at Toronto. The Hawks won the third here, 2 to 1.

First period.—Blackhawks: Dahlstrom (Trudell, Shill), 5:32. Maple Leafs: Drillon (Powler), 6:36. Second period—Blackhawks: Voss, Gottselig (Jenkins), 16:45. Shill (unassisted), 17:36. Third period—March (Romnes, Thompson) 16:24.

Central Tankmen Will Get Letters

Fifteen members of the Central High School swimming team will be awarded varsity letters tomorrow morning before an upper-class assembly. Letters will be in the form of the usual "C's" and also stars to denote the winning of two championship meets.

Eleven of the letter winners are due to graduate in June. Those who will receive the awards are: Breast Strokers Dick Baker and Freddy Pitzer; Backstrokers Bob Bamman, John Klein, Eddie Lanzillotti and Bill Pettingill; Freestylers Ike La Fever, Bill Stevens, Bob Jordan, Neil Swan, Dan Burbank and Bob Keenan; Divers Reed, Freedman and Strickland, and Manager Bob Burtt.

Cosgrove Quits Manor Golf Post

James A. Cosgrove, former president of the District Golf Association, resigned his post as chairman of the golf committee at the Manor Golf Club yesterday, and will be succeeded by Harry Pitt, one of the city's foremost tournament golfers. The board of governors voted Pitt in at a meeting at the club.

Cosgrove was serving his sixth year as head of the golf committee. The tournament card for the club has been announced for the year, but Pitt will announce a new committee within a few days.

Cosgrove resigned because of pressing personal business.

Phyllis Miller Golf Tournament Date Set

The annual Phyllis Keeler Miller Memorial invitational golf tournament will be held over the Washington Golf and Country Club course Friday, April 22.

The tournament is open to all members of the Women's District Golf Association and entries open Tuesday and close Friday at 1 p. m. Prospective entries are requested to tell their respective golf chairmen who are asked to phone Mrs. Fred Nesbit, chairman of the Washington Golf and Country Club at AD. 6341.

Prizes will be awarded for first and second low net and for first low gross.

Nats Are Home Today; Meet Bees at Stadium

Latest Edition of Griffs Unveiled With Bonura and All Rest of New Players on Hand.

Richmond, Va., April 1.—Henry Bonura, whom Washington fans have doubtless been reading about, will be unveiled in a Nats' uniform tomorrow when the Washington club returns to Griffith Stadium.

He will be exhibited in a preview starting at 3 p. m. when the Nats take the field against their current tormentors, the Boston Bees, who have licked the Washington club four times in the South.

Big Bonura, whose slugging has been one of the few consolations of the dismal training trip of the Nats, who lost 12 games in 14 starts against major league opposition, has inherited the clean-up role in the Nats batting order.

The game tomorrow has taken on the aspects of a serious bit of business. Manager Bucky Harris, irked by three straight losses to the Bees, will start Wes Ferrell, his No. 1 pitcher, against the Boston club. Thus, with Lou Fette pitching for the Bees, a pitching duel looms.

Goose Goslin, another fellow of whom Washington fans might possibly have heard, will doubtless be in the Nats' line-up tomorrow in as much as a right-hander will pitch for the Bees. It will mark Goslin's return to Griffith Stadium as a Nat after a four-year absence.

Barring a display of utter ineffectiveness tomorrow, Wes Ferrell will be the Nats' opening-game pitcher against the Athletics on Monday, Manager Bucky Harris announced tonight.

First of the Nats to arouse himself from the general hitting slump has been John Kelly Lewis, who has been on a veritable slugging rampage for the past two days. Against the pitching of the Bees Lewis had rapped out ten hits in his last 11 times at bat.

Despite the Nats' defeat today, Manager Harris was buoyed by the pitching performance of Chief Hogsett who hurled effectively after his first inning failure. In the event that other Washington pitchers fail in starting roles, Hogsett is slated to graduate to a regular job.

The Nats and the Bees will play both tomorrow and Thursday at Griffith Stadium. On Friday, the Baltimore Orioles will be met in the Washington park and Saturday and Sunday the Nats play at Baltimore.

Terp Tennis Team In Match Today

University of Maryland's tennis team, the last of the spring sports squads to go into action, opens its schedule this afternoon, meeting William and Mary at College Park. Match time is 3:30 o'clock.

Prospects are exceptionally bright for a successful season, according to Coach Les Bopst, who has picked the following teams. Singles—No. 1, Allie Ritzenberg, Washington; No. 2, Nathan Askin, Baltimore; No. 3, Red Lehman, Baltimore; No. 4, Lawrence Lichliter, Washington; No. 5, Bob Wayers, Princess Anne, Md.; No. 6, Jay Phillips, Baltimore, or Harvey Kreuzberg, Silver Spring, or Jack Dunie, Baltimore. Doubles—No. 1, Ritzenberg and Askin; No. 2, Lehman and Waters; No. 3, Lichliter and Kreuzberg or Dunie.

Merrick Boxers Score In Boys Club Meet

Boys Club of Washington held another boxing tournament yesterday and entries from Merrick dominated.

Results:

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, April 12.—Bert Bell, coach of the Philadelphia Eagles pro-football team, said tonight that Byron "Whizzer" White, Colorado University all-American, has decided to pass up a Rhodes scholarship for a $15,000 contract with the Pittsburgh Pirates football team.

Bell said he learned of "Whizzer's" decision at the National Football League meeting at Pittsburgh last Sunday.

"He hasn't signed the contract yet," Bell said. "But he will—just as soon as Art Rooney, Pirates business manager, makes a bank deposit to his credit."

White, an honor student at Colorado and unanimously selected All-American halfback in 1937, was known to be negotiating with the Pirates but had not indicated whether he would sign.

Bell said the odds were 100 to 1 "or any odds you want," that the Colorado youth would sign the contract with the Pirates in time for spring training.

Heard at the Hilltop . . . a brand new story on Joe Judge, timely too because it has as a leading character Ray Fisher, coach of Michigan, which meets Georgetown on the diamond tomorrow . . . It seems that on Judge's first appearance in New York after joining the Nationals, the Washington team played Edison Light Co., where Judge was formerly employed . . . the local pitcher, a fellow named Fisher acted most strangely when Joe stepped to the plate for his initial raps . . . nervous at the start because so many friends were waiting for a look at the boy who made good, Judge could not bear the suspence when this guy Fisher merely stared at him from the mound, making no effort to wind up and pitch . . . finally, Joe angrily turned to the catcher demanding explanation of the delay . . . and then, as if awaiting that signal, three officious looking men emerged from the crowded sidelines and approached Judge, who stood scratching his head at the plate . . . the trio turned out to be the president, vice president and secretary of the Edison Co., and all they wanted was to give Judge a diamond ring on behalf of the employes . . . relieved at the turned of events, Judge promptly and unceremoniously struck out, to his own embarrassment and to the chagrin of his followers . . . but he redeemed himself later, delivering the game-winning hit.

JOE JUDGE.

The inside story of why the pitching career of Tom Keating, Hoya shortstop, came to a disastrous ending finally has leaked out . . . and the compelling reason for Keating's decision to stick to the infield was furnished by Joe Keegin, a present teammate . . . Keegin, playing with Eastern High School against Georgetown Prep at Garret Park, one afternoon teed off on a Keating delivery and Tom swears the ball wasn't retrieved until the teams had showered after the game . . . Incidentally, Ray Fisher, the Michigan coach, mentioned in the first paragraph, had two Hoyas baseballs under his wing last summer . . . piloting the Burlington nine of the New York-Pennsylvania League, Fisher handled Pitcher Mike Petroskey and Capt. ## 2 Interhigh Games Today

Triangular Track Meet Also Scheduled.

Two inter-high baseball games and a triangular track meet are carded for school athletes today.

Roosevelt meets Eastern at 2:30 o'clock on the former's diamond while at the same time Western plays Tech at Western Stadium. The meet, with Roosevelt, Wilson and Gonzaga participating, gets underway at 4 p. m., the scene being the Roosevelt Stadium.

Opposed to that starting team, Chief Guyon, coach of Eastern, will send into action Lee Lusby, second baseman; Marshall Jacobs, third baseman; Chester Tawney leftfielder; Al Kidwell, shortstop; Paul Kober, first baseman; Les Cooksey, centerfielder; Bob York, rightfielder; Norman Treadway or Paul Cohill, catcher; Rip Carver or Walter Stockwell, pitchers.

The starting line-up for Western probably will find Tom O'Hanlon on first base, Sandy Duvall on second, Addie Lawyer on third, Dick Lynham at short, George Oertel in leftfield, Bill Swanson in center, Irving Needle in rightfield, Moye doing the catching and Toby Bright the hurling.

Coach Bruce Kessler of the Tech aggregation will give the following boys work when playing time rolls around: Charlie (Red) Kendall, first base; Arthur Newsom, second base; Dick Wine, shortstop; Francis Wiles, third base; Harry (Lefty) Newby, rightfield; Lou Mostow, leftfield; Joe Ciomi, centerfield; Don Treganowan, catcher, and either Eddie Vermillion, Dale McKenna or John Coe doing the flinging.

Outdoors

With
Bill Ackerman.
The Post's All Outdoors Editor.

There is every right to expect some mellowing in the weather this week. With it should come real white perch fishing in the Potomac in the neighborhood of Joe Fletcher's at New Cut and Canal roads.

Although many reasonably good catches of this delectable table fish have been noted during the past two weeks, they are as nothing compared to the large strings that will fall to the hooks of every angler fishing in this section, when the run starts in earnest.

ACKERMAN.

Sooner or later, every man hopes to own his own boat, particularly if fishing is one of his primary hobbies. Starting usually with a small boat first, the progression is gradual, until in the course of time they arrive in the cruiser class, and these grow larger and larger.

In order that these budding skippers may know their courses and the ways of men on the waters, the United States Power Squadron conducts classes during the winter months that grounds them for ratings from pilot to navigator. This last will enable one to go anywhere on the seven seas.

Heretofore 15 or 20 taking the exams was rated as good, but this year 59, out of over 200 attending the lectures, signified this desire. Proof that each year more and more people are taking to the water for their relaxation.

A letter from Capt. Sam Tillett, Wanchese, N. C., that the rock are really hitting in the Sounds. In less than two hours last Thursday, fishing in Croton Sound, the score was 22, from 2 to 8 pounds.

Quite a few channel bass have been taken from the beach just north of the inlet (Oregon), but the schools are not right yet—at least to make a trip of that distance. Another two to three weeks and it will be a different story.

The blues have been reported, along with the schools of Spanish mackerel, as being off the Georgia coast, but as we see it, nothing to get excited about, because that is their general position at this time of the year. They start to move along the Florida coast from the last week in February through March, and with the right kind of weather will move up as far as the Carolinas.

Once arriving there, however, it is seldom they pass Hatteras until late April or early May. That little consideration of weather and water temperature has much to do with the time they lay offshore and the arrival of bait fish under the beaches must come before the blues will hit in.

And yet, even as we write this, comes a report that they are off the Carolinas—until it is checked it must not be taken as authentic.

The cold, windy weather was probably the reason so few fished the Frederick County trout streams. On Fishing Creek hardly 20 anglers were out—really unusual for the second week-end of the season. And for those hardy enough to take that cold wind, the fishing was poor. None caught more than three or four. It was too cold for them to bite even on worms.

The growing number of anglers who so eagerly await the opening of Sebago Lake, the earliest Maine fishing, found the salmon last week more than ready to take their lures. Many were successful in taking their limits in spite of the high winds and chilly temperatures that so hampered the sport.

For the next month Sebago will be the scene of the greatest activity, and the rendezvous for those making the annual pilgrimage.

Other lakes in Maine show little evidence of freeing themselves of ice, although several in the southern portion of the State should show enough open water to fish by this coming week-end. It will be the first of May before Rangeley, Grand Lake, Grand Lake Stream, Moosehead and the Fish River chain of lakes will provide fishing, if you go by what local guides say. And who know these waters better?

Blue Ribbon Here Friday

As a climax to the local bowling season, the famed Blue Ribbon team from Connecticut will come here Friday night to meet Occidental of this city in a match at Convention Hall at 7:30 o'clock.

Led by Nick Tronsky, the Nation's No. 2 bowler, the Blue Ribbons will be seeking revenge for the defeat handed them in Connecticut last February by the local pinmen.

The program Friday will consist of a team match and doubles and singles. Occidental's starting five will be Astor Clarke, the Nation's No. 1 bowler last season; Perce Wolfe, Bill Krauss, Joe Freschi and Ollie Pacini. Capt. Dutch Newman is an alternate.

The Blue Ribbon line-up is expected to be Tronsky, Jack White, Joe Glacek, Mike Bogino, and Bill Tato. All are among the country's outstanding bowlers. Bogino, in particular, has had a successful season.

Krauss and Clarke or Wolfe will bowl in the doubles for Occidental, probably against Tronsky or White and Tato. Tronsky and Clark will face in a three-game singles match. Tronsky defeated Clarke when they opposed in February but Clarke was not up to form, having previously bowled in both the team and doubles matches and Tronsky was [illegible] "hot." He started off with 165 and 152 and finished with a 705 set.

Big Rally in Sixth Is Deciding Factor

Indians' Errors Contribute to Loss in Initial Interhigh Venture; Central, Mount Rainier Win; Eastern Beaten.

Wilson was quick to take advantage of the enemy's many mistakes. In the first stanza the Presidents scored a run without getting anything that resembled a hit. Deurhing walked and when two passed balls carried him around to third, he galloped home while Anderson was throwing out Stevens.

In the third, Wilson added another tally. But this time a tremendous triple by Raffe Mesrobian with Brassie Hoskinson aboard caused the damage. From here on until the seventh Jack Burroughs was doing a nice bit of hurling.

Meanwhile, the Indians started to bang the ball around the lot, and before the smoke had cleared away had taken the lead away from Coach Heintel's boys. They scored one in the fifth on a terrific single by Tom Hutchinson, the blow scoring Earl Smith, who after being hit by a pitched ball had gone to second while Hoskinson was tossing out Seaman.

In the sixth, the Indians scored two and it looked as though the charges of Coach Rolland Lund, who were entering inter-high competition for the first time in any sport, were going to walk off with a victory. The hitting of Bob Hagedorn and Jack Burroughs was the reason for the uprising.

But the lead was short lived. Wilson started to work in the seventh in earnest and before the last out could be made, had shoved across five runs. Mesrobian was the big gun, driving out a three-bagger with the bases loaded. Deuhring had scored before the hit, and Dave Maloney singled to send Mesrobian home.

Washington-Lee Upsets Eastern

Eastern High School, defending interhigh champion, felt the sting of a strong Washington and Lee nine yesterday on the Arlington field, and after leading the home team, 7-1, going into the seventh, had to be content with a 10-7 beating.

The Generals hit the Eastern pitchers freely during the seventh and eighth innings and shoved across eight runs. Hitting by Walker, Anderson, Simpson and Hopkins featured the rally. Washington and Lee had scored once in the first to take the lead but it was short lived.

The Lincoln Parkers went to work in the second and third stanzas to tally five times. Stockwell and Tawney led the attack, and just to be what the Easterners thought a little closer to victory, added two more in the sixth. But as mentioned before, the bats of the Generals exploded in their last two frames for a cherished victory.

Central Noses Out Briarley, 11 to 10

Warming up for its debut in the interhigh baseball series next week, Central High School's nine annexed its second game in two days yesterday, nosing out Briarley Military Academy with a run in the ninth inning, 11-10.

Lorenz Zimmerman's single scored Dick Smith with the decisive marker after two were out in the final frame.

Dizzy Dezerne, Central's capable but eratic pitcher, worked seven innings, allowed 8 runs, fanned 10 batters. He turned over the chores to Dick Rozelle in the eighth.

Jimmy Clark was Central's leading hitter with a double and two singles in four trips to the plate. Redman and Zimmerman each obtained two safeties.

For Briarley, M. Lodge and Hodgkin procured four hits in six attempts, while Cooper accounted for the only home run of the game. Briarley outhit the winners, 16 to 12, but six errors, four by Shortstop Winston, proved costly.

Mount Rainier Beats National Training

Mount Rainier High School opened its season yesterday with a 7-2 win over the National Training School nine. The game, which was called in the sixth inning, was played on the Trainer's field.

Behind the excellent pitching of George Green, who fanned six and kept the seven enemy hits well-scattered, the Mounts encountered little trouble, allowing only one run in the second and another in the fifth.

Meanwhile, the Mounts with Frank Landolt leading the batting attack scored once in the first and again in the third to take the lead. They won the ball game in the fourth by pushing 5 runs across the plate on hits by Buckholta, Iager, Landolt and Ager, with two walks and an error sandwiched in between.

Montgomery-Blair Swamps Charlotte

Behind the great pitching of Joe Thompson, who struck out eight, Montgomery-Blair High School won its first game of the season yesterday, turning back a hard-fighting Charlotte High nine, 11-2, on the loser's field.

Blair lost to Tech in its opener, 12-1, but yesterday Thompson had the home team eating out of his hand. And while the sophomore was twirling masterful ball in his debut, his teammates were banging out 15 hits to walk off with an easy victory.

Bethesda-Chevy Chase High and Roosevelt pulled into a two-way tie for second place in the Metropolitan Scholastic League by winning over Tech and Blair, respectively, in matches yesterday. Georgetown Prep is leading.

The Bethesdans, led by Davis Ross, blanked the Tech four at Indian Spring, 6 to 0, for their third triumph in three starts. Only two of the matches were close.

The Roosevelt team allowed the Blair golfers only 1½ points at Manor while they were scoring 7½. Phil Busher, Blair captain, defeated Bobby Suit, 1 up, and Tom Cook, of the Rough Riders, won over Phil Mason, 1 up, in the feature matches in the first foursome. The best ball was even. The winners were not extended in the other matches.

Results—Phil Rusher (M. B.) defeated Robert Suit, 1 up; Tom Cook (R.) defeated Phil Mason, 1 up; best ball, even. William Whesman (R.) defeated Fred Noonan, 3 and 1; Cliff Gruver (R.) defeated Don Tabbutt, 7 and 6; best ball, 8 and 7. ## Londos Set To 'Go Home'

Jim Finds Mat Business O. K. Elsewhere.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Jim Londos, the man who brought a Midas-touch to wrestling, is singing the blues because his magical effect has disappeared and things aren't what they used to be in the muscle market.

The man who wrestles Dr. John Murphy tomorrow night in the feature at the Arena, is particularly perturbed over the muddled championship situation. Londos, it seems, still considers himself the world's No. 1 matman, although he claims only the modest title of "international" champion.

He challenged Bronko Nagurski, of the Dusek circuit, to a match and pulled up with a start at the "go get yourself a reputation" reply. Then he turned his verbal guns on Steve Casey, Bowser's champion, and the Irishman didn't even deign to notice him. It was discouraging for the man who just a few short years ago was coining money for all hands, and pinning all opponents.

Thus, Londos is ready to quit these shores and sail away to more lucrative pastures, and, according to Joe Truner, Washington promoter, seriously means it. He has received an offer to wrestle in South Africa for a cool $10,000—and that isn't Chinese boilerwashers; and a similar offer for an appearance in Australia. No man can afford to pass up such sizable lumps of sugar.

According to Turner, who should know, a $10,000 guarantee means the promoter figures on gross gate receipts of $40,000, and that kind of money will not be around in wrestling in the United States this summer. Londos, naturally, would like to stay in this country and work here, but if the pay is better on the other side, he'll go over. It looks like he's going.

The supporting card tomorrow night includes "Man-Mountain" Jacobs vs. Ivan Vacturoff in the semifinal, and Bhu Pinder, a new Hindu importation, vs. Mike Kilonis, in the outstanding preliminary.

Ostend and Corn Dodger Top List of Middleburg Entries

Five Outstanding Timber Horses Listed for $1,000 Feature Event of Benefit Hunt Program.

By John D. Paulus

With more than $100,000 worth of thoroughbred horseflesh in the list of 58 entries, Mrs. Frank M. Gould's Ostend rated top position last night for the feature of the Middleburg Hunt Race Association meeting Saturday.

Second in the list for the Middleburg Cup Steeplechase, 4 miles over timber for the $1,000 purse and plate, is Corn Dodger, from Paul Mellon's Rokeby Stables. These two, rated the outstanding timber horses in the Nation today, will stage a renewal of their rivalry with Ostend one up on the Mellon horse by virtue of his victory in the Carolina Cup.

Others in the feature are Seafarin Dan, owned by Capt. Ewart Johnston, Boyce, Va.; Lassitude II, owned by Col. Wyndham Torr, of the British Embassy, and Rod, from the stables of Mrs. George L. Ohrstrom, of New York.

Rod is trained by Jack Skinner, noted gentleman-jockey trainer who will ride Corn Dodger. "If there is a dark horse in the race," said Mr. Skinner yesterday, "Rod will be it."

The Three Oaks, a mile on the turf and the last event of the day, has 18 entries, the largest list on the program. Thirteen entries are listed for the Loudoun Plate, a 2-mile brush race.

The Raymond Belmont Memorial, a 3-mile timber race for maidens and winners of one, has Aubry A. Lawrence, of Boston and Washington, and owner up. Mr. Lawrence will ride his Racharock, a chestnut mare trained by William Emory, of Warrenton, Va.

The hunt will be run over the Glenwood course, estate of Daniel C. Sands, M. F. H. Mr. Sands said yesterday that Gov. Robert C. Peery of Virginia would be a guest at his Benton Farms for the luncheon prior to the Saturday events

The races, run Saturday and Wednesday, April 20, are for the benefit of the Loudoun County Hospital.

THE SUNNYBANK—Itsaboy, Mrs. J. C. Clark; Sea Chief, Rokeby Stables; Bonnie Buntine, Mrs. George L. Ohrstrom; Dothair, Rokeby Stables; Caught, James Butler; Erse, Atwell Brothers; Transporter, Anderson Fowler; King Frederick, George W. Other pairings for tomorrow included: Sheldon vs. McCarthy, Dillin vs. Williams, and Dettweiler vs. Ryerson.

In second flight matches, M. J. Lanahan defeated E. L. Hartig, 3 and 2, Lennox Haldeman and J. M. Patterson drew byes and William Johnson defeated Roger Prescott, jr., 6 and 4.

Chevy Chase Issues Card

Spring Golf Dates Fixed by Local Club.

The twenty-eighth annual Invitation Tournament features the schedule of spring golf events for the Chevy Chase Club, with the club championship and play for the Hungarian and French High Commission cups also on the card released by the golf committee, with Robert Stead, jr., as chairman.

The play for the French High Commission Cup will inaugurate the card, with qualifying from April 12 to 23. Match play in the flight of 32 will follow until the final round, May 6 and 7.

The invitation tournament will follow May 11, 12 and 13, with the entries closing May 2 at 6 p. m. The event is limited to members of clubs affiliated with the U. S. G. A., with handicaps of 14 and under. The entry fee is $5.

The Treasurer's Cup play will follow May 16 to 28, inclusive, for the William F. Ham Trophy, with competition for the Victor Kauffmann Memorial Day Cup scheduled on May 30. It is 18 holes, handicap match play against par. The club championship for the Horstmann Trophy is scheduled over the 72-hole medal route June 7 through the 10th, with the Hungarian Cup play on July 4 concluding the first half of the club tournament play.

The Keefer Cup event will feature the women's card, the 36-hole event for the cup presented by Mrs. Frank Boyer Keefer, former president of the District Women's Golf Association, being played April 27 and 28.

The French High Commission Cup play is next, May 16 to 22, with the team matches as follows: First and third teams, May 17; first team, May 31, and second team match June 14. Mrs. Bishop Hill will announce the remainder of the card later.

MILLIONS SAY: "THE MOST ENJOYABLE CIGAR WE'VE EVER SMOKED"

• More than 10,000 cigar dealers were recently asked: "What is your largest-selling cigar—and why?" 8 out of every 10 of these dealers answered "PHILLIES".

The reason they gave was this: "Most of our customers say PHILLIES is the most enjoyable cigar they have ever smoked."

If you can't say the same thing about the cigar you smoke—here's a suggestion. The very next time you enter a store selling cigars—look for the box of PHILLIES with the big, blue band across the lid. Then say to yourself: "Any cigar that pleases such a big per cent of cigar smokers must be good. I certainly owe it to myself to try a few."

Do this and we guarantee you'll discover something new in the enjoyment you get for your money.

YES . . THIS SAME PHILLIES WAS THE BIGGEST SELLER AT 10¢ FOR YEARS

Walter Haight

Gone are the days when one can get 40 to 1 and 30 to 1 from James J. Carroll, St. Louis' big Kentucky Derby future bookman, on Sun Egret in the classic. With the May 7th race a little more than three weeks away, Carroll has been slashing the price on the son of Sun Briar. When Sun Egret won the Rome Memorial Handicap at Bowie, Carroll raised his bushy eyebrows and promptly changed the odds from 20 to 1 to 15 to 1.

HAIGHT.

A week later, when Sun Egret bounced along in front of older rivals to win the Bowie Spring Handicap, Carroll had his ear to the ground and the colt hardly was in the winner's circle before Carroll slashed him to 12 to 1. At that, Sun Egret remains a fairly good wager. His Derby chances hinge mostly on a muddy track and that is the prevailing oval for Churchill Downs on a Derby day.

If the track is muddy, I believe Sun Egret will go to the post at about 5 to 1. Then again, I'm not convinced that Sun Egret will not be a factor should the track be fast. It must be remembered that he set the pace in the Santa Anita Derby. Prior to that race Sun Egret had won four straight and Jockey Al Shelhamer might have been a bit overanxious.

He hustled the Virginia-bred colt all the way and Sun Egret had nothing left when Stagehand and Dauber made their rushes at him in the stretch. That race probably served as a means of familiarizing the jockey with the colt. True, he ran the same kind of a race at Bowie last Saturday, but that was because, aside from Moon Side, there was not a front runner in the crowd.

In the mud, Sun Egret probably will be sent to the front in the Derby, to hot-foot along. If the track is fast, Shelhamer probably will race Sun Egret close to the pace, saving some of his punch for the late stages.

There is some mystery as to the identity of A. C. Compton, listed as Sun Egret's owner. Having heard and read that he was a West Coast sportsman, I asked the California writers about him when I was out there for the Santa Anita Handicap. The West Coast scribes said that they were going to ask me the same thing, because they understood he was an Eastern sportsman.

It has been said that A. C. Compton is Trainer G. H. Bedwell's brother-in-law, that A. C. Compton is the "nome de course" of a group of Baltimore department store heads, that A. C. Compton is the name used by a group of Washington business men and that A. C. Compton really is Trainer Bedwell. Then again, I encountered a man who said he had been introduced to A. C. Compton.

Regardless, Sun Egret is one swell little horse. I'm not sold on him in the Kentucky Derby, as yet, but he will let the others know they have been to the races, come May 7.

Getting back to the future book odds, Carroll reports heavy play on the winter campaigners despite the fact that Black Gold was the last Derby winner to be kept in training during the winter. Stagehand, winner of the Santa Anita Derby and Santa Anita Handicap, is the favorite at 4-to-1. Tiger, winner of the Arkansas Derby, is 10-to-1. Wise Fox, surprise victor in Louisiana Derby, is 30-to-1 with Lawrin, winner of the Flamingo, formerly the Florida Derby, held at 12-to-1.

Morning Lines.

Hans Kowsky, "The Cloud," whose stock as a long-range forecaster boomed when he predicted a muddy track for Bowie on opening day, has given me his weather line-up running into June . . . his forecast indicates that there will be good weather for next Sunday's Easter parade as well as the opening ball game, the following day . . . his prediction is for a fast track for the Kentucky Derby . . . although May 14, Preakness Day, will be one "of moderate atmosphereric disturbances, precipitation, moderate temperate and variations" . . . Joseph E. Widener, president of Hialeah Park, is the champion "turner-looser" of great horses . . . of course, he sold Stagehand to Maxwell Howard and the colt took down the major portion of Santa Anita's $50,000 and $100,000 races . . . but let it also be remembered that this same Widener sold Azucar, then a steeplechase horse, and the veteran proved the first winner of the West Coast's 100 grand classic . . . the times being recorded over the Bowie track are terrible . . . the oval is slower than Marlboro . . . in fact, the horses run faster on a sloppy track than they do on a fast course . . . however, the soft strip must feel good to some of the sore-legged platers who have been pounding the equivalent of concrete on the winter tracks.

W. A. Carter Entry Gets Smart Ride

Charlie Corbett Is Up; 260 Benefit by $52 Daily Double.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Bowie Race Track, April 12.—Making his first start since last year's Kentucky Derby, W. A. Carter's Clodion turned on the heat in the stretch to win the Meadowview Farm Purse, today's Prince Georges turf feature. With 8,000 fans enjoying the best racing weather of the meeting, Colodion brought joy to those who backed the favorite by leading the Bomar Stable's Billy Bee to the wire by a length. A neck farther back came a tiring Zostera to salvage third money in the group of six contesting at 6 furlongs.

Clodion's recent good workouts, plus his known class, drew the bulk of the wagerers and those who played him had to be satisfied with a $3.40 mutuel. Charlie Corbett, leading rider at the meeting, turned in an excellent saddle job.

Zostera, making his first track appearance since last year, was rushed to the front soon after the break. Corbett had Clodion close up, but under wraps, with Bill Bee next. Zostera opened a lead swinging for the stretch, but Corbett remained seated. In the straightaway, the boy asked Clodion for a rally and the gelding responded with a drive that easily disposed of Zostera. The latter quit so thoroughly that Billy Bee came along to force him into third money.

$52 Daily Double.

Those in the crowd who played the "5 and 2" combination of Pompeius and Remarkable in the daily double, received a $52 pay-off. Exactly 260 were that fortunate.

Pompeius, owned by G. H. (Pete) Bostwick, former gentleman jockey and now a polo star, scored a nose decision over M. J. Myers' Frederick in the first race. The photo was called on to settle the argument. Lernana, a hot paddock tip, was third in the field of a dozen cheap sprinters. Pompeius proved the first winner of the season for Mrs. John Bosley, owner of the ill-fated Chase Me, who has stepped out in training ranks this year. Pompeius was well played at a $10.70 mutuel.

Remarkable won his second race of the meeting in the second event, leading from flag fall to finish to supply his backers with a $10.30 mutuel. Jockey Al Shelhamer had the mount and was not extending the son of Kiev in the late stages. The longest price of the meeting went to Way Out, J. B. Belk's filly, which won a photo decision from Why Tarry for second money. Way Out brought a $92 place award to a chosen few.

Workman Rides Winner.

Sonny Workman rode Postage Due to an easy victory in the third race, the High Time gelding winning his second race in a row to pay $7.30. Workman took Postage Due to the front soon after the break. Golden Vein, chief chaser, was second ahead of Star Porter. Apprehend was a disappointing fourth in the field of seven. Seeking his third victory of the meeting, the A. C. Compton color bearer broke well, moved up and then lacked speed in the final test.

Telling Them, at $23.60 and powerfully handled by Apprentice Jockey V. Villalobo, stuck to his running guns long enough to win the fourth race by a neck over Blox. Little Tramp was third in the group of eight 3-year-olds competing at a mile and 70 yards. Telling Them lost the lead to Little Sally approaching the stretch, but rallied to his rider's whip to take the decision.

Strophe, benefiting from a change of jockeys, came with a rush through the stretch to win the sixth race in the colors of D. Langley. Strophe finished on the extreme outside and Advocate Junior along the rail. The former took the decision by a length or more, but the judges called for a photo. The picture showed Strophe's head on the wire and the legs of Advocate Junior, but it was apparent the right winner was declared. Strophe paid a $35.50 mutuel, but the last odds flashed before betting time showed her 7 to 1.

Justa Gal, a half-miler with a new lease on life, came through with a smashing race to take the seventh event. The Flying Ebony filly came out of the pack in the stretch to score a half-length decision over Red Label, with the favored American Belle third. Owned by Mrs. M. R. Waugh, Justa Gal brought a scattered backing a $22.10 mutuel.

Clary Is Chairman At Indian Spring

Earl W. Clary has been named chairman of the Indian Spring Club golf committee. J. T. Thomen, D. F. Mastbrook, K. S. Giles and William Walsh comprise the remainder of the group.

The committee will meet with Professional Al Jamison tomorrow night to map out a schedule of intraclub events for the season.

Bearcats Practice.

Twenty-one candidates for the U. S. E. S. Bearcats softball team reported to Coach Eldon Jones for the first practice yesterday. Pleased at the turnout, Jones envisions a successful season and plans daily workouts.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TELLING THEM, $23.60, $8.90, $6.10; BLOX, $5.00, $3.50; LITTLE TRAMP, $3.80.

TELLING THEM saved ground at first turn, to take command, was steadied along when LITTLE SALLY went to front, came through on inside entering stretch and, under punishment, staved off closing bid of BLOX. The latter, probably best, was forced wide at first turn, bettered position with a rush and came with good courage in final test. LITTLE TRAMP, blocked after break, closed stoutly.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; allowances. The Meadow View Farm. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:31. Off 4:36. Winner, W. A. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CLODION, $3.40, $2.50, $2.10; BILLY BEE, $3.00, $2.30; ZOSTERA, $2.40.

CLODION, off well and rated closest to pacemaker, responded to driving tactics in stretch to win going away. BILLY BEE was hard ridden throughout and closed with good energy. ZOSTERA, was rushed to front going to turn, opened a good lead, but tired badly in final sixteenth.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. (First division.) Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:03. Off 5:04½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—JUSTA GAL, $22.10, $7.70, $4.30; RED LABEL, $10.60, $6.20; AMERICAN BELLE, $3.10.

JUSTA GAL, steadied along while in first flight, rallied to intermittent punishment in stretch and won going away. RED LABEL ran POPO into defeat and continued with good courage, but could not resist the winner. AMERICAN BELLE lacked early speed, improved position on outside and closed with rush.

At The Post . . . .

With Bill Bennings.

Dear Al: Selections at Bowie.

One of the best periods of racing prior to Pimlico's stake-day meeting will start today with the running of the $5,000 added Southern Maryland Handicap. Following this mile and a sixteenth race will be the Aberdeen, annual 2-year-old classic at Havre de Grace, on Friday and the Harford Handicap, six furlongs test at the same plant on Saturday. Despite the fact that Sun Egret will not start, being reserved for the Harford, today's Southern Maryland should prove a wide open affair. It will mark the first appearance of John A. Manfuso's Washington-owned Aneroid in this State this year. Aneroid will have to tote 128 pounds, which makes him something of a problem. Opposed to the son of The Porter will be Burning Star, Shandon Farm ace of last year, carrying 124 pounds. Many of the horses in with comparative feather assignments will draw heavy play. Piccolo, Florida stake winner, and Challephen, in with only 106 pounds, will have their backers. One Kentucky Derby candidate, Chaps, is scheduled to march postward in the field. With the prospect of a fast track, this should be a good race. If the mud comes up, Aneroid will be kept in the barn. He has only two other stake engagements in Maryland, the Philadelphia Handicap at Havre de Grace and the Dixie at Pimlico. The betters of Remarkable almost had a fit after the finish of the second race when "No. 1" was flashed on the results board instead of Remarkable's "No. 2." Then "No. 11" was shown, but there was no horse by that number. Finally the "No. 2" came on and stayed on. BILL.

First race—Red Jack plainly was a short horse last out and with that effort under his belt this Derby candidate should graduate from the maiden ranks. Secret Chatter turned in a recent good race and looms as the one to beat. Mexico City to take care of the others.

Second race—Lilting gets in this race with a feather and has plenty of speed. Cheaper than some of the others, but I'm going to string along. Greenski is a fair sort, but must carry 120 pounds. Acute, also heavily weighted, stops too badly to be dependable.

Third race—Guenes Doric turned in a swell sprint race the other day and gave indications that a purse is in the offing. I'm going to try to get this one home. Playmore had little chance due to poor racing luck last out and should go well in this company. Moralist for the show.

Fourth race—Roguish Girl might have needed that last. She gets in action here with light weight and promises to do a lot of running. Great Haste is fairly consistent and should be close. Kenty was out for an airing in that last. I expect better things today.

Fifth race—Aneroid gives away weight in gobs, but has the class and probably will start his Eastern campaign off with a victory. Challephen, lightly weighted, has speed and is dangerous. Piccolo gets a nice break in the weights and promises to run an improved race.

In This Corner

By Jack Cuddy.

Copyright, 1938, by the United Press.

New York, April 1.—Pete Reilly, silver-thatched "father of the Featherweights" is worried about the fate of the 126-pound division.

Mr. Reilly, who is known as the "Silver Fox" along Battlers' bund, points out that recent rulers of the feather class have become traveling champions. He says Freddie Miller journeyed more than 45,000 miles, including South Africa, while harvesting his crop of frogskins. And Petey Sarron covered more than 25,000 miles, including South Africa, while doing likewise. And Henry Armstrong already has traveled more than 35,000 miles, in the United States alone, since he wrested the 126-pound bonnet from Sarron last October 29.

CUDDY.

Pete is distraught about the peregrinations of Marse Armstrong, sensational Los Angeles colored scrapper. He says "Homicide" Henry not only has traveled more than 35,000 miles but that he has been so favored by dining car waiters that he has eaten himself right out of the featherweight division—just like rookie baseball players sometimes eat themselves out of the major leagues. Mr. Reilly knows all about rookie ball players because he was a bush-league performer for about 10 years before turning his talents toward bruiser boulevard.

* * * *

"Uncle" Pete has been booming about in the fight business for some 15 years, and because of his presence on puglistic plaza during that period, some fistic historians have called it the "Reilly era." He made momentous contributions to the sport—such as the perfection of the hotfoot, laying of sneezing powders on the overhead fans, development of the electric chair at fight camps, charcoaling telephone earpieces and concealing slimy frogs in the beds of late retirers.

Some of the sports writers insist that the great Reilly has had more than a fatherly interest in every 126-pound champion since Andre Routis, of France, wrested the crown from Tony Canzoneri back in 1928. I think that is exaggerating a bit, because I am sure he had no interest at all in Keed Chocolate of the patent leather hair who was recognized, at least, by the New York Commission late in 1932. I recall very distinctly the headaches which Chocolate, of Cuba, caused one Senor Luis Gutierrez, who was trying to handle said Chocolate.

But I will not argue with the sports writers who insist that Papa Reilly had the finger on Routis, Bat Battalino, Tommy Paul, Freddie Miller and Petey Sarron. Because I do not know if he had.

I can state definitely, however, that the "Silver Fox" has no finger in the Armstrong pie. This fact, I understand, causes Reilly many sleepless nights and much gnashing of bridgework. Because Armstrong is the greatest drawing card today in the lower divisions.

* * * *

Reilly denies categorically that he is worried about Armstrong. He laughs that sardonic laugh of his and says, "those dining car waiters took care of Armstrong. I will bet you two to one that Armstrong never defends the featherweight title—because he'll never be able to pare down to 126 pounds again. Why—he's building up to the welterweight division now, to fight Barney Ross, the 147-pound boss on May 26. After that he may fight Lou Ambers, the lightweight champion."

No, indeed—Uncle Pete is not worried about Armstrong, but he is worried about the fate of the feather division—and particularly about what will happen to the feather crown, which he claims Armstrong must vacate shortly.

"Let's see," says Reilly, "Armstrong won the title from Sarron on October 29. The New York commission and the the National Boxing Association allow a champion only six months in which to defend his title. Armstrong's six months will be up on the 29th of this month. Then what? Who will fight for the vacated title?"

* * * *

Reilly suggested that the New York commission and the N. B. A. name their No. 1 challengers to battle it out for the title. This would be just dandy with Reilly, because the N. B. A. already has named Freddie Miller as No. 1 contender, and the New York comish apparently considers Mike Belloise as its No. 1 man. And Reilly is quite confident that his Mr. Miller can pin back the ears of Belloise.

Reilly concludes, "Even if Belloise should turn in a great upset and beat Miller, I know intimately another very nice young man, Pete Scalzo, of New York, who will murder Belloise a year from now."

This Signor Scalzo, to whom Papa Reilly refers, is an Italian scrapper who is undefeated in about 40 fights—although only 20 years old. Scalzo is the funniest man in the fight game. Reilly introduces him to strangers as Gus Scalzopopolis, the Greek rookie, and the dead-punned Scalzo carries off the farce perfectly in Greek dialect. They have lots of fun and the merriment takes Reilly's mind off the fate of the featherweight championship.

Sammy Hale Hits Home Run; New Yorkers Score Late.

By the Associated Press.

Owensboro, Ky., April 12.—Sammy Hale's home run in the third inning started the Cleveland Indians off to a 6-to-2 victory over the New York Giants today and gave the Tribe a 6-5 lead in their spring exhibition series.

Hale's clout over the leftfield fence followed singles by Lyn Lary and Bruce Campbell. Cleveland scored two more runs off Hal Schumacher, who gave up 13 hits, on a pair of singles, an error by Jim Ripple and a long fly in the fifth.

Match Still A Long Way In Future

By Lewis F. Atchison.

So Ivan Nedomatsky has his dander up and is bristling for a shot at George Abrams' clean-shaven proboscis, is he? Well, that story about Hitler asking Premier Edouard Daladier over for a stein of beer and some pretzels must be true—as true as the first statement.

Nedomatsky, the indictment alleges, is hot on George's trail to avenge the eight-round shellacking he handed Ivan's brother, Jimmy Jones, Monday. Something was said about the family escutcheon being stained and Ivan, it is further alleged, is wroth about it.

If memory serves correctly Nedomatsky has an opportunity to get acquainted with Abrams, professionally, early last spring just before they turned pro. The Seat Pleasant A. A. invited them to box in the feature event of an amateur card is sponsored and they accepted. Then Nedomatsky backed down on the rather weak excuse that officials of the University of Maryland, where he was a student, frowned on the idea.

Misses Chance Again.

Even later, after they had been inducted into the paid ranks, Nedomatsky had a chance to meet the District middleweight. This time he was offered a bout with the winner of the Abrams-Mamakos scrap, which Abrams won without exerting himself. It looked as though the Baltimorean finally would meet the Washington boy, and then Ivan suddenly developed a sore thumb. He injured the digit in training, according to reports.

Then there was another story about Nedomatsky's manager, Heine Blaustein, making a remark that Ivan would fight George any time, any place—if, mark that well, if Abrams would make 150 pounds. This would be tantamount to chopping off an arm or leg. Any time Abrams wants to fight on one leg or with one arm strapped behind his back you can put the writer on the list of challengers, because that would be a soft touch.

Abrams Is Willing.

Abrams, mind you, has never said no to the proposed match. He signed for the amateur fight and went into training for it; was agreeable to the plan for him to box Nedomatsky after he (Abrams) outpointed Mamakos; and he'll fight him still—but this time it'll have to be at catch weights. He proved his good faith, moreover, by taking on Jones, a more polished ringman than Ivan, twice, which leads us to believe he had no reason for trying to avoid Nedomatsky.

Fishel, the kid's manager, is ready to sign the articles whenever they are presented. He'll come in at 159 pounds, normal fighting weight, and Nedomatsky can come in at whatever he pleases, 159, or 149, or 139. One thing is certain, Abrams isn't going to weaken himself trying to make 150 pounds for Ivan and get himself knocked off. He is a legitimate middleweight, and Nedomatsky's a legitimate welterweight. If the latter wants to fight bigger men it must be at his own risk.

Nedomatsky, as you already know, meets Steven Mamakos Monday night in the feature event at the Arena. It'll be eight rounds—maybe less. The winner, the matchmaker claims, wants a shot at Abrams and will get it. We've no doubt Mamakos will take it if it is offered him, but Nedomatsky . . .

"Have another pretzel," said Der Feuhrer to Herr Schuschnigg.

How a Reduction Stopt a Recession Now $5.85

When we reduced the Regal price from $6.40 to $5.85 in our 45th Anniversary Sale, we stopped the Recession in our business and actually sold more shoes in December 1937, at the bottom of the recent Recession, than we did at the top of the boom in December '27, '28 or '29.

Now, this Spring we want to set up a new record for Easter and April. We want to keep the wheels humming in our Factory and more men busy in our Stores. We want to cooperate and help make business better for everyone, and do our share to reduce the cost of living during this Strange Business Interlude.

That's why this Easter Season we decided to continue our 45th Birthday Party and make our Special Sale Price, $5.85, this Spring's Regular Price—in spite of the fact that we are now receiving 3,000 pairs of new Spring Shoes every day from our Factory, which were made to sell at $6.40.

ALL STYLES, ALL LEATHERS, ALL SIZES, FOR STREET, DRESS AND SPORT—BROAD, MEDIUM AND NARROW TOES—WINGTIPS, SEMI-BROGUES AND PLAIN TOES—BLUCHERS, PLAIN OXFORDS AND MOCCASIN PATTERNS—RUBBER, LEATHER AND SPIKED GOLF SOLES. ENTIRE SPRING LINE—308,764 PAIRS, MADE TO SELL AT $6.40—NOW $5.85.

Heath to Join Winthrop Firm As a Partner

Member of Harriman & Keech Will Be Resident Partner.

Winthrop, Mitchell & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, with offices at 729 Fifteenth street northwest, announced yesterday that on Friday Ferry K. Heath, now a resident partner of Harriman & Keech, will become a resident partner of Winthrop, Mitchell & Co.

Associated with Maj. Heath at the Winthrop-Mitchell office will be Joseph F. Dowdall, who for some time has been manager of the Washington office of Winthrop, Mitchell & Co.; John P. Bergan, William R. Boger, William V. Freeman, Richmond H. Gibson and Burdett S. Warden, who also have been connected with that firm, and Harry Brisker, Rosalie H. Dilli, W. Page Jones, Jesse L. Leverton, Thomas P. Trevvett, jr., and Marchant T. Wentworth, all formerly associated with Harriman & Keech.

Winthrop, Mitchell & Co.'s main office is at 26 Broadway, New York, and other offices are in Ashland, Ky.; Brooklyn, N. Y.; Charleston, W. Va.; Chicago; Davenport, Iowa; Kansas City, Milwaukee, Muskegon, Mich.; Omaha, Parkersburg, W. Va.; Rockford, Ill.; Springfield, Ill.; St. Louis, Mo., and Wheeling, W. Va. They are members of most of the important stock and commodity exchanges of the country.

Bache Bond Review.

"The hesitant course of business in this country has given rise to continued reports of the possibility of a new period of pump priming," says the current bond review of J. S. Bache & Co. "Such a program has previously led to the purchase of substantial blocks of Government obligations by the commercial banks. At present, although excess reserves are at a high level, the proportion of Government obligations already held by the banks is so large that, despite the necessity for seeking an outlet for their funds, the banks may not wish to increase their holdings of Governments. Moreover, an increase in business activity, whether based on Government spending or otherwise, may cause the banks in some sections of the country to dispose of a portion of their investments, in order to take care of the demand for commercial loans which would probably develop.

"As a stabilizing influence in the money market, it seems likely that official policies will still be directed toward low-interest rates. In the annual report of the Federal Reserve System, it was stated the 'importance of bonds as a medium of the investment for idle bank funds makes the maintenance of stable conditions in the bond market an important concern of banking administration.' These diverse factors indicate the difficulty in attempting any long-term forecast. On the basis of existing conditions, however, it seems that Government bond prices may be in a reactionary phase, although no drastic declines appear imminent."

Cotton Higher In Trade Buying

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 12.—Cotton turned firm this afternoon on trade buying and covering, following a lower opening. July advanced from 8.62 to 8.79 and closed at 8.77, with final prices 9 to 12 points net higher.

The market opened 3 to 5 points lower in sympathy with easier Liverpool and Bombay cables and under foreign selling. Offerings were soon absorbed by trade buying and when other selling let up the market easily rallied.

Futures Price Range.

Cottonseed Oil.

Cottonseed oil closed barely steady today at declines of 4 to 8 points under scattered liquidation promoted by the easiness of hogs and lard. Sales were 81 contracts. Bleachable spot nominal: May closed 8.20; July, 8.00; September, 7.97; October, 7.93.

Daily Oil Output Up 27,027 Barrels

Tulsa, April 12 (AP).—Output of crude oil in all fields of the United States increased an average of 27,027 barrels daily during the week ended April 9 to a daily average of 3,392,636 barrels, the Oil and Gas Journal reported today.

Oklahoma increased 26,125 barrels daily to 518,000, East Texas was up 898 to 430,598, and the State of Texas increased 2,458 to 1,323,350 barrels daily. Louisiana production declined 2,240 barrels daily to 260,225. California increased 10,750 to 713,500. Kansas declined 7,500 barrels daily to 158,875.

Oil President Gloomy Over Slump, Taxes

Seubert, of Indiana Standard, Says Crude Cut May Be Forced.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, April 12.—A dark picture of the oil outlook was given today by E. G. Seubert, president of Standard Oil of Indiana, in his annual report to stockholders. After tracing the history of present competitive condition, he said:

"As overproduction continued and consumption slackened product prices weakened. Dumping, price-cutting and other competitive practices which have become more or less chronic maladies in the oil business narrowed the margin (of profits). Some refineries were obliged to shut down. A reduction in crude prices may be forced unless production and manufacturing are adjusted to a stabilized demand."

The oil business has also been affected by the recession, he said, and by taxes. The company paid in 1937, he added, a total of $103,924,580 in taxes, approximately 50 per cent more than was paid 32,000 employes. But he went on to explain that he included in that total $83,375,621 in taxes collected from consumers.

The company's year-end statement listed payment in 1937 of $12,876,302.29 taxes, provision of $7,255,501 for normal Federal income tax, and $415,155 for surtax on undistributed profits.

The trend of the times, Seubert said, requires that "business must avoid acts and policies inimical to the public welfare and the public or its representatives must avoid unreasonable restriction or interference."

The company reported 1937 sales totaled $358,227,000, a 9 per cent increase over 1936. Other operating revenue and returns on investments increased the gross income to $373,198,000. An additional $83,376,000 was collected from customers to cover excise taxes.

Net earnings for the year totaled $35,950,784.59, equal to $3.62 a share on 15,267,030 shares outstanding. The 1936 earnings equaled $3.09 a share on a slightly smaller number of shares.

Market Closings For Easter Holiday

New York, April 12 (AP).—Important financial markets throughout the world began preparations today for one to four days' closings in connection with Eastertide. Both in the United States and abroad good Friday is to be a universal holiday for leading exchanges and commodity futures markets, including those in New York, Chicago, New Orleans, London, Liverpool, Paris and the chief Canadian centers.

The New York Stock Exchange, Curb Exchange and the Chicago Board of Trade are among those observing only a single holiday, reopening Saturday as usual. All New York commodity exchanges will remain closed Saturday.

European and Canadian suspension of trading will generally last until Tuesday morning, although the Winnipeg grain market will open as usual Saturday and Monday.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively, A Special Correspondent.

Gains and Losses About Even in Dull Trading; U. S. Government Bonds Improve.

New York, April 12.—Stock gains and losses were about evenly divided in a dull day that brought sales volume of around half a million shares, the smallest of a week. United States bonds held firm. May wheat dropped five-eighths of a cent to 83¼ cents a bushel on the large crop estimate.

Stocks backed and filled, in imitation of the ship of state under the guidance of the skipper in the light, variable winds now experienced; and it was just as difficult to tell which way the market might move next as it was to guess the direction in which the ship of state was headed. Opening prices were irregular and the market drifted through the day without determined rally or active selling interval.

Losses ran from fractions to 2 points. Some support appeared around the beginning of the last hour, but it didn't amount to much. Motors held a fractional range and chemicals were heavy. Rubbers, oils, mail orders, tobaccos and metals yielded small fractions. Railroad shares receded. Union Pacific fell 2 points, Santa Fe dropped a point. Rail equipments were mixed. American Locomotive lost a point. Brake Shoe and Westinghouse Air Brake dipped 1 to 2 points. Car & Foundry was firm.

Steel shares held nearly even near the close. At their best they were fractionally higher and at the worst the declines were small.

Help Wanted.

All signs are now pointing toward an early resumption by the Government of an outpouring of money, and probably along with it will come a little hocus-pocus of one sort or another. On that point much depends on how willing Congress may prove to be in granting fresh appropriations and on how quickly the spending seems to take hold. The growing opposition in Congress to the waste and financial and economic folly of the Administration, as shown in the new tax bill and in the defeat of the reorganization bill, is encouraging, but too much dependence cannot be placed upon it.

It happens that the President has numerous rabbits in his hat which he can pull out without the consent of Congress. That body could repeal existing legislation which makes that presto-chango sort of economic management possible, but it is quite unlikely to do so, at least not until after some of the tricks have been tried. Among them are the issuance of up to 3,000,000,000 of greenbacks "to lift commodity prices;" the issuance of currency against the inactive gold account—that is the spending of the writeup in the value of gold that took place when the dollar was devalued a few years ago; the revaluation of the silver stock to correspond to the gold writeup; and, most important, although probably a last resort, the further devaluation of the dollar in terms of gold down to the full 50 per cent of the former valuation, as permitted by existing legislation.

Some of these measures might conceivably so weaken confidence in the dollar as to cause a rush out of currency into stocks, commodities and real estate, but the use of any or all most certainly would weaken the foundations of business confidence. They would give the patient a fever, but they wouldn't give him strength.

Deflation.

Chairman Eccles, speaking for the Federal Reserve Board, deserves credit for his opposition before the House Banking and Currency Committee to the Patman bill for Federal ownership of the Federal Reserve Banks and a scheme for price fixing. The Government has become rather fed up with the idea that it can fix prices. On another score Chairman Eccles seems to be rather a stubborn hanger-on to an idea even when he can see the disastrous effects of its operation. He opposed elimination of the undistributed profits tax as "deflationary." Granted that the chairman of the board ought to know what deflation is, since his pet idea for lifting bank reserve requirements by 50 per cent had much to do with bringing on the present depression, it is still difficult to believe that he really thinks what he now says. The undistributed profits tax did indeed create a boomlet in 1936, with the inevitable repercussion of 1937 and 1938. It is the old illusion that money in a corporation's treasury necessarily remains idle, whereas it goes into productive employment immediately once it is distributed in little bits to stockholders.

British View.

"Recovery (in the United States) will surely come some time," says the editor of the London Financial News, "for at the present rate the Nation's capital equipment is deteriorating without being replaced. But it now seems unlikely that recovery will begin to get under way much before the autumn. Consequently, in adjusting share prices to the present level of business, Wall Street is right."

Odd Lots.

The rise of $7,000 to a price of $59,000 for a Stock Exchange seat may be a reflection of the somewhat better feeling in stock market circles, but it also may simply mean relief from the pressure of a forced sale or two. There are no signs of a scramble for the privilege of owning a seat on the New York Stock Exchange, even though it may be argued that the selection of a New Deal governing board insures a new lease on a life of independent operation. . . . Just in case the stock market has an active day or two that sends the ticker tape behind in its reporting job, this might be a splendid time for the exchange to reform a quotation symbol or two. There is no possible excuse for printing Steel common as "X-NEW." The new no par value stock is the only one quoted and, therefore, there can be no confusion with the old $100 par value shares. Elimination of the new in the symbol has everything to be said in its favor and nothing to be said against it. . . . Since the Japanese war began the United States has bought $50,000,000 of Chinese silver. That amounts to nothing more nor less than a donation of that much money to the Chinese. Perhaps it was money well spent, but the silver we took in exchange for it is nothing but a dead horse buried in Government vaults.

Richard Whitney's Seat Brings $59,000

New York, April 12 (AP).—Richard Whitney's seat on the New York Stock Exchange was sold today for $59,000. Announcement of the transfer was made about the time Whitney, convicted of grand larceny, was entering Sing Sing Prison to begin serving his term of five to ten years. Whitney bought the seat in 1912, for $65,000.

The 1938 high for Stock Exchange membership is $75,000, made on January 12. On March 30 one sold for $52,000, a low for the past 20 years.

March Trade In Washington Shows Pick-Up

Betters February by 1 Per Cent but Is 10 Per Cent Below Normal.

New York, April 12.—Business conditions in Washington in March showed an improvement over February according to the monthly survey of 147 trading areas of the United States conducted by the research department of Brooke, Smith, French and Dorrance, of New York and Detroit. The index for Washington stood at 10 per cent below normal in March, representing an improvement of 1 per cent over the index for February, but a loss of 15 per cent from March, 1937, when the city's index stood at 5 per cent above normal.

"Evidence of a changing business situation is seen in the monthly analysis of conditions in the 147 major trading areas of the country," the report states. "During March, improvement appeared in 64 of these areas, whereas the gains during the preceding month numbered only 29. In addition to the areas which show improvement, 25 others remained at their February levels; 58 declined.

General Decline Checked.

The national index also gives evidence that the general decline was checked in March. It stands at 37 per cent below normal—the same level as at the end of February. In March, 1937, national business was exactly on the normal line.

The greatest March gains, with indexes improving 3 per cent or more over February, were registered in the following areas:

Augusta, Binghamton, Boise, Cedar Rapids, Chattanooga, Cincinnati, Colorado Springs, Des Moines, Fargo, Fort Worth, Grand Forks, Hartford, Nashville, New Orleans, Oakland, Phoenix, Pittsburgh, Portland, Oreg., Providence, Reading, Reno, San Antonio, San Francisco, Springfield, Mo., Tampa, Topeka, Wheeling, Wichita, Wichita Falls, Wilkes-Barre and Worcester.

Building Permits Jump in March

New York, April 12 (AP).—Permits for new building construction totaling $76,598,907 were issued in 215 representative United States cities in March, a rise of 41.8 per cent over the two-year low of $54,010,213 in February, Dun & Bradstreet reported today. The agency said the rise reflected "to a large degree the reported expansion of FHA mortgage loans to record levels during that month." The March awards, despite the gain over February, were 36.8 per cent under March, 1937.

March Gold Imports Total $52,947,452

By the Associated Press.

The Commerce Department said yesterday gold imports in March totaled $52,947,452, compared with February's total of $8,210,517. The month's gold purchases were the largest since last October, and included $31,395,455 from England.

March silver imports aggregated $14,440,409, compared with $15,488,161 in February.

Bankers' Acceptances.

New York, April 12 (AP).—The New York Federal Reserve Bank today reported that outstanding bankers acceptances March 31 totaled $292,742,315, a decrease for the month of $14,372,997, and a decrease for the year of $103,729,353.

Curb Advances In Final Hour

New York, April 12 (AP).—The Curb Market slipped off early today, but in sympathy with the big board a partial recovery was made before the close. Many leaders registered no change. Trading totaled 93,000 shares, compared with 182,000 yesterday.

Leading issues showing net loss of ½ or more included American Gas & Electric at 24; Creole Petroleum, 19⅝; Great Atlantic & Pacific nonvoting, 40⅛; Lake Shore Mines, 49⅞, and Pittsburgh Plate Glass, 69½.

Gainers of more than a half-point included Aluminum Co. of America, 73¾, and American Light & Traction, 11¾. In the specialty field Pennsylvania Water & Power was up 3 at 62 and Niles-Bement-Pond down 1½ at 30.

Boston Wool Market.

Boston, April 12 (AP). (U. S. Dept. of Agriculture.)—Inquiries were being received in the Boston wool market today and occasional purchases of small quantities were being made, mostly on the finer grades of territory wools. Buyers, however, were taking only enough wool to cover immediate needs. Prices were showing no change in trend, compared with last week on active wools.

Wheat Drops With Outlook For Big Crops

Reports of Dust Storms in Southwest Bring About Late Rallies.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, April 12.—Hit by big liquidating sales that resulted from United States prospective bumper crops, Chicago wheat prices fell 2¼ cents today, but largely recovered afterward.

Helping to bring about late rallies were reports of dust storms in Oklahoma and Kansas. Persistent assertions that Great Britain had launched plans to increase her food supply also helped offset price tumbles.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were ½ to ⅞ under yesterday's finish; May, 83⅛ to 83¾; July, 80 to 80⅛. Corn, ⅛ to ⅝ down; May, 60⅛ to 60¼; July 61⅛ to 61¾; oats, ½ to ⅝ off; Rye showing ⅛ to ⅜ drop, and provisions 5 to 12 cents decline.

IN MEMORIAM.

RATTI, GINO A.—In sad and loving memory of our dear husband and father, who passed away one year ago today, April 13, 1937.
Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear.
Too far away for sight or speech,
But not too far for thought to reach.
Sweet to remember our Gino Dear

Official Notices

COMMISSIONERS OF THE DISTRICT OF Columbia, April 11, 1938. A public hearing having been held by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia in the matter of closing Lincoln road northeast and providing for certain street dedications in connection therewith, in the northeast section, and the said Commissioners being satisfied as to the equity, justice and advisability of said closing, and that the same is in the public interests and not detrimental to the interests of abutting property owners, notice is hereby given that the said Commissioners have proved the following order: "Ordered: That pursuant to the provisions of Public Act No. 307, approved December 15, 1932, Lincoln road between Franklin street and Michigan avenue northeast, as shown on plat filed in the office of the surveyor of the District of Columbia, numbered as Map No. 2075, is hereby ordered closed, same to take effect on and after May 10, 1938, the title to the land comprised within the lines of said road so closed to revert to the abutting property owners, as shown on said map; and in connection therewith a dedication is provided on said plat for the extension and widening of Franklin street and for the widening of Fourth street and Harewood road south of and adjacent to Michigan avenue northeast." Any and all parties interested must file objections to said closing of Lincoln road in writing before the effective date of above order; otherwise said order shall become effective on May 10, 1938, as aforesaid, and said road between the limits referred to shall on and after said date become closed in accordance with the provisions of said act.

NOTICE OF HEARING ON MAY 4, 1938.
BY MINIMUM WAGE BOARD FOR THE LAUNDRY, DRY CLEANING AND DYEING INDUSTRY. The Minimum Wage Board of the District of Columbia, having, on April 5, 1938, approved the unanimous recommendation of the employer, employee, and public members of the Laundry, Dry Cleaning, and Dyeing Industry Minimum Wage Conference for a minimum weekly wage of $14.50 for all women in the Laundry, Dry Cleaning, and Dyeing Industry, gives notice as required by Section 12 of the Minimum Wage Law, that it will hold a public hearing at 10:00 A. M. on Wednesday, May 4, 1938, in the Board Room of the District Building, at which time all persons in favor of or opposed to such recommendations will be heard. WORKERS INCLUDED. 1. The non-professional women workers covered by this order shall include (1) Washers, (2) cleaners, (3) dyers, (4) sorters, (5) classifiers, (6) shakers, (7) starchers, (8) markers, (9) catchers, (10) ironers, (11) pressers, (12) flat work operators, (13) press operators, (14) folders, (15), finishers, (16) packers, (17) wrappers, (18) menders, (19) forealadies, (20) solicitors, (21) collectors, (22) distributors, (23) sellers, (24) office workers, (25) elevator operators, (26) telephone operators and (27) all other women engaged directly or indirectly in washing, ironing, processing, cleaning, repairing, collecting, selling, renting, selling, and/or distributing of laundry and/or dry cleaning, and/or dyeing services at retail or wholesale or laundry, dry cleaning, dyeing, pressing establishments, departments, stores, hospitals, hotels, institutions, or any other place of establishment where such work is performed. DEFINITION OF OCCUPATION. 2. The Laundry, Dry Cleaning, and Dyeing Trade shall be considered to include (1) cleansing, dyeing, pressing, or processing for the individual, for compensation, of clothing (including hats), household furnishings, rugs, textiles, fur, leather, or fabric of any kind whatsoever; (2) the collection, sale, resale, or distribution at retail or wholesale of these services; and (3) the solicitation of such services on their own behalf by any establishments, businesses, institutions, or clubs, which services may be incidental to the principal business of the aforementioned. WAGES 3. A—Regular Weekly Productive Time of Workers. All women employed in productive plant workers for more than 16 hours and not more than 44 hours in any week shall be paid not less than $14.50 per week. B—Part-Time Productive Plant Workers. All part-time women workers shall be paid at the rate of not less than 40c per hour if they work 16 hours or less in any one week. If the part-time provision for workers who are employed less than 17 hours a week is used by the employers to such decree that the purpose of the order—namely, to provide a minimum wage to such workers adequate to protect the health and morals—is defeated, the Board shall rescind this provision of the order. C—Overtime rate after 44 hours for productive plant workers. All women who work more than 44 hours shall be paid an additional 35c for each hour worked from 45 to 48 hours inclusive. D—Averaging of Hours worked in 2 consecutive weeks. The 44 hours per week may be averaged over a period of two consecutive weeks and the extra hourly rate shall apply only when more than 88 hours are worked in any period of two consecutive weeks. E—Store Clerks. (1) All women store clerks shall be paid not less than $17.00 for each standard work week of from 40 to 48 hours. All women store clerks who work less than 40 hours a week shall be paid at the rate of not less than 40c per hour. (2) Store Clerk Learners. A learning period of 2 months shall be permitted for store clerks at a weekly wage of not less than $14.50 per week in stores where one or more experienced workers are employed. (3) A learner's certificate of registration shall be required by the employer for each learner, which must have been applied for in person by said learner from the Minimum Wage Board on or before the date of the beginning of employment. F—Office Employees, elevator and telephone operators, cooks and counter girls. All employees to whom the Minimum Wage Board has already established Minimum Wages in Order No. 3 and Order No. 4 shall be paid the same Wage whenever they are employed in the Laundry, Dry Cleaning, and Dyeing Industry. (4) Piece Workers. Women employed on a piece-work basis shall be employed at piece rates which yield to such employee's wages not less than the minimum wage established for time workers. (5) Waiting Time. Time during regular working hours and at other periods when employees are required to wait on the premises and no work is provided by the employer shall be counted as working time and paid for at the individual employee's regular wage rate. (6) No deductions shall be made from the foregoing wages for meals, lodging, or uniforms, provided, however, that certain deductions may be made for board, room, clothing, and sundries from the wages of women in laundries of charitable and semi-philanthropic institutions, such estimate of costs of same to be made by th Board. DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA MINIMUM WAGE BOARD. MRS. WILLIAM KITTLE, Chairman; ARTHUR L. SCHOENTHAL, CLAUDE H. WOODWARD. Attest: GWEN GEACH, Executive Secretary.

Bob Burns Says—

It must be terrible to live in one of them foreign countries where you can't follow your own religious belief and customs. Over here the quickest way to lose respect is to profess other people's belief to gain favor.

One cold winter night a political candidate stopped at my uncle's house. After supper grandpa pulled his chair up to the fireplace, knelt down with his elbows on the chair, and his back to the fire and went to bed.

The candidate thought grandpa was prayin' so he did the same thing. After he'd gone, my cousin spoke up and says, "You know, there's a funny fella. He has'ta warm his pants jest like grandpa."
